WEEKS REVEALS CLASH IN FRANCE BETWEEN EDWARDS AND GEN. PERSHING

Secretary of War Said to Have Told Senate Military Committee That New Englander Was Removed From Command of 26th Division Because He Had Criticised Strategy Decisions in France.

PROMOTION OPPOSED BY THREE DEMOCRATS

Committee Votes 12 to 3 for Recommending Confirmation of the Appointment—Fight Likely to Be Carried to Floor of the Senate.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Despite some Democratic objection to Brigadier-General Clarence R. Edwards, the Senate Military Committee today voted to recommend confirmation of the 12 Major and 14 Brigadier-Generals nominated recently by President Harding for promotion.

Gen. Edwards, who commanded the Twenty-sixth (New England) Division overseas until relieved by Gen. Pershing and returned home, was the only nominee on the list under fire. The committee vote on his name today was reported to have been 12 to 3, with three Democrats opposing and three others voting for his confirmation. Those said to have opposed Gen. Edwards included Senators Hitchcock, Nebraska, and McKellar, Tennessee. Senators Robinson of Arkansas and Myers of Montana, Democrats, were reported to have joined the Republican members in supporting him. Senator Sheppard of Texas, and Fletcher of Florida, the other Democrats on the committee, declined to indicate their stand.

Democratic opponents of Gen. Edwards, whose name headed the list of nominees for Major-General, intimated they would carry their fight to the Senate floor. No filibuster, it was said, would be waged, but a record vote at least, it was declared, would be demanded. Republicans predicted that the entire list of general officers would be ratified promptly by the Senate, thereby paving the way for a dozen more promotions to the rank of Brigadier, many other promotions down through the whole service and for selection of a chief of staff.

Weeks Called in Again.

Members of the Senate committee expressed the belief that Gen. Edwards would not be chosen Chief of Staff, after today's meeting, at which Secretary Weeks was called in again for further discussion of Gen. Edwards' record. Major-General Harbord, according to opinion of prominent Republican Senators, will be selected Chief of Staff to succeed Major-General Peyton C. March.

All of the nominations of general officers, along with that of Charles G. Dawes of Chicago, to be a Brigadier-General on the reserve list, will be submitted to the Senate Monday. No opposition is expected to the Dawes nominations.

Information submitted today by Secretary Weeks regarding Gen. Edwards' record was given in executive session. Members of the committee said that it disclosed existence of differences between Gen. Pershing and Gen. Edwards over the latter's course in commanding the Twenty-sixth Division in France. Secretary Weeks, however, was reported to have declared emphatically to Democratic Senators opposing Edwards' promotion that a thorough search of the War Department files had been made without finding any record of such charges as Democratic Senators said that they understood were on file.

Attitude of Gen. Pershing.

Secretary Weeks, according to committee members, was said to have testified today that, after opposition developed at yesterday's committee meeting against Gen. Edwards, he had talked over the case last night with Gen. Pershing. The latter, it was said, told Secretary Weeks that he had not recommended Gen. Edwards for promotion and, if called on to act again, would "not now recommend Gen. Edwards for a higher rank." Secretary Weeks was said to have stated also that Gen. Pershing did not now disapprove or oppose Gen. Edwards' confirmation, desiring to refrain from intervening in the matter.

Information given to the committee today by Secretary Weeks, ac-

JUDGE OBTAINS INDEMNITY BOND ON COOLIDGE'S OVERCOAT

Pittsburg Man Who Carried Away Garment, Will Insure It Against Theft.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 23.—An indemnity bond for $57.57 on Vice President Calvin Coolidge's overcoat was issued here today to Federal Judge Joseph Buffington. The Judge attended the inaugural ceremonies at Washington March 4, and during the excitement he walked away with the Vice President's overcoat, mistaking it for his own.

The bond is designed to protect the coat until the Vice President attends the Founders' day exercises at Carnegie Institute here next Thursday.

The bond, duly signed and sealed, insures the overcoat in the sum of $57.57 against loss by theft or sundry other causes while the Vice President is in Pittsburg.

While the coat is insured, the contents are not, and under the bond, the owner of the coat must wear it from 7 a. m. until midnight Thursday. Another clause provides that Mr. Coolidge must notify Mayor E. V. Babcock as soon as he arrives here, in order that the city's chief executive may detail necessary police protection to guard the coat.

The bond was issued after Vice President Coolidge, replying to Judge Buffington's invitation to attend the Founders' day celebration, said he feared for the safety of his overcoat.

HARDING PLAYS ON PUBLIC LINKS

President Refuses to Permit Rain to Prevent Golf Game.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—President Harding refused to permit his regular game of golf to be called off today by reason of rain and a soggy field. Immediately after returning from attendance at Baptist memorial exercises, he replaced his hat with the regulation golf cap and walked from the White House to the nearby municipal golf links to find relaxation after a week of work.

The President turned the first spadeful of earth for the National Baptist Memorial, to be erected here in honor of Roger Williams and his fight for religious liberty. The structure is to cost a half million dollars and is to be paid for by Baptists throughout the country.

GOOSE RACES WITH TRAIN

A daily race along the Burlington right-of-way north of St. Charles, between a domesticated wild goose and a passenger train is affording much amusement to residents of that neighborhood.

The goose, which was caught and tamed last November by Charles Edes, a farmer, flies along with the train for a distance of two miles and then returns to the barnyard, Edes said yesterday. Several weeks ago smoke from the engine obstructed its view and it flew into a window, breaking its wing.

ROAD DELEGATION RETURNS TO MAKE RECOMMENDATIONS

Volunteer Committee of Missouri Legislators, After Visiting 8 States, Favors Change in Organization.

WOULD CREATE AN UNSALARIED BOARD

Finds in Wisconsin Type of Organization and Construction Best Adapted to Conditions in This State.

By CURTIS A. BETTS.
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

Conversion of Missouri's $60,000,000 of good roads bonds, with something like $35,000,000 of Federal aid in 10 years in addition, into a State transportation system of hard-surfaced highways, is the State's most important problem to be solved by the Legislature in a special session Gov. Hyde has promised to call early in May. A volunteer committee of three Senators and one member of the House, which has completed a three weeks' tour of States which have successful highway departments, and in which marked progress has been made in road construction, will present a report to the Legislature pointing out mistakes which they found other States had made, and making recommendations as to the course Missouri should pursue.

Following the adjournment of the regular session of the Legislature a month ago without provision having been made for the compilation of road data for the information of the members at the special session, Senator Richard F. Ralph of St. Louis County formed a volunteer road investigating committee and agreed to finance it, saying he would ask the Legislature to reimburse him. The other members were Senator Jefferson D. Hostetter of Pike County and Senator Phil A. Bennett of Dallas County, and Representative James Sidney Rollins of Boone County.

In arranging the trip Ralph said its only purpose was to attempt to discover the best system for translating Missouri's bonds into roads, and to gather information which would be of value to the members of the Legislature in enacting the necessary laws.

Visited Eight States.

On its tour the committee visited the State Highway Departments and consulted the State Highway Commissioners and State Highway engineers of Indiana, New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Michigan and Wisconsin. It conferred with officials of the Federal Bureau of Roads in Washington. It traveled in automobiles over more than 1000 miles of highway in the states mentioned, and also in Virginia and Illinois, studying types of road construction and gathering information regarding roads. Throughout the trip the committee was accompanied by the legislative correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

While the committee will not recommend to the Legislature any particular type of road to be constructed in Missouri, Senator Ralph holding that to be an engineering question which only a trained engineer should decide, it will make detailed recommendations regarding the character of organization for the State Highway Department in its opinion found most successful in other states, and regarding the general system which should be followed in formulating a road program in Missouri.

Wisconsin System Best.

The Wisconsin system has been agreed upon by the members of the committee as the basis for the system they will recommend for Missouri. The report has not been formulated, and will not be for several weeks, but preliminary discussions of the members brought out the following as the "high points" they believe should be the guideposts in Missouri road legislation:

Provision should be made for a State system of hard-surfaced roads constructed under State supervision and under complete control of the State.

None of the $60,000,000 bond issue should be turned over to counties, townships or road districts, but all should be expended by the State.

The present State Highway Commission should be abolished and a new nonsalaried commission created without regard to political lines. The commission should include as an ex-officio member the State Geologist and possibly also the dean of the College of Engineering of the State University. There should be three other members whose terms should be fixed to expire at two-year intervals.

The chief engineer of the department should be appointed by the commission without either po-

CREED BROTHERS FOUND GUILTY, GET LIFE SENTENCES

Robert and Thomas Convicted of Killing Patrolman Geisler in Clark Avenue Saloon Last October.

JUDGE SENDS JURORS HOME UNDER GUARD

"I Think We Got a Pretty Tough Break," Robert Creed Tells Judge Hall as He Is Led From Room.

Sentences of life imprisonment were imposed upon Robert Creed, 26 years old, and his brother, Thomas, 24, by a jury in Judge Hall's court last night under its verdict that the brothers were guilty of first degree murder in shooting Policeman George F. Geisler in a saloon at 2100 Clark avenue last October.

As soon as the jury was polled, it was returned in a body to the jury room, from which the jurymen were were taken, one by one, to their homes, each under the guard of an officer.

The brothers listened apparently unmoved to the reading of the verdict. Their relatives in the courtroom broke into weeping that interrupted the brief proceedings. Mrs. Thomas Creed fainted and was carried from the courtroom.

Robert Creed's Remarks.

At the conclusion of the polling of the jury, Robert Creed said to Judge Hall: "Judge, do you think we've had a fair trial? The police can always get the evidence. They didn't show the officer's stick."

Judge Hall replied: "Yes, as far as I am concerned, I feel you have had a fair trial. I don't believe that (referring to the nonproduction of Geisler's stick) hurt you."

Robert again addressed the Judge as he and his brother were being led by deputy sheriffs back to their cells in the city jail: "I think we got a pretty tough break, Judge," he said. Judge Hall later said to newspaper men that he gave 15 instructions to the jury in an effort to aid a fair verdict.

The case went to the jury at 3:55 p. m. The jury was taken out for supper at 6 p. m., returning at 7:10. It reached its verdict at 8:15 o'clock, having deliberated three hours and 30 minutes. The Judge did not reach the courtroom until 9 o'clock.

The relatives of the defendants in court were Mrs. Thomas Creed and her four children, two sisters of the brothers and a niece.

The verdict in the case of Robert was read first. A slight, bitter smile that flitted into his face and vanished in an instant was the only sign he gave.

Review of Testimony in Case.

The testimony for the State was that the Creed brothers and Edna Brooks, after driving to different saloons and obtaining drinks, went to the saloon at 2100 Clark avenue and were standing at the bar when Geisler entered and walked to the back end of the bar, where the brothers approached him and he and Robert had words, which culminated in Geisler striking Robert with his club, after which the brothers seized him and pushed him into the rear room.

The only eye witness of what took place there was Edna Brooks. She testified that as she followed them into the room the policeman was standing in the corner with his hands raised and Robert was pointing a revolver at him and Thomas was fumbling for the policeman's revolver. She threw herself in front of the policeman, she said, and begged them not to shoot him. Almost as she spoke, she testified, shots were fired, the powder from which scorched her fingers.

When Robert was arrested in front of his sister's home at 4120 Manchester avenue a man who was with him ran into the house and slammed the door. A policeman fired through the panel. When Thomas was arrested later he had a bullet wound in the back. Geisler's revolver was found in the sister's home.

Woman Admitted Perjuring Herself.

Miss Brooks admitted that she perjured herself at the inquest and before the grand jury in swearing that she did not see the shooting. She did this, she said, to save the Creed brothers.

For the defense the testimony was that Geisler called Robert a thief and struck him with his club and pursued him into the rear room, striking at him, that Thomas followed, asking Geisler to arrest Robert, but not beat him, that the shots were fired before Thomas could enter the room and that when Robert came out of the room he said Geisler caused it himself.

Witnesses for the defense denied that Edna Books entered the rear room, testifying that she left the saloon by another door when the shots were fired.

The defendants were not placed on the witness stand.

PRISONER TAKEN IN SCRANTON, PA.

This Man Identified as One Seen Talking to Driver of Death Wagon Shortly Before Tragedy.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Two sharp developments marked today the search for the perpetrators of the Wall street bomb explosion last September. In Scranton, Pa., Tito Ligi was positively identified as a man seen talking to the driver of the death wagon shortly before the tragedy, by Thomas J. Smith of Brooklyn, employed in the legal department of an insurance company in Manhattan.

The other incident that caused unusual police activity was the taking of his life by Adolph La Sar, 57 years old, in his furnished room in Brooklyn. In an incoherent diary mentioning half a dozen names of men in New York and Chicago, was written: "They furnished the wagon load of TNT with which I blew up Wall street."

Close examination of the man's effects and inquiry into his habits while in the Brooklyn house, convinced the police tonight that the man was mentally deranged and none of the evidence associated him with the crime.

Three wills leaving his clothing and a few personal effects to persons who could not be located, were among the papers. In another note to his landlady he said "he was leaving for a better world."

Scranton Suspect in Bomb Plot Picked From Line of Six Prisoners.

By the Associated Press.

SCRANTON, Pa., April 23.—Positive identification of Tito Ligi, arrested here last Tuesday on suspicion of complicity in the Wall street explosion last September, was made here today by Thomas J. Smith of Brooklyn, employed in the legal department of an insurance company having offices in the New York financial district.

Smith picked out Ligi from a line of six prisoners as the man he had seen arguing with the driver of the death wagon shortly before the explosion. He later told newspaper men that a few moments after the blast he saw Ligi rushing along Cedar street, near Nassau street and Broadway, urging two companions to hurry out of the neighborhood.

Smith, who formerly was a Lieutenant in the New York Police Department, assigned to investigating incendiaries, said he was walking in Wall street toward Broad a few minutes before the explosion.

At about 11:55 a. m., he said, he was approaching the banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co., when he saw a dilapidated wagon with red and black striped wheels in front of the United States assay office. Inside the wagon, partly covered with newspapers were two barrels and two boxes about two or three feet square.

"I thought it was a junk wagon," he said. "My attention was first called to it when I noticed two men standing near the horse's head, arguing. I crossed the street expecting to see a fight. One of the men was about 5 feet 6 inches tall, roughly dressed, and of stocky build."

Turning to Raymond Clark, foreman on a construction job in the vicinity of the explosion, Smith asked if that description fitted the man that Clark had seen shortly after the blast. Clark, who also went to Scranton today to see if he could recognize Ligi, but who failed to do so, admitted that the general description fitted the man who a few moments after the explosion rushed up to him and shouted: "My God, my horse has been killed."

Smith said the other man standing by the wagon was taller and better dressed. This man, whom he identified as Ligi, was wrangling, he said, with the smaller man, apparently trying to induce him to leave the neighborhood.

"The shorter man," Smith added,

100,000 WITNESS FOOTBALL GAME FOR THE BRITISH TITLE

Coal Strike and Reparations Crisis Forgotten While Association Match Is Pending.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 23.—The Britisher's traditional love of sport was well exemplified today when 100,000 football enthusiasts crowded the great stadium at Stamford Bridge for the English Association championship game between Wolverhampton and Totterham. A cold rain was falling. Many waited all night for the opening of the gates. Some either from love of walking or from lack of funds, tramped scores of miles from adjoining cities.

Association football is to the Briton what baseball is to the American and the matches create the most intense interest. All the evening newspapers today devote columns to the game, putting the coal strike and the reparations crisis into the discard for the moment.

King George, the Duke of York and Prince Henry witnessed the game.

No report of the score of the game had been reseived from London at the time this edition of the Post-Dispatch went to press.

He denied the shooting.

LLOYD GEORGE AND BRIAND CONFER AT LYMPNE ON REPARATIONS

French Premier Explains, on His Own Suggestion, His Country's Plans for an Economic Administration in Part of Westphalia, Including Ruhr Coal Basin.

GERMANY SENDS ANOTHER NOTE TO U. S.

Communication Reported to Have Been Dispatched From Berlin Expected to Contain German Government's Counter Proposals.

By the Associated Press.

LYMPNE, England, April 23.—It is Great Britain's intention to abide by the provisions of the agreement arrived at in Paris last January with regard to what steps should be taken to coerce Germany into meeting her reparations debt—she agrees that failure by Germany to meet her obligations in this respect should be met with further pressure.

This became known in the course of today's meeting between Premier Briand and Premier Lloyd George, who came here to confer on the situation arising from Germany's stand on the reparations questions and what is to be done if she continues her recalcitrant attitude.

M. Briand, at his own request, explained to the British Prime Minister at a conference which occupied the best part of this afternoon and evening, the French proposals for setting up an economic administration in part of Westphalia, including the Ruhr coal basin, should the Germans fail to pay the reparations due May 1. The proceeds of this administration, such as taxation on coal exports and excess profits duties levied on German industrial establishments, would, under the French plan, be put in a pool, out of which the reparations would be paid the allies.

French Proposals Outlined.

Although Lloyd George doubtless was aware of the general character of the French plans from the communications exchanged between the British and French Foreign Offices, M. Briand expressed the wish to explain personally some of the important features affecting the general policy of the allies, in order to attain complete unity of purpose.

Today's conversations, therefore, began with a rather extended exposition of the French scheme by M. Briand and Philippe Berthelot, of the French Foreign Office, with Lloyd George interrogating them.

The conversations were held in the black and gold room of the residence of Sir Philip Sassoon. There was no table in front of the conferees, who lounged in arm chairs. Those present, in addition to the principals, were M. Kammerer, the official repository of many French State secrets, and Sir Maurice Hanney, secretary to the Committee on Imperial Defense, Sir Philip Kerr, Robert G. Van Sittart and M. Sylvester, the latter four assisting Lloyd George.

Conference Goes On After Tea.

After tea the Premiers walked on the terrace, the foliage of which was dripping from the day's rain. They then tackled their task again in the black and gold room.

During the afternoon word reached Lympne from Berlin that the German Cabinet was discussing fresh proposals, which it was reported might reach here before the conference breaks up Monday, when M. Briand will return to Paris. M. Jaspar, the Belgian Foreign Minister, will visit London Tuesday to discuss the reparations matter with Lloyd George.

Speaking jocularly this evening of Germany's request to the United States Government that it be the intermediary between Germany and the Allies, Premier Briand said:

"To hear this gives me pleasure, because if the Washington Government forwarded Germany's propo-

DERBY REPORTED GIVEN MISSION TO SINN FEIN

Lloyd George Said to Have Commissioned Him to Find if There Is Ground for Negotiations.

RAIDERS SET FIRE TO TRAIN IN IRELAND

Engine and 34 Cars Run for Half an Hour Without Crew—One Killed in Raid on Police Barracks.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 24.—Premier Lloyd George, says the Sunday Times, has commissioned Lord Derby to approach the Sinn Fein to discover, if possible, common ground for negotiations looking to a settlement of the Irish question, in view of the forthcoming elections.

The newspaper says that Lord Derby all of his life has been in close touch with all the vicissitudes of the Irish question and thoroughly understands the situation.

Lord Derby returned to London this evening from Lymphne, where he had been in consultation with the Prime Minister. On his arrival he went to dinner with Lord Edmund Talbot, the new Lord Lieutenant and Governor-General of Ireland.

Trainload of Flour, Meal and Machinery Destroyed by Fire.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, April 23.—The police and military barracks in Kilrush, County Claire, were attacked last midnight by a large party of armed men and a fight ensued which lasted three hours, in which one police Sergeant was killed and two soldiers wounded. Two royal marines were taken prisoners, but escaped uninjured. The attackers withdrew without capturing either barracks.

Two hundred raiders held up a train of 34 cars today between Glaslough and Monaghan. The raiders made prisoners of the driver, fireman and guards, and then set fire to the train. The fireman was forced to set the train in motion and jump off the engine. The train, with no one on it ran half an hour before stopping. Twenty cars were completely destroyed and more than 200 yards of the railway line suffered damage. A large quantity of flour, meal, groceries and machinery on the train was destroyed and the mail bags stolen. It is understood the train was conveying to Belfast goods against which the Sinn Fein boycott has been declared.

Irish Republican Decree Against Resort to English Courts.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 23.—The Dail Eireann, or Irish Republican Parliament, has issued a proclamation warning that all who resort to English courts of justice will be regarded as waging war on the life of the Irish community and will be treated accordingly, says a dispatch from Ireland today.

According to a Sinn Fein bulletin, the Dail Eireann held a session during the second week of April at which it was resolved, in view of the success of the Belfast boycott, to instruct the Republican "Minister for Home Affairs" to prepare plans for submission at the next session for a general boycott of all English goods. Pending this, it was decided to issue a decree forbidding from May 1 the importation of many classes of goods of English origin, in accordance with the decision of the March session. The Dail Eireann also authorized a scheme for conciliation boards in labor disputes and a decree forbidding election speeches in any but the Irish national language.

Irish Raiders Execute Man in Presence of a Priest.

DUBLIN, April 23.—For the first time in the history of the troubles in Ireland, raiders have executed a man in the presence of a priest who was summoned to administer the last rites. He was John Reilly, former soldier, who was taken from his home at Ballycar by armed men Wednesday night and shot to death.

The priest was called after Reilly had been severely wounded. With the arrival of the priest the raiders poured pistol shots into Reilly, killing him.

Picture Shows Tissue of Chicken Heart Growing

Dr. Alexis Carrel Demonstrates With Movies Experiment He Is Conducting at Rockefeller Institute—Scientists Marvel at Sight.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, April 23. — A doctor and two nurses look after the "chicken heart" which Dr. Alexis Carrel, noted scientist, has growing at the Rockefeller Institute in New York.

Dr. Carrel was present today at the meeting of the American Philosophical Society, bringing with him motion pictures of the "heart", which is not a heart at all but the cell proliferation from a small fragment removed from the heart of a chicken embryo in 1912.

Dr. Carrel was accompanied by Alessandero Fabbri, who made the pictures, and Dr. A. H. Ebeling, also of the Institute.

The motion pictures showed an actual pulsating chicken's heart, caused to beat after the chicken was dead, and microscopic "movies" showing the growth of the heart. Tissue preserved by Dr. Carrel's laboratory does not pulsate as was reported when the story of the experiment went about in the form of a rumor more than a month ago.

Infinite Pains Required.

It was related by Fabbri that infinite pains are required to assure the continued growth of the cells. The nurses and doctors are in attendance every time it is to be removed from its incubator where it is kept at the exact temperature of 103 degrees. Every forty-eight hours the cell mass must be removed from the growing medium in which it is kept and a surgical operation performed on it.

In the forty-eight hours the heart has grown to twice the size it was. With the white clad nurses in attendance the surgeon with his rubber gloved fingers and sterilized instruments cuts it in two severing the new cell growth from the old.

Then the new cells are put back into fresh growing medium, and the "heart" is put away for another forty-eight hours in its incubator.

The "heart," originally but a small particle of tissue, has grown to a large cell mass bearing no resemblance to a heart. If it were permitted to grow indefinitely, Dr. Carrel said, without the daily cutting off the old cell growth it would have generated a sufficient number of cells to form a ball larger than the earth. The present "heart" is the 1500th "generation" counting each bisection as one. That is to say, it has been cut in half 1500 times and unless something happens to kill it, will be susceptible of almost indefinite growth and bisection, that is, unless one of the developments of the next few years be the knowledge that there is a term to the life and vigor of cell proliferation, as cell growth is called.

Scientists Marveled at Sight.

The scientists present at the demonstration marveled at the strange sight of tissue cells under a microscope visibly growing as they watched the enormously magnified picture thrown on the screen.

Dr. W. W. Keen, dean of Philadelphia surgeons, expressed his wonderment and admiration by saying, "I must say that this is the most remarkable exhibition I have even seen in a very long life." Fabbri, in starting the motion pictures, remarked smilingly that he would "hate to say how many tissue cultures he had murdered." Dr. Carrel explained later that strong light has a harmful and sometimes a killing effect on the tissue growth. Therefore the pictures were made from the older cells, cut off from the new growth.

Six "reels" were shown, the first that of the beating chicken heart, from a fowl dead five days. "I have had them beat for 104 days," explained Dr. Carrel. The scientist interjected illuminating remarks now and then as the pictures were shown.

The second reel showed the tissue cells in the mass pushing out new growths; the third isolated moving groups of cells; the fourth the growing tissue brought out strongly under reflected light; the fifth the movement of the protoplasm in a living cell, hugely magnified, of course, and the sixth the dying tissue as it gradually disintegrated and disappeared.

DETAILS OF CLASH IN FRANCE BETWEEN PERSHING AND EDWARDS

cording to committee members, was to the effect that events which led to relief of Gen. Edwards from command of the 26th Division on Oct. 22, 1918, had their inception during the previous July. The order relieving Gen. Edwards from command came, it was said, on the day before his division went into action. The committee was told, it was said, that Gen. Edwards had criticised decisions regarding strategy emanating from General Headquarters. Another circumstance said to have been involved was that a harmonious co-operation of Gen. Edwards in executing plans of the campaign involving his division.

The element of reported difference between Gen. Pershing and Gen. Edwards was said not to have been held paramount by Democratic opponents of confirmation. Democratic Senators said the issue was whether the Senate should confirm for promotion an officer whom Gen. Pershing had relieved from command, virtually on the eve of battle. The Democratic opponents were said to have taken the position that under these circumstances the administration was not justified in striking the name of Brigadier-General Omar Bundy from the list of officers for promotion and substituting Gen. Edwards.

Position Taken by Weeks.

Secretary Weeks was said to have taken the position that the promotions were a matter purely of judgment. He was said to have asserted that, considering all of the facts and circumstances, "his honest judgment" had dictated the recommendations made in President Harding's list.

Asked as to failure to include Cols. George V. H. Moseley and Hugh Drum in the list for promotion to the rank of Brigadier, Secretary Weeks was said to have told the committee that their age was the entire compelling reason. Neither have had more than 22 years' service, the minimum limit fixed in the recent army reorganization law for promotion to Brigadier. Other older officers of much longer service might be barred from ever attaining the rank of Brigadier, Secretary Weeks was said to have declared, if Cols. Moseley and Drum were promoted immediately. Their promotion is understood to have been declared by Secretary Weeks to be assured at an early date in any event.

Weeks and Pershing Discuss Organization of New War Staff.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Organization of the new war staff of the army was discussed at a conference today between Secretary Weeks and Gen. Pershing. The conference was the first since the announcement this week that Gen. Pershing was to be assigned to the important duty of building up a general headquarters designed to take over in time of war the direction of the nation's military forces in the field.

In addition to discussing the organization of the proposed war staff so as not to conflict with provisions of law affecting the general staff, the War Secretary and Gen. Pershing were understood to have taken up problems relating to the future administration and training of the National Guard and organized reserves. Gen. Pershing is known to favor the creation of a standardization of training for these reserve troops and the promotion of the utmost harmony possible between them and the regular establishment. He desires that the most able officers of the army be assigned to the training of National Guard and reserve troops in time of peace.

Gen. Pershing's new task, it is understood, will involve the creation of a staff machine complete in all details capable of taking over the field command in time of war. It will not interfere, however, in any way in time of peace with the present duties and responsibilities of the War Department General Staff, which is charged with the administration of the entire military establishment under the Secretary of War.

It is known to be Gen. Pershing's hope that he will be able to build up an efficient machine which will concern itself only with fighting problems, leaving the large questions of peace time training, supply and administration to the present general staff.

It is understood that Gen. Pershing explained to Secretary Weeks in detail today the situation that obtained when the United States entered the world war when he was forced to practically disrupt the War Department General Staff to secure a working staff organization to take overseas.

Secretary Weeks is expected to announce further details regarding Gen. Pershing's new assignment next week.

"apparently did not want to go. I thought they were going to fight and I stayed around a moment, but there was no fight and I went on, turning up Nassau street.

"Just after I had passed the corner of Nassau and Cedar streets I heard the explosion. I turned to go back to Wall street, but was stopped by the rush of people fleeing up Nassau street. Running by me in the crowd I saw three men going westward in Cedar street toward Broadway and one of them was the man I had seen wrangling with the wagon driver. Neither of the two men, however, was the driver.

"One of Ligi's companions was an Italian, about 5 feet 8 inches tall, and fairly well built. The other also appeared to be an Italian, and was about 5 feet 6. He had a stubby black mustache. The man who had been with the driver was urging these two men along.

"I noticed that the voice was the same as that of the man I had heard wrangling with the wagon driver, and when I looked it was the same man."

Confronting Ligi this afternoon Smith again made a test of the prisoner's voice. When Ligi denied he had ever seen Smith the insurance man declared the voice apparently was the same he had heard both before the explosion and a few minutes after.

Ligi is being held in $10,000 bail here for appearance before a Federal Court in Harrisburg, May 2, on a charge of evading the draft.

SENATE MAY GET PEACE RESOLUTION REPORT TOMORROW

PORTER RESOLUTION GOING BEFORE HOUSE

Most of Democrats in Senate Expected to Oppose Resolution as Matter of Party Policy.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Plans of Republican congressional leaders for effecting peace by congressional resolution were completed at an informal conference today.

The Knox resolution to that end probably will be reported to the Senate Monday by the Foreign Relations Committee as revised in technical and legal details by Senator Knox of Pennsylvania. Debate in the Senate then will begin Tuesday or Wednesday and will, it is believed, be comparatively short. There is a possibility of a slight hitch, according to Democratic Senators, in delay by the Foreign Relations Committee.

As a matter of general party policy, most of the Senate Democrats are expected to oppose the Knox resolution, but Republican leaders expect that a number of Democratic votes will be given to the resolution.

A peace resolution similar to the Knox measure is to be introduced in the House Monday by Chairman Porter of the Foreign Affairs Committee. Republican leaders, however, were said today to have agreed that the Senate resolution would be awaited before any action should be taken in the House. The Knox and Porter resolution, it is indicated, will be considered concurrently when the Senate resolution is transmitted to the House.

LIMIT SET ON BEER AND WINE OBTAINABLE ON PRESCRIPTION

Physicians Can Prescribe Only 4½ Gallons of Beer at One Time.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—An arbitrary limit of 4½ gallons of beer and three gallons of wine as the maximum a physician may prescribe at any one time, has been set in new prohibition regulations, which await the approval of David H. Blair, the new Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

In making this announcement today, Prohibition Commissioner Kramer said that while under Attorney-General Palmer's recent opinion, the amount of beer or wine prescribed by a physician over a given period could not be limited, it was believed that the amount of individual prescriptins could be limited to a reasonable maximum.

It would not be practical, he said, to require a patient for whom two or three bottles of beer a day might be presented, to obtain a prescription for each day.

Issuance of beer and wine regulations, Kramer emphasized, will depend entirely upon the decision of the new Internal Revenue Commissioner. Regulations as prepared for his approval, he said, were merely tentative.

All the gold was consigned to New York banks.

The present contract expires May 1.

Peter Beisel, secretary and business manager of the union, stated last night that he anticipated an amicable settlement before the expiration of the contract.

N. Y. CENTRAL SAID TO BE $128,540,677 OVERCAPITALIZED

Charges of Excess Filed With Labor Board for Railroad Unions by W. Jett Lauck.

EXHIBIT REVIEWS FINANCIAL HISTORY

Money Difficulties Not Due to Labor's Wages, but to Unwise Management, It Is Declared.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 23.—Financial difficulties of the New York Central Railroad, advanced as one reason for asking for wage reductions before the Railroad Labor Board, were declared to be due to unwise management in an exhibit filed with the Board today by the railway unions.

The exhibit, which was presented by W. Jett Lauck, economist for the employes, detailed the financial history of the road, and Lauck, in a supplemental seatement, declared that, in the face of a $128,540,677.75 overcapitalization, the New York Central should not seek to blame its financial difficulties on labor wages.

Cash dividends paid by the road for the period 1870-1919 were declared to aggregate 286.5 per cent and the proportion of such dividends which might be allotted to stock representing overcapitalization was said to amount to $163,099,650, a average of $3,261,993 per year. The present annual cost of overcapitalization of the system was placed at more than $6,000,000.

The exhibit explained that the data used was derived largely from the investigation of the Hadley Securities Commission during the Taft administration. This Commission filed a report with the Interstate Commerce Commission which was never published, according to Lauck.

Consolidations Cited.

The present New York Central Railroad resulted from three consolidations, the exhibit said, that of the New York Central Railroad and the Hudson River Railroad in 1869; that of six roads, most of the stock of which was already owned by the New York Cenrtal and Hudson River, with the New York Central and Hudson River by the issue of its capital stock of $2,851,766 for the outstanding stocks of the constituent roads in 1913; and that of the New York Central and Hudson River, the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern, and nine other roads which took the name of the New York Central Railroad Company in 1914.

"In the 1914 merger," the exhibit said, "capital stock of a par value of $249,590,460 was issued as follows: $225,581,066 in exchange, par for par, for stock of the New York Central & Hudson River; $23,590,500 in exchange for outstanding stock of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern of a par value of $4,706,900, on the basis of five shares of the new stock for one share of Lake Shore stock; $474,934 in exchange for minority stock of the other roads merged.

Capitalization in 1869.

"Previous to the consolidation of 1869 the capitalization of the two constituent companies had been increased $12,500,000 without any tangible increase in the properties," the exhibit said. "The par value of their stocks was then $44,815,000. The exhibit then showed that the consolidated company increased this capital stock without adding to the value of the property by $44,428,330 or practically 100 per cent, making a "total over-capitalization of $56,928,330." The report quotes the Interstate Commerce Commission as saying:

"The evidence before us fairly shows that in 1869 the captal stock of the New York Central company contained $9,000,000 which had been issued without the payment of any present consideration and the stock of the Hudson River company had been increased in a like manner by something over $3,000,000. In the consolidation the captal stock of the two companies was further increased without the payment of any present consideration by substantially $45,000,000 issued in proportions agreed upon to the stockholders of the new company. Since that date all issues of capital stock of this company have been for cash at par or above par, but the capital stock contains $57,000,000 par value for which nothing was ever paid."

"Excess" Put at $93,034,026.

"During the period from 1870 to 1910 the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad issued for cash capital stock of a par value of $133,485,200," the exhibit continued. "The market value of this stock, based on contemporaneous quotations, was $174,199,177.17, yet the company realized only $138,093,420.89 in return for it. The difference between the cash received and the market value, amounting to $36,105,696.82, represented bonuses to stockholders and commissions. The property was thus saddled with a permanent capital liability of $36,000,000, for which nothing was received. This amount brings the total excess represented in the capital stock of the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad to $93,034,026.88.

"No part of the above over-capitalization was removed in the consolidation of 1914, as stock of the new company was issued, par for par, in exchange for stock of the New York Central & Hudson River. No further issues of capital stock have been made for cash and it is impossible to determine how much actual value was received in every instance in the numerous exchanges of this company's stock for the stock of other roads.

Bonuses to Stockholders.

"During the years 1898-1900 the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad issued bonds of a par value of $90,578,400 in exchange for Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railroad capital stock of a par value of $45,289,200. The company thereby obligated itself to pay a bonus of $12,148,483.14 more than the value received.

"During 1898-1901 control of the Michigan Central Railroad was acquired by the issue of bonds of a par value of $16,814,300. In terms of the contemporaneous market value of the stock acquired, the New York Central received only 90 per cent of the par value of its bonds issued in this connection, or paid a bonus of $1,926,918.18 for this stock.

"Between 1910 and 1919, the New York Central & Hudson River and the successor New York Central issued for cash various forms of securities of a par value of $226,517,795.48, receiving therefor $217,870,073.90. The market value of these securities was $225,836,533.74. Flotation of these securities cost $8,166,459.84 in underwriting commissions.

"The foregoing items show overcapitalization of this company represented by capital stock as $93,034,026.82, and represented by funded debt as $35,506,650.91, a total of $128,540,677.73."

On the basis of the 5 per cent dividend rate of recent years the annual payment of dividends by the New York Central on capital stock representing investment was said to be $4,651,701.34.

Germany Sending Second Note to U. S. on Reparations.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, April 23.—The German note in answer to the recent American communication on the reparations question will be forwarded to Washington tonight, it was announced this afternoon.

The German note, it is understood, will embody the German counter proposals on the reparations questions.

A Cabinet crisis appears imminent here as a result of the discontent aroused by the Government's failure to consult the Reichstag before asking President Harding of the United States to mediate between Germany and the allies relative to reparations. The position of Dr. Walter Simons, Foreign Minister, is particularly imperiled.

Officials of State Department Silent on Reparations Question.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Germany's new note to the United States on the reparations question had not arrived in Washington tonight, although press dispatches from Berlin said it was dispatched during the day.

Officials at the State Department prior to receipt of the German note refused generally to discuss the reparations question.

One thing appears certain in connection with the reparations question so far as concerns Washington. That is that should a reply be considered necessary to the new German note the nature of the reply will be laid before the diplomatic representatives here of the allied Governments before its dispatch. This course is known to have been followed in the case of Thursday's note to the Berlin Government.

Approval of the course of the American Government with respect to the reparations controversy is believed to have been indicated by the allied diplomats here before the dispatch of Secretary Hughes' reply to the Berlin appeal that President Harding act as mediator and fix the sum Germany must pay.

It became known today that the German request and the American reply were discussed informally by the Secretary of State and the European Ambassadors, and it is understood that the foreign envoys were apprised of the character of the American reply in the interim between the receipt of the German memorandum and the sending of the response.

Germany Replies to Reparations Commission on Gold Reserve.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 23.—Germany, instead of either agreeing or refusing to transfer the gold reserve of the Reichsbank to occupied territory in the Rhineland, as the Allied Reparations Commission had demanded, has offered to agree not to export or permit the exportation of gold from Germany before Oct. 1, next.

Germany's note in reply to the Reparations Commission, delivered to the commission today, in which this offer is tendered, says her proffered agreement would adequately protect the allies, who had demanded the transfer because the second paragraph of article 248 of the Treaty of Versailles, prohibiting the exportation of gold, becomes inoperative May 1.

Chauncey Depew, 87, Says Simple Diet Lengthens Life

He Says That at Dinner He Tastes Everything, but Eats Little—Spends His Evenings at Home.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Chauncey M. Depew, who reached his eighty-seventh birthday today, is firm in the belief that he will reach the century mark, and he expects to acomplish this through what he calls the wholesome way in which he regulates his life.

"In the first place," he said at his home, 27 West Fifty-fourth street, "if I ever had any eccentricities, I've shed them all. A man doesn't have accentricities when he reaches my time of life. He has habits and they ought to be good ones. As for today I am so surrounded by a veritable garden of flowers that I feel like a bud just coming out.

"Now, as to my habits: I have come to a very simple but quite satisfying diet. Save on rare occasions I never touch champagne, though for 40 years I drank a pint of it every night at dinner. Tea I never touch because it keeps me awake. Coffee? Yes, a little in the morning. Roast beef and steaks, of which I am extremely fond, I never eat, because I found they encouraged rheu-

Philosophy of Life.

"The true philosophy of life is this: The more you like a thing the more reason there is for giving it up if you find it isn't good for you. You'll find then that nature will adjust herself to you as you will to nature. She's a good old bird, nature is, if you treat her properly.

"My diet, which is helping to carry me on the long road I am traveling, is very simple. I have the same breakfast every day in the year. It is an orange, one four-minute egg, one-half a corn muffin and a cup of coffee, which is mainly hot milk.

"For luncheon I partake principally of vegetables with no meat and a glass of water for beverage. This is at 1 o'clock. At dinner I taste everything and eat little. Vegetables, fish or fowl and vegetables, are all I have, but I enjoy them immensely. I never eat between meals."

Spends Evenings at Home.

"Practically all my evenings I spend at home save for an occasional visit to a play. Years ago I used to be at a public dinner somewhere or other almost every night in the week. Cards? No, I never play. I remember what Commodore Vanderbilt once said to me. 'Sonny,' he said, 'don't play cards unless you have a card head.' I haven't that, so I never play.

"Two hours every night I devote to reading. First, I take up the newspapers and read them all in the journalistic fashion, which permits me to get through with them quickly but competently. I read the editorials with which I don't agree, and then, as a sort of dessert, the ones which coincide with my views. As for books, I keep pace, I think, with the best thought of the day. I am now reading Wells' 'Outline of History' and Col. Repington's "Reminiscences of the World War." This book is of particular interest to me, as I have met a great number of the personages he mentions.

"A week from tonight the Montauk Club of Brooklyn will give me a dinner and this will be the thirtieth consecutive year the club has thus honored me. And the only thing I have to do in return is make a speech, but, remember, I have had to make a different one every year."

TRAMPS 1500 MILES WITH BODY OF COMPANION, THEN COLLAPSES

Gold Prospector Reaches Home in Michigan With Friend Who Died of Pneumonia.

By the Associated Press.

PLAINWELL, Mich., April 23.—Fred Barker, exhausted from the hardships he endured on his 1500-mile funeral tramp, arrived here early today with the body of his brother-in-law, J. Warde Brown, who died of pneumonia two weeks ago at a frontier trading post in Northern Canada.

Refusing to part with the man who had been his companion in submarine fighting during the world war and in gold prospecting and trapping in the Far North, Barker remained seated in the express car beside the rude coffin during the last lap of the trip.

Barker collapsed after reaching here with the body. He refused to talk of the perils he faced during his trip through forests, down rivers filled with rapids, and along trails in the Far North.

Funeral services for Brown will be held here tomorrow afternoon.

AMNESTY BILL AMENDED BY FRENCH DEPUTIES

Provides for Appeals From Practically All Wartime Courtmartial Sentences.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 23.—After the Chamber of Deputies adopted unanimously today an amendment to the amnesty bill, under which an appeal may be taken "from any and all sentences imposed by courtsmartial during the war upon the simple request of the soldier affected, if living, or his heirs if dead," the general amnesty bill was passed this afternoon. The vote on the measure, which embraces virtually all offenses against the military laws, with the exception of high treason and desertion in the face of the enemy, was 528 for to 14 against it.

Mutineers of the Black Sea fleet are not included and must serve their sentences.

Adoption of the amendment came after a dramatic speech by Deputy Jade of Finistere, who commanded a company throughout the late war. He recalled that before Souan in Champagne, orders came to execute an attack in broad daylight without artillery preparation. Jade refused to send his company over the top, but he was not courtmartialled.

According to the narrative of the deputy-veteran, the officers of the company next in line ordered their men to attack but the latter refused to leave the trenches, saying they preferred to be shot and buried where they were rather than hang on the barbed wire for days. The General commanding the division then instructed the French artillery to turn its guns on the trenches where this company was stationed. The Colonel commanding the artillery, M. Jade said, refused point blank, but he was not courtmartialled.

A few days later, continued the speaker, several men of the company were tried and shot, although a short time previously they had volunteered for dangerous and hazardous missions.

"This execution was abominable," he then shouted, "and I ask the Government to give us guarantees against similar outrages in the future and redress for those condemned now lying in fortresses."

Deputy Ignace, who had opposed the amendment, immediately moved its adoption, Louis Barthou seconded it, and the amendment was voted unanimously.

JOHN SCOTT MEDAL AWARDED TO GOVERNOR OF VERMONT

Same Honor for Dr. E. C. Kendall of Rochester, Minn.; Dr. C. E. K. Mees and Dr. Noguchi.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, April 23.—Gov. James Hartness of Vermont was presented with the John Scott medal, awarded for useful inventions, at today's session of the American Philosophical Society's general meeting here. The honor was in recognition of his flat turret lathe, used in making artillery. The medal is provided for by a fund established by John Scott of Edinburg, Scotland. Others to receive it were:

Dr. Edward Calvin Kendall, Rochester, Minn., for his "biochemical work of high order." His most notable feats were the isolation of the iodine compound in the thyroid and the establishment of the chemical identity of thyroxin.

Dr. Charles Edward Kenneth Mess, Rochester, N. Y., for "special research in the structure of photographic images." Dr. Nideyo Noguchi, Japanese member of the Rockefeller Institute, for work in combating the yellow fever plague.

It was announced that late next month another John Scott medal would be struck and presented to Mme. Curie, who discovered radium.

Quincy Wright, University of Minnesota, was awarded the Henry M. Phillips' prize of $2000 for the best essay on "The Control of the Foreign Relations of the United States; the Relative Rights, Duties and Responsibilities of the President of the Senate and the House, and of the Judiciary, in Theory and Practice." John Matthews of the University of Illinois, was given honorable mention in the essay contest.

Schwab's Parents Married 60 Years.

LORETTO, Pa., April 23.—Mr. and Mrs. John A. Schwab, parents of Charles M. Schwab, steel magnate, celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary yesterday. Loretto, the little village in which Mr. and Mrs. John A. Schwab have lived all their lives, took on a holiday appearance as residents called to pay their respects to the elder Mr. Schwab, who still is engaged in the banking business, and his wife.

KIEL OFFERS CITY COUNSELOR JOB TO HENRY CAULFIELD

Latter Has Not Announced Acceptance or Refusal; Clinton H. Fisk Expected to Succeed Talbert.

WILLIAM BUDER MAY BE NEW TAX ASSESSOR

Office Now Held by Louis Wollbrinck Is Best Financial Plum in List of City Jobs.

Mayor Kiel probably will end the suspense of several applicants for city jobs this week by announcing his appointments. It is expected that these will involve changes in several important offices.

The Mayor announced yesterday that he had offered the office of City Counselor to Henry S. Caulfield, former Congressman, to succeed Charles H. Daues. Gov. Hyde Friday appointed Daues a Judge of the St. Louis Court of Appeals, to fill the vacancy created by the death of Judge George D. Reynolds March 18. Caulfield and the Mayor will confer today or tomorrow, and it is likely that Caulfield will announce his acceptance or refusal of the offer tomorrow.

One appointment which is considered certain is that of Clinton H. Fisk as Director of Streets and Sewers, to succeed Charles Talbert. Fisk was Sewer Commissioner before he entered the army, where he became a Major, and he recently managed the Kiel-on-His-Record Club during the primary and election campaigns. The salary of the director is $8000 a year.

Buder for Assessor.

Another applicant who is regarded as virtually assured of appointment is William Buder, who aspires to be Tax Assessor, an office now held by Louis Wollbrinck. This is the fattest plum which the Mayor has to pass out. The salary is $5000 a year, and fees bring the total to at least $10,000, which is equal to the Mayor's own salary. Buder now is Deputy Assessor. He is a brother of G. A. Buder, owner of the Times, the only daily newspaper to support the Mayor in the campaign.

The case of Supply Commissioner Joseph B. Thomas continues to be the most perplexing one. The Mayor's friends are demanding Thomas' scalp. He supported Hyde for the Republican nomination for Governor when the Mayor was working for E. E. E. McJimsey. Thomas worked for the nomination of Charles E. Mohrstadt for Sheriff when all the Mayor's energies were directed toward nominating John Schmoll. On both occasions, as is known, Thomas picked the winner.

But what the Mayor's friends consider the "last straw" was when Thomas went against the Mayor himself, and supported Robert Burkham for the nomination for Mayor. The Mayor is known to have felt this deeply, and he has told friends that he would under no circumstances reappoint Thomas.

Thomas Has Friends.

On the other hand, Thomas probably has more influential friends than any other appointive city official. By reason of his long residence and activity in the Twenty-eighth Ward, where he is Republican city committeeman, he has built up numerous friendships among men of affairs, and petitions now are being circulated, with marked success, by persons who desire to see him reappointed. Moreover, during the 12 years that Thomas has held the office, the Mayor realizes he has made an exceptionally good record in his official transactions.

Gustav Oetting, a courtroom deputy under Circuit Clerk Nat Goldstein, is said to have been promised Thomas' post. He is identified with the "Courthouse Ring" faction of the party. Other men mentioned for the office are Louis J. Diekmann, Thomas' assistant, and Charles W. Stockhausen, former Alderman from the Fifteenth Ward. Close observers of politics at the city hall believe that the Mayor will permit Thomas to hang on for a while, but will eventually appoint his successor.

Cunliff May Get Place.

Nelson Cunliff, former Park Commissioner, is the favored prospect for the office of Public Welfare, now held by John Schmoll. Mayor Kiel personally admires Cunliff, and it is known that Cunliff can have the office if he will take it. He is now executive secretary of the Home and Housing Corporation.

Director of Public Safety McKelvey, Director of Public Utilities Hooke and E. R. Kinsey, president of the Board of Public Service, are regarded as certain of retaining their positions. Park Commissioner Pape also will be reappointed, it is said.

There is less certainty in the case of Health Commissioner Starkloff, and still less in the instance of Hospital Commissioner Shutt. Dr. Starkloff has been in ill health recently, and has been partially incapacitated much of the time. Dr. Shutt has made several political enemies among those close to the Mayor, for he is given to plain speaking about conditions at the city institutions, and several of his public announcements on the subject have left the politicians aghast. He, however, is another official with powerful connections, and it is not at all unlikely that his dismissal would invoke strong protests from persons connected with the medical profession.

City Register Eugene R. Cuendet is not certain of reappointment, and if Oetting is not made Supply Commissioner, it is possible that he will get this office.

Judges May Remain.

A curious situation exists with regard to the two Police Judges, George E. Mix and Anthony Ittner, into which the amusing element of official pique enters. Both Judges have established a certain reputation as experts in traffic regulations and the like, and have taken active parts in "safety first" movements of various sorts, making speeches and sometimes going to other cities to do it. Some of the politicians are said to feel that the Judges have tried to create an impression that they were above the average political office holder, and held their jobs by virtue of superior knowledge of modern municipal problems, rather than by the plain "pull" which other officials frankly admit constitutes their own stock in trade.

Personally, Mayor Kiel is averse to reappointing either. As an astute politician, however, he is not blind to certain elements of strength which the Judges have cultivated. Furtherefore, he is known not to fancy those men who are seeking to supplant Judges Mix and Ittner. It is expected, therefore, that the Mayor probably will let the two Judges continue to hold office for some time, and will take his leisure in selecting successors who are to his liking.

The much-talked consolidation of jobs which constituted one of the Mayor's principal campaign promises, appears to be receding more and more into the vague future. He is unwilling to dispense with either Hooke or E. E. Wall by combining the duties of Director of Public Utilities and Water Commissioner.

No Consolidations Made.

Similarly, a consolidation of the work of Director of Public Welfare and Park Commissioner would mean the elimination of either Cunliff or Pape, and the Mayor is not ready to let go of either. Like situations exist in other departments. The result is that not a single one of the proposed consolidations is now in sight.

Certain of the directorships, about which there is no secret, are likely to change hands within a few days, but the majority of the changes probably will come by easy and unspectacular stages, this method being in keeping with the Mayor's practice and personal inclination.

Sheehan Twins Secretly Give Away in Excess of $400,000 in Lifetimes

Catholic Church and Charities Principal Beneficiaries; John Sheehan Believed to Be "Donator Ignotus" of $85,000 to St. Louis U.

It has become apparent since the death Thursday of John Sheehan, 88 years old, at his home, 2305 St. Louis avenue, that he and his twin brother, Patrick, who died in 1917, had an agreement between themselves that nothing of the fortune they amassed together in the contracting business should remain at their deaths and that it has been wholly distributed, with virtual secrecy, to various charities and in gifts, chiefly to the Catholic Church.

Friends now recall that at his death Patrick left no will and no estate was probated. John Sheehan Jr., a nephew of the surviving twin who now has died, said yesterday the family believed that John Sheehan similarly left no will or estate.

The sum of the fortune so distributed is not known. Archbishop Glennon said yesterday that the twins had given $400,000 in four gifts of $100,000 each to the church, and at various other times had given smaller sums to various church charities.

Charities That Benefited.

It is known also that they gave generously to Father Dunne's Newsboys' Home, the Little Sisters of the Poor, SS. Mary and Joseph's Orphan Asylum, the Sisters of the Good Shepherd, St. Ann's Foundling Asylum and the Negro Orphan Asylum in St. Louis County. It is known also that their benefactions were not limited to the Catholic Church, but that they gave to charities of other denominations as well.

The Archbishop said the gifts of the Sheehans were so widely distributed that he could not specify all the institutions which they had aided. It is known that one of their $100,000 gifts was for the building of the chapel and altar of Kenrick Seminary in St. Louis County and that they were among the largest contributors to the building fund of the new Cathedral. One of their recent gifts was $10,000 towards the support of the school of Sacred Heart Parish in which they resided. All gifts were made jointly by the brothers prior to Patrick's death.

In preaching the funeral sermon over the body of Patrick in 1917, the Archbishop declared: "We have about 35 forms of charities in the city. None of these were unknown to the deceased." Then, recounting a long list of other St. Louisans who had given generously to the church, the Archbishop said: "Taking this long history of these many deeds of charity and benevolence, the place which the deceased and his devoted brother take is no second place."

Unknown Donor to University.

When the movement, still in progress, to endow St. Louis University with $3,000,000 was began, it was announced that an unnamed donor had contributed $20,000. Later it was determined that those who gave in excess of $10,000 were to be designated as Founders of the University and their names perpetuated in a bronze tablet to be placed at the entrance to the group of university buildings. Thereafter, it was announced that the unnamed donor has given an additional $10,000 toward the endowment.

The committee having in charge the composition of the bronze tablet sought to learn the identity of this benefactor of the university and demanded his name.

"For the present he shall be unnamed," The Rev. William F. Robison, S. J., president of the University, said. He added that the unnamed donor had provided for his family and was proceeding to distribute the remainder of his fortune in gifts and charities.

The commiteee remembered that a card index was kept of all donors and eagerly searched for the identity of the unnamed benefactor there. They came upon a card upon which the $20,000 and $10,000 gifts were recorded. It read: "Donator Ignotus" (Unknown Donor).

Later there came from "Donator Ignotus" Liberty bonds of a face value of $55,000, with the provision that the bonds be held in trust until his death whereupon they were to become the property of the fund. Thus the total of the gifts of this one man became $85,000.

Belief That Sheehan Was Donor.

Those persons most familiar with St. Louis University affairs believe that "Donator Ignotus" was John Sheehan. A reporter for the Post-Dispatch asked the Rev. Father Robison if this was not the fact. He declined to affirm or deny it. "An announcement would jeopardize the security of other anonymous contributors," he said.

It is noted that, when it was learned that a prior engagement made it impossible for Archbishop Glennon to preach the funeral sermon for John Sheehan, as he did for Patrick, because of an engagement which will take him to Kansas City, the Rev. Father Robison was selected. The services will be tomorrow at 9 a. m. at the Sacred Heart Church, Twenty-fifth and University streets. The requiem mass will be said by the Rev. John P. Spencer, assisted by the Rev. M. S. Ryan, president of Kenrick Seminary, and the Rev. James Douglas. The Rev. Martin S. Brennan will be master of ceremonies.

The greatest distinction coming to the twins as a result of their gifts has come from Kenrick Seminary, where it has been ordered that so long as the seminary exists each priest educated there, shall, on completion of his course, say a mass for the twins.

The twins lived on the site of the home on St. Louis avenue from 1849 and themselves built the present structure there. They are described as having been "typical business men," engrossed during their waking hours in their business. This is held to account for the fact that neither married. In their later years their charities absorbed them though they conducted them with self-effacement and no public announcement. By nature reticent, they were abnormally silent on the subject of their gifts and so far as is known kept no record of them.

FIRST FULL-BLOODED INDIAN ADMITTED TO U. S. CITIZENSHIP

Thomas Blackbird, a Sioux of Wyoming, Naturalized Through His Service in World War.

By the Associated Press.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., April 23.—The first full-blooded Indian ever admitted to citizenship in the United States, according to officials, has been given complete naturalization here by Judge John Biner of the Federal District Court. He is Thomas Blackbird, 23 years old, of the Sioux tribe, a veteran of the world war.

Blackbird was admitted under an act of Congress passed Nov. 5, 1919, by the provisions of which any Indian of legal age who has served in the war may, upon application, be admitted to the rights of citizenship without first making any formal declaration.

The Indian may not vote, hold office or exercise any other privileges reserved for other citizens.

JOHN P. YOUNG, FOR 43 YEARS PACIFIC COAST EDITOR, DIES

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 23.—Arrangements were being made today for the funeral of John Philip Young, for nearly 43 years managing editor of the San Francisco Chronicle, who died early this morning. He was 71 years old. His death was due to paralysis.

Young was an economist and journalist and was instrumental in building up one of the great metropolitan journals in the West and also wrote a number of books.

Born in Philadelphia, Aug. 9, 1849, an adventurous life preceded his advent into journalism. A runaway at 16, he enlisted in the navy, was recovered by his parents and placed in a Philadelphia mercantile establishment. The quiet existence palled, and soon he was in Arizona. After thrilling experiences with Indians he went to San Diego. Mercantile work was given up for business management of the San Diego Union. He was thrust into the editorial field by sickness of the editor,

FIREMEN TO RESIST PAY CUT AND OTHER M'KELVEY PLANS

Proposed Changes by Public Safety Director in Establishing 8-Hour Day Arouse Opposition.

FURTHER INDICATIONS OF OUSTER OF CHIEF

Panzer Not Consulted by His Superior in Working Out His Scheme to Meet Requirements of New Law.

Further indications that Director of Public Safety McKelvey intends to dismiss William G. Panzer as Chief of the Fire Department at an early date were given yesterday, simultaneously with an announcement by McKelvey that he would urge the adoption of a plan to employ 310 more firemen, to reduce the pay of all firemen approximately 28 per cent, and to make other drastic changes in connection with establishing the eight-hour day in the department.

The announcement aroused vehement opposition from the Firemen's Union, and Adam Koeln, the president, said the firemen would use every effort to avert the proposed reduction in pay. The ordinance establishing the eight-hour day was passed by the initiative at the last city election, after the Board of Aldermen had rejected it, and the firemen were its most active proponents.

Ultimatum as to Budget.

At a meeting of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment last Wednesday, Comptroller Nolte flatly told McKelvey and Chief Panzer that $1,475,500 would be available for firemen's salaries this fiscal year, and that any arrangement they might make would have to conform to that figure, which is only $15,000 larger than last year's appropriation.

At the same time, Associate City Counselor Harry Hamilton warned all parties concerned that the ordinance was in effect, and would have to be obeyed, so there could be no turning back even if either side desired to so do. McKelvey and Chief Panzer were told it was plainly up to them to devise some plan for instituting the eight-hour day within the available revenue, and this was the plan which McKelvey announced yesterday.

Chief Panzer said that McKelvey had not consulted him in working it out, and McKelvey admitted that this was true. In view of this, and taken together with previous differences between the two officials, McKelvey was asked if, in the event of his reappointment by Mayor Kiel (which is considered certain) he would reappoint Panzer.

"See me after I'm reappointed," he rejoined grimly.

Relations Have Been Strained.

Without any serious controversy having occurred between them, relations between McKelvey and Chief Panzer have been strained almost ever since the Chief was appointed, three and one-half years ago. Possessed alike of brusk temperaments and peppery dispositions, they have frequently rubbed each other the wrong way, and McKelvey has made no secret of his satisfaction in occasionally "sitting on" Chief Panzer, who is his subordinate.

One of the four firemen whom McKelvey did consult in arriving at his plan was District Chief Frank Dunsford, who is believed to be McKelvey's choice for Panzer's office.

McKelvey's plan contemplates the following drastic changes: Reduction of the pay of Captains from $170 a month to $110; engineers, $150 to $110; privates, $140 to $100; watchmen, $115 to $100; demotion of 75 lieutenants to the rank of privates, thus cutting their pay from $150 to $100 a month.

In addition, it would abolish all vacations and holidays, permit the firemen no time off for meals; would result in the retirement of several superannuated firemen who have been employed as watchmen, and would increase the membership of the department from 852 men to 1162. The firemen now have an annual vacation of two weeks on pay. They work 48 hours and are then off for 24, and have meal hours.

The 11 district chiefs would lose their automobile drivers, and the positions of 50 watchmen, except those in city institutions, would be abolished. Those watchmen who are physically equal to duty on the fire lines would be so assigned, and those who are not would have to retire on their pensions of $50 a month, McKelvey said.

Firemen would work seven days a week. There would be three eight-hour shifts, with each man remaining continuously at his engine house during the eight, except when called out on duty, in case the plan is adopted. The beds in the engine houses would be transferred to city institutions.

Aldermen May Stop Plan.

There was some doubt at the city hall yesterday whether the Board of Aldermen would acquiesce in all the steps proposed by McKelvey. Koeln was certain that the firemen could defeat the pay reductions.

"We feel that we are entitled to the eight-hour day without all these penalties," he said. "Certainly the voters did not intend for our pay to be cut when they voted to give us the eight-hour day. This is a punishment rather than an improvement."

Panzer succeeded Frank Henderson as Chief, the latter having succeeded Chief Swingley about six months before. Panzer has been in the department about 30 years, having worked his way up from the ranks. On this account, if for no other, he has been personally popular with the men of the department. It is customary, in ousting a Chief to dismiss him outright, but it is possible to demote him.

$5000 RAISED FOR FAMILIES OF SLAIN CLAYTON OFFICERS

Widow of Eugene Conrey Has Been Working as Scrubwoman Since Shooting.

A fund of $5000 raised by the Watchman-Advocate, a Clayton newspaper, which is owned by Fred Essen, for the benefit of the families of Benjamin Corner, Marshal of Clayton, and Eugene S. Conrey, night Sheriff of St. Louis County, who were killed Aug. 30 last by men in an automobile whom they accosted, will be divided this week.

Conrey's family consists of his widow, Mrs. Eugene Conrey, who resides at 319A Meramec street, Clayton, and his mother and 14-year-old daughter by a former marriage who live at 124 Meramec street, Clayton. Corner left a widow and four children, three of whom are employed, the youngest being 13 years and the oldest 24.

The plan, as now determined, is to divide the sum one-half to the relatives of each man and to divide the Conrey half between the widow and the mother and child.

Conrey's widow recently has been working as a scrubwoman at Washington University at $50 a month. She said that $500 insurance which she had received had been expended for debts incurred by her husband in running for the Republican nomination as Constable of Central Township, and that most of $500 voted by the city of Clayton had gone for her husband's funeral, the remainder being a small sum which was divided equally between herself and Conrey's mother and daughter. She said that she had worked in a glove factory until it closed.

TRAINS STALL IN SUBWAY FLOODED BY BROKEN MAIN

600 Passengers Are Led From Cars to Exits Through Rising Water.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 23.—The Lexington avenue subway near Spring street was flooded today by the bursting of a water main. Excitement followed as passengers tried to scramble out of stalled trains.

The accident occurred about 9 o'clock during the rush hour. At 10:30 officials of the Interborough Rapid Transit Co. said the break had been located and pumps were being used to drain the tube.

All trains between the Grand Central Station and Brooklyn Bridge were halted by the automatic safety block system. Passengers on a stalled express train near the Bleecker street station, a short distance from the scene of the break, left the cars and crossed the tracks on improvised board platforms. Many were drenched when they reached the street.

Five trains stopped near the break. Passengers on one train became frantic, the police said. Women screamed and fought to get out of the cars and several fainted.

Traffic officer Harry Kupfrian, stationed near Astor place, took charge of the rescue work. Assisted by company employes, he saw that more than 600 passengers were taken from the cars and led to exits. Two women and one man remained in one car for some time, saying they were afraid to leave.

CARELESSNESS CHARGE AGAINST CHAUFFEUR IN WOMAN'S DEATH

Godel Kalenoff, 1630 Biddle street, a chauffeur for the Wirth Laundry Co., was held on a charge of criminal carelessness by the Coroner yesterday in the death Friday at the city hospital of Mrs. Esther Frantzel, 72 years old, of 1311 North Eighth street, 90 minutes after she had been struck at Eighth and O'Fallon streets by a truck driven by Kalenoff.

Joe Galansky, a grocer of 818 O'Fallon street, a passenger on the truck, testified that Kalenoff was making a complete turn at the intersection of Eighth and O'Fallon streets at a moderate rate of speed. He said that Mrs. Frantzel was crossing the street at the proper place for pedestrians to cross.

Depuuty Coroner Dever stated that a driver making a complete turn should have his automobile in perfect control.

CARRIES FORD ENGINE INTO 3 COURTS, BUT LOSES SUIT

If lawsuits were decided in favor of the man who carries the most weight, Harry Coop would have been given a verdict against Wesley Cunningham at Jerseyville. Coop carried a Ford engine into court and from court to court, but the decision went aaginst him and all that he got was the privilege of carrying it away.

Coop sued Cunningham for $300, alleging that Cunningham ruined the Coop engine when he tested it after making repairs. He carried the engine, in three parts into Justice Thatcher's Court to show how it had been damaged. Cunningham carried the case to Justice Bertram on a change of venue and Coop carried his engine to Justice Bertram's Court, a block away and up a long flight of stairs.

Another change of venue then was taken to Justice Van Pelt, but Coop balked. To spare Coop taking the engine to Van Pelt, Van Pelt took his Court to the Ford. By the time the case was over Coop had recuperated sufficiently to carry it away.

CHINA HAS FOUND U. S. BEST FRIEND, DR. SZE DECLARES

Chinese Minister Tells of Gratitude of His Country for Many Evidences of American Generosity.

ASKS FOR AID FOR FAMINE SUFFERERS

Says in Odeon Address That Political Differences in China Have Been Forgotten in Relief Work.

CHINESE MINISTER WHO VISITED CITY YESTERDAY

DR. SAO-KE ALFRED SZE.

Dr. Sao-ke Alfred Sze, Chinese Minister to the United States, was in St. Louis for 16 hours yesterday and delivered a series of addresses on relations between China and the United States, the Chinese political situation and the famine in his native country, ending with an address at the Odeon last night on "China's Gratitude to this Nation."

In an interview with a Post-Dispatch reporter last night he praised America's attitude in the Shantung affair and said that China, because of this attitude, is glad the United States has not ratified the peace treaty.

In the Odeon address he told of the distress in the famine district and urged Americans to make contributions of whatever size they can afford to save lives in his country. He dwelt on the friendship between the two nations.

Tells of White House Aid.

"I want to express my gratitude to St. Louis for the reception accorded me today as the representative of my country," he said. "I want also to express the gratitude of my country to yours for the interest you have shown in us. The friendship between our countries has been illustrated in what President Harding has said. He has appealed lately to the citizens to aid in the famine relief. It has been even a personal appeal, for at the White House Mrs. Harding has ordered that one dish shall be removed from the daily menu in order to save and swell the fund for the relief of the starving.

"Soon after I came to this country last I received a letter from a man entirely unknown to me, in which he inclosed money for the fund, saying that he had been ill and unfortunate, but that he wanted to aid those who were worse off.

"Can there be more noble examples of the feeling of sympathy between our peoples?

"So long as the United States remains a vast Asiatic influence, with its great coast line facing the east, and its islands of Hawaii, Guam and the Philippine Islands, I think we should have not only friendship, but co-operation.

"The question is asked, why are Americans and Chinese friendly as peoples? The reason is by no means a selfish one. The characteristics of both peoples are the same. Both you and the Chinese love peace and justice more than any other country on the earth. The whole Confucian culture centers on moral force.

"Both nations are firm believers in sincerity. Neither one likes to say 'yes' when 'no' is meant. As proof of that I want to say that I come to you with all the cards on the table, and no secret agreement in my pocket.

Differences Forgotten in Relief.

"I have been asked what China itself is doing to help the famine sufferers. You have heard much as to the political differences between the North and the South of my country. In the relief of this famine there is no difference. No differences because of religion have been allowed to interfere in the work. Catholics, Protestants, Confucians, Jews, Mohammedans and Buddhists are working side by side. It is a case of 'blood is thicker than water' and there is no time to quarrel—all must unite for China.

"The Government railways have given free transportation to supplies for the famine area, and offered free transportation to emigrants leaving there. We had two drives for funds in China and the people responded freely.

Dr. Sze said that the famine district extends as far as from St. Louis to New York. After he closed his address he went to a box occupied by Ambassador Francis and party and watched moving pictures of famine conditions. Bishop Tuttle of the Episcopal Church, was seated on the stage with the Minister's party. A high school orchestra and chorus gave several selections during the evening.

Says U. S. Is Most Friendly.

Dr. Sze in his interview, said:

"From experience the Chinese people have found America to be more friendly than other countries. They have always found that America stands for justice and fair play in her dealings with China. In time of need China naturally turns to America for sympathy and support.

"Let me give you instances of the United States living up to the spirit of the treaty. In 1900 the Boxer outbreak in Pekin was suppressed by foreign troops. With the exception of the United States, all the Powers demanded as large an indemnity as China could bear. America alone counseled moderation. Your great Secretary of State, John Hay, used every effort to obtain a reduction of the heavy burden laid upon China, but unfortunately in vain.

"Actuated by a high sense of justice and fair play, the United States afterward remitted a large portion of the indemnity allotted to America. In recognition of this noble act, China has devoted this large sum to the education of her youth, thus raising a monument to American magnanimity more enduring than marble or bronze.

"For the last 10 years, the Chinese Government has been sending every year, according to a well-laid plan, about 100 students to the United States for the purpose of giving them a good, liberal education in American colleges and universities. Most of these students remain about five years, an dthen return to China. During the last 10 years, about 1000 students, in round numbers, have received their training in American colleges and universities under the auspices of the Chinese Government.

Discusses Shantung Award.

"A more recent instance is the universal comdemnation by the American people of the Shantung award in the peace settlement of the world war. China alone among all the allied and associated Powers refused to sign the Versailles treaty. You all know that Shantung from time immemorial has always been an integral part of China. The Chinese people look upon Shantung in the same light as the Christian people all over the world look upon Palestine. By taking away China's rights in that province, the Versailles treaty has raised a storm of indignation throughout the length and breadth of the land. It is gratifying to note that public sentiment in America supports China in this regard. The refusal of the United States to ratify the peace treaty, therefore, has called forth innumerable expressions of appreciation and resolutions of thanks from provincial assemblies, municipal bodies, chambers of commerce and religious societies throughout China."

Guest of Cornell Alumni.

Dr. Sze went to the Odeon from the University Club, where he had been the guest of Cornell University alumni of St. Louis at dinner.

He attended Cornell and returned to China in 1902, when he became secretary to the Viceroy. He was director of Northern railways of China in 1908, senior counselor to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in 1910, and Minister to London in 1914. He remained at the Court of St. James until about a month ago, when he came to this country to take charge of the legation at Washington, D. C. He was one of the five Chinese delegates to the peace conference.

He is accompanied on his present journey by Dr. George Sherwood Eddy, former secretary for Asia of the International Y. M. C. A.; Dr. William Hiram Foulkes, general secretary of the New Era Movement of the Presbyterian Church, and H. N. Tong, secretary of legation. The party is making the trip in behalf of the China Famine Fund for the relief of 5,000,000 Chinese in five Northern provinces who are the victims of famine. They arrived from Chicago yesterday morning and departed for Cincinnati shortly before midnight.

Chinese Aid in War Cited.

Dr. Eddy delivered the opening address at the Odeon. He said the famine area was one rich in natural resources, but the natives were unable to take advtange of these. Coal is one of the most important undeveloped resources, he said. He urged support of the famine fund because the district that is now suffering is the district that furnished grain for the allied Powers in the world war and sent 360,000 coolies to France to aid the armies, he said. When this country had its United War Work Campaign it asked China to contribute $100,000, Dr. Eddy said, and the response was $1,000,000, gold, cabled immediately. Dr. Foulkes also urged contributions to the famine fund.

About 600 persons, including a number of Chinese, attended the Odeon meeting.

"In five great agricultural provinces not a drop of rain fell from October, 1919, to October, 1920, and there was a failure of the crops. Naturally, famine followed. If our people can have help now to pass over the crisis, which is just at hand, they will successfully pass through the famine period, for a good crop is coming. The great danger lies in the possibility that the farmers will gather the harvest prematurely, in their hunger."

Among those who greeted Dr. Sze at Union Station and took breakfast with him at Hotel Statler, were Ambassador Francis, President Carter of the Chamber of Commerce, W. Palmer Clarkson, local treasurer of the China Famine Fund; President Aloe of the Board of Aldermen, and four Chinese members of the Chamber of Commerce, namely, Lang Gee, Jeu Tom, Lee Yuen Chung and Joe Ling, Merchants. Cornell alumni also were represented.

After breakfast the party visited Mayor Kiel at the city hall, and received the freedom of the city; then Dr. Sze returned to the Statler to address an interdenominational group of clergymen, laying emphasis on the good work of missionaries. At noon he addressed the Members' Conference of the Chamber of Commerce at luncheon at the Statler along lines similar to the quoted interview. Afterward the party went for an automobile tour of the city, a visit to the National League baseball game and a tea and reception given by women at the Art Museum.

"Friendship in Every Way."

"I bring you a message of friendship and good will," Dr. Sze said before the Chamber of Commerce. "Friendship not in the sense used generally by diplomats, but friendship in every way. I do not come talking about open friendship and carrying a secret agreement in my pocket. I take it that to the American people China is no longer a mere political expression."

Dr. Eddy and Dr. Foulkes spoke also at the luncheon, urging contribution to the famine fund, the campaign for which will end here next Wednesday, "Chinese Life Saving day." Ambassador Francis, who was president of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition Association, told of the making of a moving picture of the World's Fair, which is to be shown at a theater this week. The film is made up of "still" photographs of scenes of action and a bit of motion picture film made in 1904 which belongs to the Missouri Historical Society.

The first name of Dr. Sao-ke Alfred Sze is pronounced phonetically, and his surname is broadly pronounced, "Zee." Flags of the Chinese republic were displayed in his honor at a number of places. They have five narrow, horizontal stripes, colored red, yellow, blue, white and black, from top to bottom.

NEW POLICE RULES DEFENDED BY THE BOARD PRESIDENT

Miller Says They Are More Expansive Than the Law and Give More Rights to Prisoners.

"NECESSARY TO CONTROL BONDSMEN"

In Regard to Criticism by Newspapers Asserts "We Don't Care What the Press Says."

President Miller of the Police Board was asked by a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday to explain the new rules issued by him for the handling of prisoners at police headquarters, in some respects in which they appear to conflict with the State statutes.

It was pointed out in a Post-Dispatch editorial yesterday that section 3200 of the Revised Statutes of 1919 provides that persons arrested may not be detained longer than 20 hours without issuance of a warrant, and that such persons shall be permitted to consult with counsel and other persons, and that officers who refuse this privilege to prisoners shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

One of Miller's new rules provides that prisoners shall not be permitted to talk with lawyers or bondsmen, except in the presence of a policeman, who shall report to his superior officer anything suspicious that he may hear.

Statement by Miller.

"We go farther than this law with our rules," Miller said. "We make it mandatory to inquire who the prisoner wants to see and we make every effort to get that person. We have a small contingent fund we are going to use to see that prisoners communicate with persons they want.

"Our rules are more expansive than the law and give more rights than the law does. In cases of any importance it generally has been the custom to go to one of the Chiefs for permission to release prisoners. The rules are necessary to control bondsmen.

"We have been criticised by the press for these rules but they are the best things that ever happened. We can get along without the press, but the press cannot get along without us, and we don't care what the press says."

Object of New Rules.

Miller did not discuss his rules in detail. They are 17 in number, and were announced as being intended to shield prisoners, particularly first offenders, from the impositions of professional bondsmen. Bondsmen in the past have been accustomed to receive information from members of the Police Department as to arrests, and have been informed also of the amounts of money found in searching prisoners. In some cases, they have charged excessive amounts for bonds, on the strength of information that a prisoner had a sum sufficient to meet such an exaction.

To meet this practice, the new rules provide that no person connected with the Police Department shall give any information about any person's arrest; and that no information as to the sums of money taken from prisoners shall be furnished.

"The Peace Negotiations: A Personal Narrative"

Former Secretary of State Goes Into Details of His Opposition to the Phrase Self-Determination and Describes How It Constituted a Danger to World.

Though a Splendid Piece of Idealistic Preaching It Was Not Practical World Politics, He Says, Because All People Are Not Entitled to Practice It.

By Robert Lansing.

Former Secretary of State in President Wilson's Cabinet.

(Copyright, 1921, by Houghton, Mifflin Co. Reproduced by arrangement with Houghton, Mifflin Co.)

THIS discussion of the right of "self-determination," which was one of the bases of peace which President Wilson declared in the winter of 1918, and which was included in the modifying clause of his guaranty as originally drafted, is introduced for the purpose of showing the reluctance which I felt in accepting his guidance in the adoption of a principle so menacing to peace and so impossible of practical application. As a matter of fact I never discussed the subject with Mr. Wilson as I purposed doing, because a situation arose on Jan. 10, 1919, which discouraged me from volunteering to him advice on matters which did not directly pertain to legal questions and to the international administration of legal justice.—ROBERT LANSING.

CHAPTER X.

Self-Determination.

THE mutual guaranty which was advocated by President Wilson appears in article 3 of his original draft of a Covenant. It reads as follows:

"ARTICLE III.

"The Contracting Powers unite in guaranteeing to each other political independence and territorial integrity; but it is understood between them that such territorial readjustments, if any, as may in the future become necessary by reason of changes in present racial relationships, pursuant to the principle of self-determination, and also such territorial readjustments as may in the judgment of three-fourths of the delegates be demanded by the welfare and manifest interest of the peoples concerned, may be effected if agreeable to those peoples; and that territorial changes may in equity involve material compensation. The Contracting Powers accept without reservation the principle that the peace of the world is superior in importance to every question of political jurisdiction or boundary."

In the revised draft, which he laid before the Commission on the League of Nations at its first session, article 3 became article 7. It is as follows:

"ARTICLE 7.

"The High Contracting Parties undertake to respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all States members of the league."

The guaranty was finally incorporated in the Treaty of Peace as article 10. It reads:

"ARTICLE 10.

"The members of the league undertake to respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all members of the league. In case of any such aggression or in case of any threat or danger of such aggression, the Council shall advise upon the means by which this obligation shall be fulfilled."

Revision of Original Draft.

In the revision of the original draft the modifying clause providing for future territorial redajustments was omitted. It does not appear in article 7 of the draft which was presented to the Commission on the League of Nations and which formed the basis of its deliberations. In addition to this modification, the words "unite in guaranteeing" in article 3 became "undertake to respect and preserve" in article 7. These changes are only important in that they indicate a disposition to revise the article to meet the wishes, and to remove to an extent the objections, of some of the foreign delegates who had prepared plans for a league, or at least had definite ideas as to the purposes and functions of an international organization.

It was generally believed that the elimination of the modifying clause from the President's original form of guaranty was chiefly due to the opposition of the statesmen who represented the British Empire in contradistinction to those who reresented the self-governing British Dominions. It was also believed that this opposition was caused by an unwillingness on their part to recognize, or to apply as a right the principle of "self-determination" in arranging possible future changes of sovereignty over territories.

I do not know the arguments which were used to induce the President to abandon this phrase and to strike it from his article of guaranty. I personally doubt whether the objection to the words "self-determination" was urged upon him. Whatever reasons were advanced by his foreign colleagues, they were successful in freeing the covenant from the phrase. It is to be regretted that the influence, which was sufficient to induce the President to eliminate from his proposed guaranty the clause containing a formal acceptance of the principle of "self-determination," was not exerted or else was not potent enough to obtain from him an open disavowal of the principle as a right standard for the determination of sovereign authority. Without such a disavowal the phrase remained as one of the general bases upon which a just peace should be negotiated. It remained a precept of the international creed which Mr. Wilson proclaimed while the war was still in progress, for he had declared, in an address delivered on Feb. 11, 1918, before a joint session of the Senate and House of Representatives, that "self-determination is not a mere phrase. It is an imperative principle of action which statesmen will henceforth ignore at their peril."

Adding Fuel to World Flame.

"Self-determination" is as right in theory, as the more famous phrase "the consent of the governed," which has for three centuries been repeatedly declared to be sound by political philosophers and has been generally accepted as just by civilized peoples, but which has been for three centuries commonly ignored by statesmen because the right could not be practically applied without imperiling national safety, always the paramount consideration in international and national affairs. The two phrases mean substantially the same thing and have to an extent been used interchangeably by those who advocate the principle as a standard of right. "Self-determination" was not a new thought. It was a restatement of the old one.

Under the present political organization of the world, based as it is on the idea of nationality, the new phrase is as unsusceptible of universal application as the old one was found to be. Fixity of national boundaries and of national allegiance, and political stability would disappear if this principle was uniformly applied. Impelled by new social conditions, by economic interests, by racial prejudices, and by the various forces which affect society, change and uncertainty would result from an attempt to follow the principle in every case to which it is possible to apply it.

Among my notes I find one of Dec. 20, 1918—that is, one week after the American Commission landed in France—in which I recorded my thoughts concerning certain phrases of epigrams of the President, which he had declared to be bases of peace, and which I considered to contain the seeds of future trouble. In regard to the asserted right of "self-determination" I wrote:

"When the President talks of 'self-determination' what unit has he in mind? Does he mean a race, a territorial area, or a community? Without a definte unit which is practical aplication of this principle is dangerous to peace and stability?"

Menace of Self-Determination.

Ten days later (Dec. 30) the frequent repetition of the pharase in the press and by members of certain groups and unofficial delegations, who were in Paris seeking to obtain hearings before the conference, caused me to write the following:

"The more I think about the President's declaration as to the right of 'self-determination,' the more convinced I am of the danger of putting such ideas into the minds of certain races. It is bound to be the basis of impossible demands on the peace congress and create trouble in many lands.

"What effect will it have on the Irish, the Indians, the Egyptians, and the nationalists among the Boers? Will it not breed discontent, disorder, and rebellion? Will not the Mohammedans of Syrie and Palestine and possibly of Morocco and Tripoli rely on it? How can it be harmonized with Zionism, to which the President is practically committed?

"The phrase is simply loaded with dynamite. It will raise hopes which can never be realized. It will, I fear, cost thousands of lives. In the end it is bound to be discredited, to be called the dream of an idealist who failed to realize the danger until too late to check those who attempt to put the principle in force. What a calamity that the phrase was ever uttered! What misery it will cause!"

Since the foregoing notes were written the impracticability of the universal or even of the general application of the principle has been fully demonstrated. Mr. Wilson resurrected "the consent of the governed" regardless of the fact that history denied its value as a practical guide in modern political relations. He proclaimed it in the phrase "self-determination," declaring it to be an "imperative principle of action." He made it one of the bases of peace. And yet, in the negotiations at Paris and in the formulation of the foreign policy of the United States, he has by his acts denied the existence of the right other than as the expression of a moral precept, as something to be desired, but generally unattainable in the lives of nations. In the actual conduct of affairs, in the practical and concrete relations between individuals and governments, it doubtless exercises and should exercise a measure of influence, but it is not a controlling influence.

Self-Determination Ignored Perforce.

In the Treaty of Versailles with Germany the readjustment of the general boundaries, by which the sovereignty over millions of persons of German blood was transferred to the new states of Poland and Czecho-Slovakia, and the practical cession to the empire of Japan of the port of Kiao-Chau and control over the economic life of the Province of Shantung are striking examples of the abandonment of the principle.

In the treaty of Saint-Germain the Austrial Tyrol was ceded to the kingdom of Italy against the known will of substantially the entire population of that region.

In both the treaty of Versailles and the treaty of Saint-Germain Austria was denied the right to form a political union with Germany, and when an article of the German Constitution of August, 1919, contemplating a "reunion" of "German Austria" with the German Empire was objected to by the Supreme Council, then in session at Paris, as in contradiction of the terms of the treaty with Germany, a protocol was signed on Sept. 22, 1919, by plenipotentiaries of Germany and the five principal Allied and Associated Powers, declaring the article in the Constitution null and void. There could hardly be a more open repudiation of the alleged right of "self-determination" than this refusal to permit Austria to unite with Germany however unanimous the wish of the Austrian people for such union.

But Mr. Wilson even further discredited the phrase by adopting a policy toward Russia which ignored the principle. The peoples of Esthonia, Latvia, Lithuania, the Ukraine, Georgia and Azerbaidjan have by blood, language and racial traits elements of difference which give to each of them in more or less degree the character of a distinct nationality. These peoples all possess aspirations to become independent states, and yet, throughout the negotiations at Paris and since that time, the Government of the United States has repeatedly refused to recognize the right of the inhabitants of these territories to determine for themselves the sovereignty under which they shall live. It has, on the contrary, declared in favor of a "Great Russia" comprising the vast territory of the old empire except the province which belonged to the dismembered Kingdom of Poland and the lands included within the present boundaries of the Republic of Finland.

President's Policy the Right One.

I do not mention the policy of President Wilson as to an undivided Russia by way of criticism because I believe the policy was and has continued to be the right one. The reference to it is made for the sole purpose of pointing out another example of Mr. Wilson's frequent departure without explanation from his declared standard for the determination of political authority and allegiance. I think that it must be conceded that he has by his acts proved that "self-determination" is "a mere phrase" which ought to be discarded as misleading because it cannot be practically applied.

It may be pointed out as a matter of special interest to the student of American history that, if the right of "self-determination" were sound in principle and uniformly applicable in establishing political allegiance and territorial sovereignty, the endeavor of the Southern States to secede from the American Union in 1861 would have been wholly justifiable; and, conversely, the Northern States, in forcibly preventing secession and compelling inhabitants of states composing the Confederacy to remain under the authority of the Federal Government, would have perpetrated a great and indefensible wrong against the people of the South by depriving them of a right to which they were by nature entitled. This is the logic of the application of the principle of "self-determination" to the political rights at issue in the American Civil War.

I do not believe that there are many Americans of the present generation who would support the proposition that the South was inherently right and the North was inherently wrong in that great conflict. There were, at the time when the sections were arrayed in arms against each other, and there may still be, differences of opinion as to the legal right of secession under the Constitution of the United States, but the inherent right of a people of a State to throw off at will their allegiance to the Federal Union and resume complete sovereignty over the territory of the State was never urged as a conclusive argument. It was the legal right and not the natural right which was emphasized as justifying those who took up arms in order to disrupt the Union. But if an American citizen denies that the principle of "self-determination" can be rightfully applied to the affairs of his own country, how can he consistently maintain that it is a right inseparable from a true conception of political liberty and therefore universally applicable, just in principle, and wise from the practical point of view?

Not Wise for All Peoples.

Of course, those who subscribe to "self-determination" and advocate it as a great truth fundamental to every political society organized to protect and promote civil liberty, do not claim it for races, peoples, or communities whose state of barbarism or ignorance deprive them of the capacity to choose intelligently their political affiliations. As to peoples or communities, however, who do possess the intelligence to make a rational choice of political allegiance, no exception is made, so far as words go, to the undeviating application of the principle. It is the affirmation of an unqualified right. It is one of those declarations of principle which sounds true, which in the abstract may be true, and which appeals strongly to man's innate sense of moral right and to his conception of natural justice, but which, when the attempt is made to apply it in every case, becomes a source of political instability and domestic disorder and not infrequently a cause of rebellion.

In the settlement of territorial rights and of the sovereignty to be exercised over particular regions there are several factors which require consideration. International boundaries may be drawn along ethnic, economic, geographic, historic, or strategic lines. One or all of these elements may influence the decision, but whatever argument may be urged in favor of any one of these factors, the chief object in the determination of the sovereignty to be exercised within a certain territory is national safety. National safety is as dominant in the life of a nation as self-preservation is in the life of an individual.

Reluctant to Follow Wilson's Judgment.

The national safety and the economic welfare of the United States were at stake in the War of Secession, although the attempt to secede resulted from institutional rather than ethnic causes. The same was true when in the Papineau Rebellion of 1837 the French inhabitants of the Province of Lower Canada attempted for ethnic reasons to free themselves from British sovereignty. Had the right of "self-determination" in the latter case been recognized as "imperative" by Great Britain, the national life and economic growth of Canada would have been strangled because the lines of communication and the commercial routes to the Atlantic seaboard would have been across an alien state. The future of Canada, with its vast undeveloped resources, its very life as a British colony, depended upon denying the right of "self-determination." It was denied and the French inhabitants of Quebec were forced against their will to accept British sovereignty.

Experience has already demonstrated the unwisdom of having given currency to the phrase "self-determination." As the expression of an actual right, the application of which is universal and invariable, the phrase has been repudiated or at least violated by many of the terms of the treaties which brought to an end the World War. Since the time that the principle was proclaimed, it has been the excuse for turbulent political elements in various lands to resist established governmental authority.

This discussion of the right of "self-determination," which was one of the bases of peace which President Wilson declared in the winter of 1918, and which was included in the modifying clause of his guaranty as originally drafted, is introduced for the purpose of showing the reluctance which I felt in accepting his guidance in the adoption of a principle so menacing to peace and so impossible of practical application. As a matter of fact I never discussed the subject with Mr. Wilson as I purposed doing, because a situation arose on Jan. 10, 1919, which discouraged me from volunteering to him advice on matters which did not directly pertain to legal questions and to the international administration of legal justice.

In tomorrow's installment Lansing carries his "personal narrative" through the famous conference President Wilson held with the American Commissioners Jan. 10, 1919.

SCHOOL BOARD TO DISCUSS TAX IN LIGHT OF RULING

President Rosskopf Will Call Conference on Matter of Levying 85-Cent Rate or a Lower One.

H. A. Rosskopf, president of the Board of Education, said last evening that he intended to call a conference of members of the board, within a few days, to consider the question of levying the full 85-cent tax rate authorized in the special election April 8, or a lesser rate, in view of conflicting legal opinions as to the board's right to reduce the rate.

Attorney-General Barrett, in an opinion rendered yesteday to State Superintendent Baker at Jefferson City, declared that a school tax rate, authorized by the voters, is not fixed and irreducible, but is merely a maximum beyond which the board must not go.

Robert Burkham, attorney for the Board of Education, recently rendered an opinion to the board that it was mandatory on the board to make the full levy authorized by the voters, and that the 85-cent rate could not be reduced, even though the amount of revenue derived from the levy would be larger than the board needed.

Rosskopf said he was inclined to believe that neither the opinion of the board's counsel nor that of the Attorney-General settled the question, and that it was uncertain what view a Court might take. The legal soundness of a tax rate is essential, he said, otherwise taxes cannot be collected from those inclined to resist.

The present situation arises from the action of the State Board of Equalization in ordering a 30 per cent increase in the total assessed valuation of St. Louis real estate an increase of more than $197,000,000. This action was taken just as the voters were about to pass on the proposed increase in this year's tax levy for school purposes from 60 to 85 cents on the $100 valuation, the rate for the past year having been 75 cents. It was too late to change the proposal which was before the voters, and which was passed by a large majority. The city's request for a modification of the order for an increase in assessment is now before the State Board of Equalization.

FATHER OF POLICE BOARD HEAD'S WIFE REINSTATED

James Cooney, Who Was Reduced to Watchman by Old Board, Again on Beat.

James Cooney, 62 years old, of 6828 Wise avenue, a former patrolman who was reduced by a former Police Board on June 1, 1918, to the position of watchman, has been reinstated by the present board to the rank of patrolman and assigned to a beat in the Mounted District. He is the father-in-law of Victor J. Miller, president of the Police Board.

He originally joined the department in August, 1885, serving continuously as a policeman until his reduction. The reinstatement was in keeping with the board's policy that all former members who had been dismissed, reduced or resigned for any cause could have their standing reviewed by the present board on application. Cooney made application and passed physical examination.

President Miller, in explaining the reinstatement, said:

"Cooney's relationship to me had nothing to do with his appointment. He went through the regular channels. I personally investigated his former record in the department and found it clean. He was reduced, we understand, for no good reason and being physically and mentally capable, was reinstated. The first day he was on duty as a patrolman he raided three houses of ill repute and located a couple of stills. He is able to do police duty and that's the kind of men we want."

A number of transfers of clerks and telephone operators were made and the salaries of several tracing operators at police headquarters were reduced from $74.25 a month to $70. This decrease will be added to another section of the payroll to give beginners $50 a month instead of $44. Two of three girl telephone operators at Carondelet station were transferred to other districts. Civilian employes in police garages will work nine 2hours a day instead of eight hours, as heretofore.

ODD FELLOWS CELEBRATE FOUNDING OF ORDER IN 1819

Dinner and Dance Given at Moolah Temple by St. Louis Lodges.

The founding of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows on April 26, 1819, was commemorated by St. Louis lodges with a banquet and dance last night at Moolah Temple. E. B. Garner of Springfield, grand master of the order in Missouri, and other speakers at the banquet outlined the growth of the organization from its origin, at a meeting of five men in a Baltimore tavern, to its present American membership of more than 2,000,000.

The lodge was founded by Thomas Wildey, an Englishman, as an outgrowth of an English organization called the Manchester Unity. He advertised for former members of that order who had moved to America, and found four besides himself. The Rebekahs, or women's division of the lodge, was organized in 1851. The order now has members in most American and European countries. The membership in St. Louis and St. Louis County lodges is estimated at 3000.

The banquet was preceded by a parade of more than 350 Odd Fellows and Rebekahs, starting at 5 p. m. from Grand and Cottage avenues and marching south to Lindell boulevard and west to the temple at Vandeventer avenue.

RECEIVER IS ASKED FOR MISSOURI LUMBER COMPANY

Forked Oak Company of West Eminence Is Declared Solvent Despite Petition.

The Lima Locomotive Works, Inc., of Lima, O., yesterday afternoon presented a creditor's bill in the United States District Court for the appointment of a receiver for the Forked Leaf Oak Lumber Co. of West Eminence, Mo.

It requested that the receiver take charge of the company and operate until "the present financial stringency was past." The petition stated that the company was solvent, having 100,000 acres of timber land in Texas and Shannon counties, in Missouri, a logging railroad, mills and stores; was incorporated for $1,500,000, and had assets of $5,000,000, with 1,600,000 feet of lumber on hand, most of which has been sold. Judge Faris appointed Edwin R. Butler, who has been with the lumber company, as receiver, with bond of $50,000.

American Legion Message to Men Who Served in War

THE LEGION in St. Louis is putting on a city-wide membership drive and urging all ex-service men to join. If you were a sailor, soldier or marine during the great war and have an honorable discharge you are eligible, and will be interested in the following information about the American Legion:

1. It is a voluntary veterans' organization and has nothing to do with the State or Government. It is to the present war what the Grand Army of the Republic and the Spanish-American War Veterans were to the Civil and Spanish-American wars.

2. It is opposed neither to labor nor capital.

3. Its purposes are set forth best in its constitution, as follows:

"For God and Country, we associate ourselves together for the following purposes:

"To uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America; to maintain law and order, to foster and perpetuate a one-hundred per cent Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our association in the great war; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, State and nation; to combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses; to make right master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom and democracy; to consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by our devotion to mutual helpfulness."

The Legion has no aims, policies or activities not covered by this preamble. The purpose of the legion is thus twofold—service to its country and service to its comrades. The organization is exerting all its influence and strength to the end that all ex-service men, especially the disabled and their dependents and the dependents of those who paid the supreme sacrifice, shall receive that just and fair treatment which they have reason to expect from a patriotic and liberal country.

In serving the country the organization is endeavoring to keep alive that spirit of service which induced all to respond to the country's call in time of need, even to the extent of being willing to pay the supreme sacrifice. This is being done by assisting in the maintenance of a one-hundred per cent Americanism, based on fair play and a square deal for all.

5. If you are in sympathy with these purposes the American Legion offers you the privilege of joining and urges you to come in and do your part in carrying out its objects. The Legion insists that it is your duty as an ex-service man to be a member to the end that the policies of the Legion may represent your ideas.

Do not stay out, and then criticise because the Legion hasn't adopted your plan. Come in and help make its policies; be a worker, not a slacker.

6. The Legion has opened temporary campaign headquarters at Tenth and Olive streets, in this city, and extends an invitation to you to call or write this week and get further information and application blanks.

COUNTY GAMBLING CASES UP TO HYDE FOR DISPOSITION

Prosecutor Says Governor and Attorney-General Will Have to Pass on Indictments.

Action to be taken in the remaining seven gambling indictments pending at Clayton will depend upon the attitude of Gov. Hyde and Attorney-General Barrett, Prosecuting Attorney Fred Mueller said yesterday, at the close of a conference with Assistant Attorney-General Albert Miller.

Gov. Hyde instructed that Miller go to Clayton and make an investigation when he learned that Anthony (Tony) Foley had, upon peremptory instructions given the jury by Judge McElhinney, been acquitted Thursday on a charge of operating a gambling house at Campbell's Forest Home, and that another charge against him had been nolle prossed Friday. The Foley indictments and 12 other gambling indictments were returned by a grand jury conducted last fall by an assistant to Attorney-General McAllister, Barret's predecessor. Mueller inherited the cases from his own predecessor, Richard Ralph.

Mueller said he showed Miller the evidence in the remaining cases, and also showed him the evidence that had been in his possession against Foley and which was held insufficient. Mueller invited the Attorney-General to take entire charge of the remaining cases and prosecute them if he desired, he said, or offered to make any other disposition of them which the Attorney-General would recommend. Personally, Mueller said, he was of the opinion that there is not enough evidence to convict in most of the cases, and is disposed to dismiss them.

Miller, after his inspection of the situation, declined to comment, and said he would report the facts to Attorney-General Barrett.

THIRTIETH NATIONAL CONGRESS OF D. A. R. AT CAPITAL ENDS

Pigeonholing of Resolution Pledging Aid in Dry Enforcement Causes Comment Among Delegates.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—The Daughters of the American Revolution adjourned their thirtieth national congress today after installing officers elected yesterday. Announcements of candidacy for president-general in the 1923 election by several aspirants and the action of the resolutions committee in pigeonholing a resolution calling upon members of the society to aid in a strict enforcement of the Voistead act proved interesting topics for the delegates.

Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, of Pennsylvania, and Mrs. William M. Reynolds of North Carolina, were formally announced as candidates for president-general which office will be filled in 1923. Mrs. George Thacher Guernsey, honorary vice president general, it was reported, had withdraw her candidacy for president-general. It was also reported that Mrs. William Cummings Story will shortly announce her candidacy for the leadership.

Mrs. George Maynard Minor, present president-general, was given a rising vote of thanks for the efficient manner in which she handled the congress.

Summer Course at St. Louis U.

Announcement of the 1921 summer school course, to consist of 36 lectures on each of the selected subjects in arts and sciences, was made by St. Louis University yesterday. This course, which is given largely for the benefit of teachers and advanced students who wish to increase their totals of college credits, will begin June 20 and will continue for six weeks.

IRON WORKER SAID TO HAVE TWO WIVES IN SAME HOUSEHOLD

Prisoner in New York Said to Have Married French Woman and Then Sent for Flemish Wife.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Complaints by detectives that Antoine Ruyts, a Belgian, was living in a Brooklyn apartment with two wives, one Flemish and the other French, led to his arrest on a charge of bigamy today. He was held in $1000 bail for a hearing Monday.

Ruyts is alleged to have married Madame Marie Pierre Labar, a Parisian widow, in New York in January, 1920, while his other wife and her two daughters were living in Antwerp.

Detectives learned, they said, that after Ruyts had installed the French woman in his Brooklyn apartment he sent for his Belgian wife and family. They arrived in November, 1920, and immediately were assigned quarters in Ruyts' household. "Wife No. 2" appears to be "boss," according to investigators, and has the choice of quarters.

Both "wives," detectives said, are employed in a theatrical costume establishment and go to and from work together each day. Since one speaks only French and the other Flemish, they communicate by code, rapping on wood.

Ruyts is 45 and an iron worker. He told authorities he met the "second Mrs. Ruyts" after he had fled from his native city, when German troops attempted to force him to work.

SENATE TO CONSIDER FREE CANAL TOLLS FOR U. S. BOATS

Three Bills on Project Introduced by Senators Borah, Jones and Poindexter.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Restoration of free tolls through the Panama canal to American shipping will be taken up next week by the Senate oceanic canals committee, of which Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, is chairman. Three bills dealing with the free tolls question are before the committee, introduced by Senators Borah, Jones of Washington, and Poindexter of Washington, all Republicans. Two would limit the free toll privilege to American coastwise shipping, while another would give the privilege to all ships flying the American flag.

No hearings on the legislation have been planned by Chairman Borah. He said today that action might be recommended without hearings.

War Department Classfying 66,000 Reserve Corps Officers.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—The 66,000 officers in the reserve corps are being classified so that men fitted for each definite assignment can be located and called into active duty in event of national emergency. The War Department announced today that it was expected that a complete record of every officer in the organized reserves would be in the hands of nine corps commanders not later than June 15.

Although stating that the preliminary classification was not expected to be anywhere near perfect, the War Department said "one of the great advantages of organizing the reserve forces in time of peace is that the mistakes of classification and assignment con be tested and corrected, whereas the compilation of these most important records and assignments are practically impossible to obtain in time of emergency."

Corps commanders have been directed to make an immediate study of their districts with a view to locating reserve units according to the local population.

$3800 RAISED FOR MATERNITY HOSPITAL AT RUMMAGE SALE

Proceeds From Auction of Castoff Clothing to Go Toward Free Bed Fund.

The rummage sale for the St. Louis Maternity Hospital, 4519 Washington boulevard, which was held in a store at Eighth street and Lucas avenue last Thursday, Friday and Saturday, resulted in a profit of about $3800 to go toward the endowment fund for free beds at the hospital. Articles remaining late yesterday were auctioned and the proceeds of the auction sale may increase the profit to $4000.

Castoff clothing and shoes and furniture, contributed by St. Louisans, were sold by women members of the board of directors of the hospital and their friends. The sale of shoes amounted to $400. Pictures were sold for a total of $400 and the largest amount collected by one department was $600, in the women's ready-to-wear clothing department.

It has been decided to make the hospital rummage sale an annual affair.

Road Delegation Returns to Make Recommendations

ical or geographical consideration.

The commission should have omplete and final power on all estions of road construction, cept the laying out of routes.

Routes should be decided by the mmission, but with power dged in a committee of members f the Legislature to hear and decide appeals from the commission's decision as to routes.

Salary Proposal.

Salaries of employes of the mmission should not be fixed by tute. The commission should free to compete with other ates and with private enterprise r the best talent among engineers.

The State Highway Commission ould maintain all highways included in the State system from e time they are laid out.

It should be the purpose of the mmission to maintain the State stem in condition for travel even fore permanent roads are constructed, the idea being to provide transportation for the State en as a first consideration before construction.

A patrol system of regularly ployed workers must be established to keep roads in condition r travel at all times.

The Legislature must provide fficient funds for the maintenance of roads aside from any oney derived from the bond issue.

Concrete Only Permanent Road.

While the committee in its report obably will not deal with types of ad which should be constructed, will recommend the building of rd-surfaced roads as rapidly as ey can be built. The inquiry in her states unquestionably forced e conclusion that virtually everywhere the concrete road was the ly one now seriously considered as "permanent" road. During the ilding of a system of concrete ads, the weight of authority unquestionably was for the best possible maintenance of the existing highways, even to the extent of spending m $5000 to $10,000 per mile in verting dirt roads into gravel hways as one of the best types temporary road.

o far in public consideration of souri's road problems, there has n little discussion of the probable gth of time and the probable ount of money which will be necessary to build 6000 miles, as has n proposed, of concrete, or hard-surfaced road. Except among informed engineers there has been a neral idea that $60,000,000 was a of money, that all that was necessary was for the Legislature to thorize the building of the roads, n in the course of four or five, perhaps 10 years, they would be ilt. Expert engineering advice tained from engineers who have ually been engaged in building ncrete roads, is that it will be a ysical impossibility to build 6000 les of concrete road in less than years. Also that 6000 miles of operly constructed concrete road obabyl would cost between $200,000,000 and $250,000,000.

Conditions Similar to Missouri's.

In Wisconsin was found a condition approximating that facing issouri. Wisconsin has made a g stride toward meeting its ads problem, which was very ch the same as Missouri's when sconsin began meeting it in 1907. e idea of the time consumed in nstructing roads may be obtained m the fact that although Wisconsin has had an intelligent, enthusiastic Highway Commission, it has the 14 years been able to build ly 500 miles of concrete road. The mainder of its 5500-mile State system is gravel and dirt, with a little acadam and a little of asphalt and r. Arthur S. Hirst, State Highway gineer of Wisconsin, explained at concrete roads had been built d were being built just as rapidly money could be found for them while at the same time the balance f the State roads were being maintained in condition for efficient ansportation.

The Ralph committee, which before going to Wisconsin had investigated highway systems of a number of Eastern States without finding anything which seemed even approximately to fit in Missouri, had virtually all their questions answered by the Wisconsin system in a way that convinced them practically the same system would work in Missouri and would meet the needs here.

Present Roads Must Be Maintained.

While the conclusions of the committee appear to be borne out by what is being accomplished in Wisconsin, the success of the plan in Missouri would depend primarily upon two things:

First, that there must be a realization by residents of all parts of the State that a State-wide road system cannot be constructed in a year, nor in 10 years, and that the sparsely populated portions of the State must be content with the kind of road which will meet their traffic requirements, while more thickly populated sections are getting the permanent roads, which their traffic requires.

Second, funds must be provided by the Legislature to maintain in proper condition the existing roads in the less thickly populated sections until such time as they are reached by the permanent roads.

Demands of Rural Sections.

In early and informal discussions of road matters among members of the Legislature there has been noticeable a selfish demand from some of the rural sections for the expenditure in their sections of as much of the bond money as in more populous sections. In other words, some counties whose roads will not average more than 100 vehicles a day are demanding as much money for roads as the counties whose roads average 5000 or more vehicles a day.

Engineers consulted by the committee were a unit in holding that no good roads could be obtained by spreading out the bond issue money for expenditures on anything like an equal basis among the counties. They were a unit in holding that the road question should be considered as individual problems of all communities, that where the traffic demanded a concrete road a concrete road should be built, and where traffic demands were light inexpensive roads should be built and maintained.

The consensus of opinion among engineers was that if the State at large could be brought to a realization and acceptance of this fact, Missouri eventually would have a system of nearly perfect roads as could be built, and that if the State at large would not accept this fact, none of the State would have either well built or well maintained roads.

Doesn't Mean "Peacock Lanes."

This theory does not contemplate that the entire $60,000,000 should be expended on a few concrete roads near the big cities, or on "peacock lanes," as opponents of hard-surfaced roads have attempted to lead the public to believe. It means that the $60,000,000 should be so apportioned for work under the State supervision in all the counties to the end that there must be built within a reasonable time concrete roads in the communities in which the traffic requires concrete roads, while gravel or well maintained dirt roads are built in communities in which such roads will meet the traffic requirements.

In reaching a conclusion as to the proper organization of the new State Highway Department, which it is expected will be created by the Legislature, the committee considered the plans followed in a number of states. It found that in the east the tendency was almost uniformly toward abolishing the Commission of several members and substituting one commissioner with full power in all road matters.

This system was advocated by Charles J. Bennett, State Highway Commissioner of Connecticut; John N. C. Cole superintendent of Public Works in Massachusetts; Herbert S. Sisson, State Highway Commissioner of New York, and others on the theory that centralized authority was required to meet road problems, and that a system of a Commission of several members only encouraged "passing the buck" and tended to delay actual construction.

Far-Seeing Policy Necessary.

The committee was disposed to follow this theory until it reached Wisconsin, where it completely reversed its opinion after hearing arguments advanced by Hirst. Taking the position that actual progress in road construction can come only from the laying out of a far-seeing policy and striving to the completion of a definite program. Hirst said that every precaution possible should be taken to prevent politics from entering into the highway department. He said the executive officer, the State Highway Engineer, should be at least once removed from the appointing power.

If there was only one commissioner he would be appointed by the Governor and would be the executive officer. He probably would be changed every time a new Governor was elected and most of the work he had done would be upset. If there were three or more commissioners with terms expiring at two-year intervals, there could be no radical change in a department by an incoming Governor. Only a public demand for a change as expressed through legislative act then could interfere.

Wisconsin Commission.

In Wisconsin the Commission has five members, three appointed by the Governor, and two, the State Geologist and the dean of the College of Engineering of the State University, being ex-officio members. There is nothing in the law requiring the Governor to appoint one of the three named by him from a minority party, but that has been the custom. In Wisconsin the Governor's term is only two years. As the terms of the three members expire at two-year intervals a Governor can appoint only one member of the Highway Commission during one two-year term. In Missouri, under a similar system, a Governor could appoint only two during his term.

On the theory that the ex-officio members would not be influenced by politics, no Governor except the first one appointing the commission could gain control over it.

As to the selection of the State Highway Engineer, the committee accepted as proper the Wisconsin idea. There he is appointed by the commission without regard to politics and without regard to his place of residence. Hirst lived in Illinois when chosen in 1907. He had tried for the same position in Missouri but had been rejected because he didn't live in the State. Wisconsin appointed him and now has a good road system. Missouri insisted on making residence in Missouri the test for its engineer instead of efficiency, and it has made virtually no progress in road building.

Laying Out of System.

The method of laying out the State highway system was the subject of much debate among the members of the committee, the advice of several Eastern commissioners being in favor of a legislative designation of routes, while others insisted that the Highway Commission should choose them. Hirst stood by the Wisconsin plan, which included within the powers of the commission the laying out of routes.

The commission held a hearing in every county in the State, after first making preliminary surveys. Citizens were urged to appear before the commission. There also was created a Legislative Committee. This sat with the Highway Commission in all counties in which there was a contest over routes. The Highway Commission fixed the route. Objectors upon a petition of 10 per cent of the voters could appeal to the Legislative Committee. Of 20 appeals only two were sustained.

Hirst urged that Missouri should avoid fixing salaries by statute. He favored an unpaid commission, such as Wisconsin has, but contended the commission should be free to fix salaries of the engineer and all other employes. The commissioners there are paid $5 a day for time actually engaged, and expenses. The total of per diem and expenses of all members never has exceeded $1000 a year.

Hirst pointed out that salaries in public office are too low and that it is difficult to retain good men. Last year 30 per cent of his employes left the department. His salary is $7500 a year and he has notified the commission he will leave in the fall if his salary is not increased to $12,000. The commission has powers to grant the increase, and, according to one member, will do so.

Maintenance in Wisconsin.

One of the principal points of the Wisconsin system which found particular favor with the Missouri delegation was the maintenance of the gravel and dirt roads.

"We consider the road problem one of transportation instead of one of roads," Hirst told the delegation. "At the beginning we took the position that it was up to us to get the people over the roads. We did not have the money and it was a physical impossibility to build hard surfaced roads throughout the State immediately, so we did the next best thing. We began building hard surfaced roads where the traffic was the heaviest, but we did not overlook the other roads. We made gravel roads of many of them, and elsewhere we put the dirt roads in the best possible condition.

"We are proud of our gravel roads, but we consider them only temporary roads. They are not permanent and we are replacing them with permanent roads as rapidly as we can. But while we are doing that we are providing roads everywhere in the State that can be traveled any time in the year."

To keep up these roads, Wisconsin has a patrol system. Each patrolman has from six to 10 miles of road to keep in condition. He is provided with the necessary machinery and it is his duty to maintain his section of road. All along these roads are stock piles of gravel to provide the patrolmen with material for repairing small breaks, and he is supposed never to let a small break become a big one.

Pulling Out of Mud Free.

Prizes are offered for the best work by patrolmen, and each is under a bond to pull from the mud free of charge any vehicle which becomes stuck on his stretch of road.

The success of the system was apparent to the delegation which was driven at a speed from 25 to 40 miles an hour over gravel roads which had just come out of winter and which had been soaked by an all-night rain the previous night. In addition there had been two heavy snows within two weeks. There were some, though not many, soft places in roads, but patrolmen were at work repairing them.

The question of the feasibility of similar gravel roads in Missouri was raised. Hirst, explaining that he considered them only temporary roads, but necessary to keep traffic open until they could be replaced with concrete roads, said that it was his opinion that as good gravel roads could be constructed in any kind of soil. He had built them through clay country as well as sandy country.

Cost of Gravel Road.

The average cost of a gravel road he fixed at $9000 a mile, and the maintenance cost at $300 a mile per year. In Missouri the construction cost would average somewhat higher than in Wisconsin because there the gravel is found at the roadside almost everywhere in the State. The longest haul, Hirst said, was 12 miles. In Southern Missouri there is gravel in nearly every county, but in Northern Missouri there is little gravel and it might be that the expense of importing gravel in the northern counties would result in finding some other form of surfacing would be more economical.

However, the various types of macadam road, which is about all there is between gravel and concrete, are being abandoned in nearly all states because of prohibitive cost of maintenance. In Massachusetts and Connecticut, however, the committee found much macadam road with one of the various types of patented surfacing, giving good service. The general opinion of engineers in other states, however, was against the use of patented surfacing materials.

Senator Ralph outlined in the presence of the other members of the delegation, and was supported by them, his general views regarding the results of the investigation, though he said that further discussion might cause some slight alterations before the report was made to the Governor and the Legislature.

Ralph's Opinions.

"Although we traveled by automobile more than 1000 miles examining all types of road," he said, "type investigation was a collateral matter, and it is not probable that we will have any recommendation as between the various types of hard-surfaced road. We were interested in learning the experience of other states in providing a highway system which would build roads.

"It is our opinion there should be a commission, that it should appoint an engineer, and that it would require the knowledge of an expert engineer to determine the proper type of road to be built. It is not improbable that the type which would be best in one locality would not be best in another locality where different conditions existed. Type of road is an engineering question.

"In general the Wisconsin plan met our approval. Undoubtedly it would be changed some if adopted in Missouri, but the conditions in the two states are much the same and we can see no reason why it should not work with us.

"Through its system of maintenance, it contemplates the building of permanent bridges and culverts even on roads which cannot immediately be hard surfaced. It contemplates protection of Federal aid through that kind of permanent construction. It also contemplates permanent grading, and making the entire system of State roads suitable to carry the traffic they are subjected to.

Need of Maintenance Fund.

"To carry out this system it will be necessary for the Legislature to provide a maintenance fund for roads. It does not seem probable the automobile license fund will be sufficient to more than meet the interest and principal requirements of the bonds, and it is not probable that anything will be available from that source for maintenance.

"In Wisconsin there is to be introduced a bill to place a 2 per cent tax on all automobiles for road purposes, relieving automobiles from the general personal property taxation. I have not yet had time to investigate the Missouri Constitution to determine whether such a plan would be constitutional in Missouri. If it would I can see no reason why it should not be adopted. There are about 300,000 automobiles in the State. If they have an average value of only $800, nearly $5,000,000 would be obtained, which would be ample for the maintenance of roads.

"If that plan is unconstitutional it may be necessary to have a special State tax for road maintenance purposes."

Distribution of Money.

The members of the committee, none of whom represents in the Legislature a district containing a large city, started out on the tour without definitely fixed ideas about what should be done with the $60,000,000. A majority of them were disposed to look with some favor upon the demands of rural communities for an equal division of the bond issue money. They were not hard road advocates.

They returned convinced by the unanimous opinion of every Highway Commissioner and every highway engineer they consulted that the Legislature would be wasting the bond issue money if it distributed it among the counties; that there must be a connected system of hard roads laid out, and built as rapidly as possible. They were convinced of the superiority of the hard-surfaced road over any kind of a temporary road by riding many hundreds of miles over all kinds of road. There can be no question of the value of the trip to those legislators who took it, and to the other members of the Legislature if they will unselfishly accept the experience which will be related to them, and will look with broad vision to the best interests of the State at large, which other States have found eventually means the best interest of every community in the State.

HEARING FOR 900 WHO DESIRE CITIZENSHIP

Judge Dyer Will Pass Upon Applicants, Many of Whom Were Enemy Aliens in War.

The applications of 900 persons for citizenship will be heard this week as a special docket in Federal Court by Judge Dyer.

Between 750 and 800 of the applications are of persons who were enemy aliens during the war. The Government will oppose the naturalization of those of this number who claimed exemption from the selective service act on the ground that they were aliens, on the theory that a claim for exemption was incompatible with a declaration of intention to become a loyal citizen.

Judge Dyer expects to hear about 150 cases a day. Among the applicants is William Wellington Higgins, 4516 McPherson avenue, who served as a United States aviation Lieutenant in the war, was born in Chile, is British subject and now wants to become an American to go to Africa as a Methodist missionary in the Congo.

Cardinals' Awkward Work in Field Gives Cubs 5-1 Victory In Local N. L. Opening Game

Hornsby, a Good Second Sacker, Fails to Shine in Outfield and Heathcote, Fournier, Toporcer and Lavan Also Make Costly Miscues — May and Riviere Hurl Brilliantly.

THIRTEEN thousand cash customers crowded their way into Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon, along with several thousand members of the Knot-Hole gang, to see the twice-postponed opening of the National League season in St. Louis. After the usual opening frills were run off very prettily, the Cardinals proceeded to appear in as bad a light as possible.

Outfielders missed shoe-string catches, missed leaping catches, just fell short of snaring short flies back of the infield. Infielders missed grounders and missed thrown balls.

And when the Cubs turned in a beautiful fielding game, except in one spot, the Cardinals went down to defeat, five runs to one. The only bright spots in the game for the St. Louis team were the pitching performances of Jakie May and Tink Riviere.

Mark this and mark it well: May was taken out of a game which he should have won. His pitching had been excellent. His control and curves were sufficient and it was only terrible fielding that made something necessary and it was decided that Jakie's exit might bring a turn for the better.

Riviere followed and showed considerable stuff. He was not pounded severely and the brand of pitching he showed should have been sufficient to carry the team along to victory.

A Nightmare of Fielding.

But you can't tell the story of the game or think about the blooming contest without having that atrocious fielding forever before you. It runs in circles before your optics. You see Hornsby missing shoe-string catches and missing one near the foul line that he should have had or rather one that a regular outfielder should have had. And you see McHenry, strange to right field, missing balls which either he or Fournier should have had. A fast right fielder would have had several that went for hits and McHenry would have had them if they had fallen in the meadow he has been accustomed to patrolling. That may be all wrong but it was an impression and a deep one.

Certainly, taking yesterday's game only, as an illustration, Rickey's team does not seem to have been improved by shifting a good second baseman to left field and a fair left or center fielder to right and putting Toporcer, a recruit who wears spectacles, on second base. Rickey said Friday that the shifts were made not alone on his judgment, but because the whole Cardinal squad thought it desirable to keep Toporcer, whom he considers the surest fielder in the Cardinal squad, in the game.

Rickey said fielding was his team's weakest spot, and the team certainly went out and proved that he spoke a mouthful.

Can't Blame Jakie!

Fielding Breaks Start the Cubs On the Way to Each of Their 5 Runs

Poor fielding, though excusable, gave the Cubs their first run. With one down in the second inning Barber poked a puny drive toward the shortstop's position. Stock came over fast and tried to take the ball on the first bounce. It was a slow hit and he had to play it fast to get the runner. The bounce was not accurate, and the ball skidded off Stock's hand for a safety. Deal popped another weak hit to right. McHenry came in fast, but was a step too late to make the catch. When he missed, he kicked the ball and Fournier recovered in time to flag Deal trying to make second. Then O'Farrell sent a line drive to left, just along the foul line. Hornsby made a leap for it, and it appeared to go right between his arms. It went among the overflow of Knot-Holers, and was a ground rule double. No one can criticise Hornsby justly for not getting it. He is a second baseman by trade. A journeyman left-fielder probably would have caught the ball in his pocket.

More funny stuff and three odoriferous runs for the Cubs in the fourth. Maisel dropped a weak fly in right which McHenry again came within a foot of catching. Again he cuffed the ball away from him, but recovered neatly and had Maisel trapped off first. Fournier dropped the perfect throw, amid loud lamentations from the grandstand laity. Barber flied to Hornsby and then Heathcote came into the picture. Deal poked a liner to center which Heathcote got his mitts on after a hard run. But Cliff did not cling, and the hit was called a double. The scorer started to call it an error, but as Hornsby had gone without an error on his miss, it was not thought fair to penalize Heathcote. So Deal got a double, and everything was lovely except the score.

Talk About Your Breaks!

May refused to give the hard-clubbing O'Farrell a ball in the heart of the plate and finally walked him, filling the bases and setting the scenes again for more talking points for the grand stand managers who object to a second baseman's doing outfield work.

York sent a low liner to left. Now, McHenry is a bearcat when it comes to picking them off his shoestrings. He gets up early every morning and catches three or four that way before he feels like eating breakfast. But the "Airedale" was not in left field. He was in right, and so it fell to Hornsby to handle the chance. He got his mitts on the ball all right, but it bounced out, as shoestring catches are wont to do, unless one is very much up on his shoe string game.

Of course it had to be a hit, but that did not help the Cardinals any, though it will help Hornsby's fielding average. Maisel and Deal scored on the wallop and Flack and Hollocher also singled before the inning ended, making three runs for the Cubs that frame, whereas Jakie May long since should have been resting for the next frame, instead of having to be derricked like a common or garden bum.

In the fifth inning Lavan and Toporcer each let a grounder filter through them and a run was chalked up against Riviere that never should have seen the light.

That was the story. Our boys couldn't catch 'em and the Cubs could. In one inning the Cubs' defense cracked to the extent of a wild throw and the Cardinals counted a run. But that just gave the fans a thirst for more and when it was not forthcoming there was considerable disappointment.

But it's spring. Rickey has lots of time. That fielding may come any day, and when it and the natural hitting strength of the club do a little team work the club will win some games. The club had pitching yesterday. And last year good pitching when it was needed would have brought home the world series lettuce.

FLOWERY LANGUAGE.

And the wife has been waiting for hours.
Don't argue in vain
Or attempt to explain—

If you only sit tight
And head off her lachrymal showers;
Have nothing to say,
Let a little bouquet
Explain in the language of flowers.

Some of our brighest minds in the U. S. Senate have admitted that they don't know what Einstein was getting at in his theory of relativity. We were always under the impression that a Senator's idea of relativity was to get some relative a fat Government job with little to do and plenty to get.

Einstein himself admits that there are only 12 people in all the world who understand his dope. But who the other 11 Einstein fans are he fails to mention.

Illinois Beats Chicago.

URBANA, Ill., April 23.—Illinois easily defeated Chicago at baseball here this afternoon, 8 to 2. Illinois started out in the second inning and copped seven runs by the end of the fourth inning. Barnes twirled for Illinois and gained his second victory of the season. The largest crowd ever present at a baseball game on Illinois Field was on hand. Score by innings:

Chicago 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 0—2—6—3
Illinois 0 1 3 2 0 0 1 0 x—8—7—3

Groom to Oppose Jasper.

Under the management of Bob Groom, former major league star of the pitching staff of the Washington Senators and St. Louis Browns, the White Rose Club will open the season at their new park, located on the Belleville-St. Louis road, today. Murphysboro, a strong independent team of Southern Illinois, will be seen in action against the White Rose. "Hi" Jasper, former American League pitcher, will be pitted against "Bob" Groom. John will receive Jasper while White or Nesbit will handle Groom.

Chicago Cubs to Conclude Series Today; Ferdie Schupp May Pitch

CHICAGO will play the second and final game of the series at Sportsman's Park this afternoon, starting at 3 o'clock. Tomorrow the Pittsburg Pirates will call for a series of three games.

No telling who will pitch. Rickey has threatened to put Schupp to work and today may be the day. Alexander may hurl for the Cubs, but Evers refuses to announce his selection until game time.

Knot-Holers Parade.

Members of the Knot-Hole Gang paraded around the park before the game yesterday. Drum and bugle corps from the grade schools and several uniformed boys' baseball teams were in the line. Ropes were stretched in front of the Knot-Holers' pavilion to take care of the overflow.

Kiel Knocked From Hill.

Louis Aloe soaked Hy Kiel for a single in the opening ceremonies. Louis fouled off a half dozen and then plunked one to left and the Mayor took the gate.

Gifts and Speeches.

Flowers were presented to Rickey and Evers. The Knot-Hole Gang gave Branch some posies and members of the Cardinal team kicked in for a chest of silver. The presentation ceremonies were repeated several times for the benefit of moving picture men until the crowd got sick of it all and yelped for action.

Chinese Minister Umpires.

While Kiel was pitching and Aloe was batting and Herman Bader was umpiring behind the bat Dr. Sao-ke Alfred Sze, Chinese Minister to the United States, umpired from the pitching mound. He is in St. Louis in the interest of the Chinese relief fund.

Deal Has Great Day.

Charley Deal is fielding like a fiend. He robbed several Cardinals of hits yesterday. Just flipped out his gloved hand and the ball rolled or hopped in and stuck. Business then of starting a double play.

Robertson Back in Fold.

Dave Robertson, Cub outfielder who was suspended for failure to report and ordered to get into condition before he would be allowed to sign, will join the Cubs in Cincinnati tomorrow.

Toporcer a Great Fielder.

Though Toporcer had an error, and on an easy chance, he showed that he was a great fielder. He starts with the crack of the bat, covers loads of ground and can throw from any position. His first chance was a wallop off Maisel's bat in the second inning. Toporcer grabbed the drive in back of second base and threw from a stooping posture, straight to Fournier's hands.

Few Gamblers in Evidence.

Gamblers were not as thick in the aisles as they were last season. However, several suspicious persons were back on the job and one even went so far as to inquire at the press box if it was thought that Alexander would be sent to the hill in today's game.

All I. L. Games Off.

Central Defeats Soldan, 4-3, and Moves Into Lead

Yeatman Wallops McKinley Nine, 21 to 3, in Other Interscholastic League Tilt.

By a 4 to 3 victory over Soldan in the ninth inning of the first game of the Saturday Interscholastic League double header, played at High School Field, Grand and Laclede avenues, Central High School took the lead in the pennant race. McKinley, formerly tied with Soldan for first place, dropped to second by losing to Yeatman by the top-heavy score of 21 to 3. Cleveland, the fifth member of the league, had an open date.

The Soldan-Central battle proved a good one inasmuch as the score was tied 3 to 3 when Central came to bat in the ninth inning. Until the sixth inning, Central was able to collect only four hits off Breck, but Bruere, a new man on the Mid-City nine, hit a three-bagger with two men on and put Central in the lead. Soldan had put a man across the plate in the third and sixth innings, both times with the aid of a double by Eichler. After Central gained the lead, Soldan tightened. With the score tide 3 to 3 Central came to bat in the last of the ninth. Bruere singled and Margulus went in for Browning. Gockel grounded out, but Fanning drove out a single that scored Margulus.

The Yeatman-McKinley massacre completely upset the dope. Yeatman lost its first two games while McKinley showed well against the strong Concordia nine. Coach Shiek used threo pitchers. Yeatman piled up its score on singles and errors.

The standing of the different teams is: Central, first; Cleveland, Soldan, McKinley, second; Yeatman third.

STRUNK'S SINGLE NETS WHITE SOX 3-2 VICTORY

CHICAGO, April 23.—Chicago came from behind today, tied Detroit in the ninth inning and won out, 3 to 2, in the eleventh. The game was a pitchers' duel between Faber and Leonard, the breaks favoring the visitors. Twice the Tigers scored runs by successfully working a double steal, but aside from these two innings Faber was the master. He gave way to a pinch hitter in the eighth and Hodge finished the game. The batting of Collins, Falk and Strunk was responsible for the local's victory. Collins drove in the first run with a double. He scored the tying run by starting with a double. Sheely's sacrifice moved him to third and he counted on Falk's hit. Sheely started the final rally with a single and pulled up at third on Falk's double. Strunk followed with a single and Sheely scored.

Pikers Romp Over Millikin Outfit For 20-1 Victory

Pitching of Captain Lyon, Who Yields Only Five Hits, Is Feature of Contest.

The Washington University baseball nine had matters entirely its own way gaining its third consecutive triumph of the season at Francis Field, yesterday afternoon. The 20 to 1 score tells the tale of the landslide that the Pikeway clubbers subjected to the James Millikin University team.

Of course it is evident from the score details that the local team was hitting and running the bases effectively, but just as pleasing to the Red and Green fandom was the masterful pitching of Captain Monty Lyon. Lyon did not show to unusual advantage against Drake last week, and consequently the Pikers were anxious as to his 1921 form.

For seven innings he held the Illinoisans to one infield hit. In the eighth and ninth he eased up and allowed four safeties, one of which was a tremendous four-base clout by South for the only tally made by the opposition. Only 29 men faced Lyon throughout the contest and in the third and fourth innings he fanned five consecutive batters.

The horrific story of the Pikeway scoring would be uninteresting to give in detail. Suffice to comment that Bascom's men employed every phase of offensive artistry, including the squeeze, hit and run, faraway slugging, and what not. Their efforts were greatly augumented by slovenly fielding on the part of Millikin players, who were guilty of eight errors. Chief among the offenders were the shortstop and catcher.

It was Washington's last home game, before the series with Missouri at Columbia, Tuesday and Wednesday, which will play an important part in the Missouri Valley Conference race.

MISSOURI WINS SIXTH SUCCESSIVE GAME BY BLANKING AMES, 3 TO 0

COLUMBIA, Mo., April 23.—Heavy hitting again triumphed for Missouri this afternoon, when the Tigers won their sixth Missouri Valley Conference victory by shutting out the Ames Cyclones, 3 to 0. A big sixth inning which forced Greutchmacher, the Aggie twirler, from the mound, put the game on ice.

The Missouri attack started when, with O'Reilly out, Lam doubled. Lawrence hit and Lam went to third. Lawrence stole second, and Petty, in an ineffectual attempt to stop the Tiger captain gave Lam his opportunity to cross the plate for the first score. Bunker was hit by a pitched ball and he and Lawrence scored on Fulbright's triple. Then Bailey went in and scoring ceased.

Ficklin pitched a nice game for the home team. Each team annexed five hits, but superior fielding and bunching of hits by the Tigers gave an added value to Missouri's attack.

REDS POUND HAMILTON AND DEFEAT PIRATES

PITTSBURG, April 23.—Cincinnati won the third game of the series today from Pittsburg, 5 to 4. Ability of the Reds to solve Hamilton's delivery in the first and third innings gave the victory to the visitors. In these innings, the Cincinnati team scored all its runs on eight hits and an error by Hamilton. Glazner and Carlson held the visitors safe after the third. Sewell's Batting Gives Indians Third Victory Over Browns, 6-2

Alabama Youth's Double and Triple Account for Five of Runs for Tribe Off "Dixie" Davis—Jacobson Is Browns' Chief Clubber.

CLEVELAND, April 23.—A mere midget, a sort of "half pint," diminutive Joey Sewell, loomed up like the biggest ballplayer at the baseball matinee here today. He showed a heftier punch than the renowned George Sisler, the American League's premier batter last season, and the runnerup hitsmith of the 1920 campaign, Tris Speaker. The Indians won, 6 to 2.

This bit of humanity managed to kick in with a double with the bases choked in the first inning, netting the Indians two runs. Then in the seventh, he found Johnston on third and Speaker on second, so what did he do but drive a healthy triple to deep center scoring both of his buddies, and completed the circuit when Williams took Jacobson's throw and pegged high over Lamb's head.

So outside of figuring prominently in five of the Tribe's six runs, the former University of Alabama student did very little on the offensive. And bear in mind, please, that he was anything but a slouch on the defense. The kid cut in with three putouts and six assists, on one occasion throwing out the side.

Davis as Wild as Ever.

But for the pernicious activity of this yearling—truth be told, Sewell is still an infant in the major leagues, as he played only a month last season—"Dixie" Davis and his supporting cast might have got some place. But "Dixie," who is just as soft for the Indians as he is tough for the Yankees, had to stomach another defeat at the hands of the world's champions.

Davis was just as wild as of yore handing out six bases on balls, hitting one batter and cutting loose with a wild pitch. However, only one of the franks was converted into a run. The wild pitch helped somewhat, but it was two singles, a double and a triple that counted in the reckoning in the seventh round.

Stanley Coveleskie was on the firing line for the Tribe, and while hit in rather lively fashion at times, he always tightened up when danger threatened. Coveleskie handed out four passes, but none of them proved costly.

It was big Jacobson's clouting that netted the Browns their two counters. That is he started both of them with singles. Lamb drove in the first with a sacrifice fly, while Gleason accounted for No. 2, with a single. Jacobson also laced out a double, and was robbed of a triple by Jamieson, who made a swell catch of his long line smash in the sixth.

Indians Get Busy in First.

It looked like a sure enough merry-go-round for the Indians in the first. Jamieson took a called strike and then plowed into a fast ball for a line double to right center. Johnston dumped a sacrifice in front of the plate on the first offering, going out, Davis to Sisler. Speaker walked on four in a row. Smith swung one of his three strikes, the middle one. Gardner emulated Speaker, trotting to first on four straight. With the outfielders playing far to the right, Sewell pasted a double close to the line in left, Jamieson and Speaker scoring. Stephenson worked Davis for a three and two count and finally walked, again filling the bases, but O'Neill's best was a sharp bounder to Gerber, who tossed to Gleason forcing Steve.

The Browns loomed up as dangerous in the second, but had to rest content with one counter. Jacobson singled sharply through the box, Stephenson dashing behind second for a brilliant stop, the "Baby Doll" just beating his hurried throw to first. Williams dropped a Texas leaguer in short center and Jacobson by dint of a great sprint and a nice slide beat Speaker's throw to third. Jake overslid the bag, but grabbed it with his left hand for the decision over Gardner. Williams reached second on the throw. A pass to Gleason filled the bases. With none out Lamb sent Jamieson scurrying back for his sacrifice fly on which Jacobson dented the plate. Jamieson held the other runners in check by making the throw to third. Sewell backed up for Severeid's hoist and Stephenson did likewise for Davis' high fly.

The failure of two Indians, Johnston and Speaker, to sacrifice was the real factor in the Indians' big inning, the lucky seventh.

Big Inning for Champions.

Jamieson led off with a sassy single and took second when Davis in an effort to waste a ball cut loose with a wild pitch. Johnston failed to sacrifice on two attempts and then lined a single past Sisler on which Jamieson scored. Speaker essayed to sacrificed, but emulated Johnston and fouled two off. Bingo, he rode the ball for a line double against the wall in right center. Smith drew three balls, but Davis pitched to him and finally got him on a grounder to Sisler. Gardner fouled to Severeid and it looked as if the danger had passed, but the Browns still had to reckon with Sewell, who drove a triple far over Jacobson's head in deep center, sending Johnston and Speaker across, while he also scored when Williams in relaying Jacobson's throw threw high over Lamb's head. Stephenson clouted viciously towards right, Gleason allowing the ball to hit him on the chest and recovered in time to throw him out.

The Browns came to life in the eighth after Sisler had led off by missing a third strike. Jacobson's third hit was a sizzling line double along the left field line. He advanced to third when Johnston tossed to Coveleskie for the out on Williams. Gardner was lucky to knock down Gleason's single back of third, Jake scoring. Lamb ended the round by striking out.

Indians Test Severeid's Arm.

The Indians tested Hank Severeid's throwing arm in the second and the two daredevils were nipped at second. Jamieson walked and raced for second on the fourth offering to Johnston, the count being two balls and one strike. Although Doc threw his bat at the offering, Severeid got the pill to Gleason in time to nip Jamie. Johnston followed with a hot single single over second, but was killed off on Hank's good throw to Gerber.

Luck Against the Browns.

The Browns might have got somewhere in the third with a little break in luck. Tobin started with a bid for a single towards left, but Sewell raced far to his right and back, throwing Johnny out from deep short. Gerber tried to pull away from a spitter, but his bat collided with the sphere for a fluke roller to Johnston, who tossed to Coveleskie for the out. Sisler walked and Jacobson hit the first ball for a resounding line single between Sewell and Gardner. Williams ended it with an easy bounder to Stephenson.

Boxing Lid May Be Lifted Soon Under New Rules

Impression Prevails That Commissioners Will Act Favorably on Resumption.

By John E. Wray.

The lid, which has been on and off the local boxing game in a Pinnegahesque manner, during the last decade, despite the fact that the same Missouri statute has governed conditions throughout, is expected to arrive at the "off" stage, in a few days, owing to the beneficent attitude toward well-conducted shows taken by our Board of Police Commissioners.

While no official word authorizing optimism has gone forth, leakage from the throne room has it that the department will endeavor not to suppress the game, but to mold it nearer to the heart's desire, the same being to see that the public gets a little more than two bits worth for four smackers and a war tax.

The Police Commissioners' supervision in the past has wrought gradual improvement in the pastime, locally; about the only thing lacking in St. Louis performances has been a breathable atmosphere, and high-price principals willing to give a high-class show. Suggestions that the limit might be increased to 10 rounds and decisions ordered, in the interest of improving the efforts of fighters, have been seeping through the barrage of official silence.

In the meantime it is being told in American Legion circles that the Governor may be called on to draft a bill that will embody his ideas of an effective boxing measure, with a view to passing it at the special session.

Storm Is Approaching.

Publicity units are already planting their batteries and getting the range on the public, preparatory to the grandest verbal cannonading that ever preceded a world's ring championship battle.

Preliminary testing of guns and cameras is already going on. Dempsey will settle down to real work in a day or two—and then ho, for the bombproof, all ye who are not interested! The D O P is in for a terrific gassing.

The reason lies in the widespread interest attaching to the match, due to its international character, and to the fact that for the first time in years Europe is able to supply a champion in the heavyweight class who possibly will prove able to make the American representative extend himself.

Whatever the book merits of the men, the fact remains that France thinks Carpentier the greatest heavyweight that ever donned a glove; while Americans KNOW that Jack Dempsey is, to say the least, the hardest American hitter of modern times.

No matter what the "dope" on Carpentier's past, his war record and his crafty publicity department—one Monsieur Descamps—have caused the public to forget everything. In America today there are many critics who appear to have decided that Carpentier's four or five knockouts, suffered at various [illegible] of his career, and his six years' absence from the ring [illegible] own out of the record and his chances estimated on his knockouts of the 32-year-old novice, Joe Beckett, and the collapsed light-heavyweight champion, Bat Levinsky.

Pete Herman's Setback.

After knocking out five successive foes, starting with Jimmy Wilde, Pete Herman's big drive toward the bantam title came to an end, temporarily, last week when he was outpointed by Young Montreal. Pete let out a fearful roar about the referee, etc., after this bout, but it goes as a setback.

However, Herman's record is as good since he lost the championship as Joe Lynch's has been bad since he won it. In short, the positions of the two men as respects fighting efforts have been exactly reversed since Pete and his crown separated at Madison Square Garden, a few months ago.

Whether the poor showing in both cases was psychological or merely safety-first we leave for the reader to guess.

Herman will probably be favorite when the pair fight again for the championship.

Mike Is Coming Back.

Emboldened by the "easy money" nature of the middleweight champion, Johnny Wilson, Mike Gibbons has withdrawn one foot from the pugilistic cemetery and expects to be all the way out and challenging the champion before long. Mike did hurl a defi, but the match has not yet been consumated.

Mike's victory over the lively and well-talked-of Chuck Wiggins seems to indicate that Mike's retirement was by no means enforced by failing powers. There are many who believe he will prove a dangerous foe for Wilson, if they meet.

Ames Relay Team Sets Fast Pace in 2-Mile Race

Missouri Valley Team Negotiates Distance in 7 Minutes 52 2-5 Seconds.

CEDAR RAPIDS STARS

Runners Capture Four Firsts and Set New Drake Relay Standards in Three.

DES MOINES, Ia., April 23.—Running the fastest two miles ever made by a team of American runners, the Ames (Ia.) relay quartet competing in the Drake relays at the Drake stadium today, came within two seconds of equaling the mark of 7:50 2-5 made by the combined team of Oxford and Cambridge last year in the Pennsylvania relays. Five other records for the games were shattered and one was equaled.

The Ames Relay team, composed of Arthur Wolters, Stanley Graham, Herbert Webb and Otis Higgins, smashed the American record of 7:53 for the two miles, held jointly by the Irish-American Athletic Club of New York and Yale University. Credit for winning the race belongs largely to Webb, who gave Higgins a lead of eight yards on the last relay. Higgins increased this advantage to 12 yards when he broke the tape. The University of Illinois team pressed the Hawkeyes from the start.

One Team Gets Three Marks.

While Ames bagged the lion's share of honors, the Cedar Rapids (Ia.) High School team also emerged with colors flying. The Cedar Rapids youths won four relay races and established new Drake records in three of them. Cornell also shared in the honor roll by winning the one-mile and two-mile relay in the college class. East Des Moines High School equaled the relay record for the high school shuttle race.

Although teams and individual stars from the Missouri Valley Conference won most of the honors, the Western Conference universities made a creditable showing. Illinois won the four and one mile races and finished second in the two-mile. Notre Dame took the half-mile university relay.

Athletes from the Missouri Valley won the honors in the two individual events. Wright of Nebraska, winner of the high hurdles in the Illinois relay carnival, won the 120-high hurdles with Wynn of Notre Dame in second place. The time was 15 2-5s. Deering of Nebraska won the 100-yard dash in 10s.

565 Athletes Competed.

The games were witnessed by a crowd of 6000 persons and attracted a record-breaking entry list of 565 athletes representing 36 universities, colleges and high schools.

The meet was regarded as a test for the Midwest athletes who are to compete in the University of Pennsylvania relays at Philadelphia next Friday and Saturday.

Penn Track Team Defeats Harvard

Eby and Smalley Are Stars of Meet—Crimson Gains One First in Track Events.

PHILADELPHIA, April 23.—Pennsylvania, the intelcollegiate champion, defeated Harvard in a track meet on Franklin Field today by the score of 69 1-3 to 47 2-3. Rain swept the oval during the meet and left the field and track soggy and unfit for record time.

Capt. Earl Eby and Everett Smalley of Pennsylvania, divided honors, each winning two first places. Eby gave his team 10 points in the quarter and half mile, while Smalley did likewise in both hurdles. The Pennsylvanians swept through the track events, losing only one first place when Ned Gourdin, Harvard, captured the century dash.

Today's victory is the first Pennsylvania has ever scored against Harvard in a dual meet. Harvard won the only two previous meets in 1896 and 1897.

The French runners, here for the Pennsylvania relays next Saturday, watched the American athletes and cheered impartially the good performances of both teams.

"These Americans are great athletes," said Rene de Leliva, coach of the French team. "It is a pity the elements ruined the fast time I feel sure would have been made."

AMERICAN WOMAN WINS IN THREE FINAL MATCHES OF BRITISH NET TOURNEY

LONDON, April 23.—Miss Ryan of California was conspicuous in three final rounds of the indoor lawn tennis championship tournament at Roehampton today, thus repeating her striking performance in the same tournament a year ago.

She won the singles by beating Mrs. Peacock, champion of India, in the final round; she carried off the doubles, paired with the former champion, Mrs. Larcombe, while she made it three straight by winning the mixed doubles with Randolph Lycett, the well-known Australian player.

Miss Ryan showed improvement, if anything, over a year ago. Her play was sound and she appeared to be equally strong off the ground and overhead. She is in fine condition for the approaching outdoor season.

W. H. Botsford of the United States went down before Gordon Lowe in the final round of the men's singles, but only after a bitter hard fought match.

An indication of the fight he made may be had from the fact that after losing the first three games of the opening set he carried it to 20 games before going down by a score of 11—9.

SOPHOMORES CAPTURE CLASS MEET HELD AT WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

Sophomores won the annual interclass track and field games at Washington University, yesterday afternoon. The second year students had matters rather their own way, tallying 71 points. The freshmen were second with 46 and juniors third with 45.

Members of the varsity squad competed with the class contestants, but their efforts were not permitted to count in the scoring. The seniors failed to enter.

Paddock, after winning the 100-yard dash, continued to a tape at the 100-metre mark, according to previous arrangement. Four watches caught his time for 100 yards at 9 3-5s. Four caught the 100-metre time as 10 2-5s.; one as 10 1-5 and two as 10 3-5s. There was practically no wind.

The world's record for 100 metres as recognized by the A. A. U. is 10 3-5s., made by D. F. Lippincott, United States Olympic team in 1912.

Punch, Not Bulk or Stature, Puts Crown on Athletic Champions

Johnston, Tennis; Ray, Runner; Landon, Pole Vaulter; Ewry, Jumper; Maranville, Ball Player and Wilde, Boxer, Prove There's a Place at the Top for Men of Diminutive Size.

By Robert Edgren.

(Copyright, 1921.)

A FEW years ago it was the fashion to think a man must be a giant to place among champions in any kind of sport. But that all changed about the time Jack Dempsey began hitting giants on the chin flattening six and a half foot behemoths of the ring like Fulton, Morris and Willard, practically "in a punch." Dempsey proved that the small man has a chance anywhere if he "packs the kick." Dempsey is only relatively a small man, compared with the giants he has beaten. There's a place among the champions in some line of sport for any man of any size, if he has brains and energy to do the work a giant can accomplish by sheer strength and bulk.

One of the greatest runners ever know nwas Alfred Shrubb of England, many of whose records are still on the books. Shrubb weighed about 120 pounds and was only a little over five feet in height.

Joie Ray, who broke some of Shrubb's records and is our modern champion at middle distance running—one to two miles—is only five feet three and weighs 138 pounds. Ray holds several world's records, on indoor and outdoor tracks, and has won a great number of championship races. He has been kept out of three or four important competitions by a strained tendon in his leg, but when in good form is invincible at his favorite distances. His indoor record for the one mile run is 4 minutes 14 3-5 seconds. He made it in Chicago, April 10, 1919. Joie Ray has a light, snappy running stride, and is very quick in getting away from the mark.

Richmond Landon of Yale, who won the Olympic high jumping championship with 6 feet 4¼ inches, is fairly tall, being 5 feet 10 inches, but he weighs only 122 pounds. Being light physically is no disadvantage in the sport he follows, for he has less weight than other jumpers to lift over the bar.

Raymond C. Ewry, the greatest standing jumper on record, and winner of 11 Olympic championships, was so light when a boy that the doctors thought he'd never grow up. He was also partly paralyzed as the result of an attack of fever. He began jumping to try to get control of his legs, at first being able only to shift his feet ahead a few inches. Within three or four years Ewry was breaking world's records at high and broad jumping, and he became a wonderful athlete. I think Ewry's case the most remarkable cure ever effected by steady athletic training.

The smallest great baseball player is "Rabbit" Maranville, Boston shortstop for four years, traded last winter to the Pittsburg Nationals to fill the position once filled by the world-famous Hans Wagner. Maranville stands only 5 feet 5½ inches and weighs 144½ pounds.

He is considered the best shortstop in the National League, his work comparing even with that of the long-armed, powerful Hans Wagner of years ago. He has a great throwing arm, and can go into the outfield after hits and throw to first base with a flat trajectory like a rifle bullet. He has a peculiar loping stride when running after a ball, which earned him the nickname "Rabbit." Incidentally he is a fair hitter, batting .275. He is great at getting bases on balls, being so short and close to the ground that the pitchers have only a small space in which to put over a strike.

Owen Bush, Detroit shortstop, one of the best in the American League, is of Maranville's height, is not quite as fast as the Rabbit, but is a better hitter.

Midget Tennis Champion.

Among champions of the tennis court William M. Johnston is a comparative midget, standing 5 feet 5½ inches and weighing from 117 to 122 pounds. In spite of his small size, Johnston uses a harder forearm drive than any other player, making up for other disadvantages with terrific speed. He has astonishing accuracy with all his hard hitting. He developed his speed by playing on the asphalt courts in California.

Wiry strength and ability to use a tremendous amount of energy made Johnston a champion. When he won the national championship by beating Tilden in the final in 1919, Johnston weighed 122 pounds at the beginning of the tournament and 117 at the end of the last game. After he game he drank two quarts of cold tea. Being of a very lean, wiry build, carrying no excess weight at all, five pounds was a big weight loss.

He was entirely exhausted after the last game, but kept his speed until the last point had been scored by sheer grit and nerve. He first won the national title in 1915.

William Tilden, who nosed him out for the title last year is an inch over six feet tall. They call Tilden "Big Bill" and Johnston "Little Bill." On a recent trip to Australia Johnston and Tilden had four preliminary matches on the Pacific Coast before sailing and Johnston won them all. He also outplayed Tilden in Australia and will undoubtedly put up a great fight for the title in the coming championships.

Little Wrestler Threw Giants.

Among the wrestlers, Earl Caddock was a comparatively light man, weighing only 122 pounds, yet he threw the big fellows. He went into the army and saw much fighting in France, being one of the few who preferred active service to a safe job in the Naval Reserve or some other semiprotected position. He was gassed and when he took up wrestling again was beaten by Stecher and by Lewis.

This Lewis is a fat, heavy man, but no giant as giants go in the mat game. If there are any more invincible Turks like Abdul and Nouroulah they are staying at home in Turkey. These giants weighed about 400 pounds and were nearly seven feet tall, and no ordinary man had the slightest chance in the world to turn them over.

Baseball fans remember "Wee Willie" Keeler, famous old-timer, who was so accurate with his infield hits that it was said he could "land the ball in a peach basket." Short stature was no handicap to Keeler.

Among American golfers Chick Evans is king, being holder of the amauteur championship title. Chick weighs only 130 pounds and is 5 feet 7 inches tall, but he drives a long ball, hits a long iron and is amazingly accurate with all shots from the tee to the putting green. He won both amateur and open titles in 1916.

Small size is no handicap to a boxer. One of the greatest little men in the ring is the English flyweight, Jimmy Wilde. He has beaten many of the best featherweights in the world, going out of his class to meet them.

Wilde has been fighting many years. His first decisive defeat was at the hands of Herman, former featherweight champion. But Wilde lost no credit in that fight. He is a little bit of a fellow, as can be seen by the fact that he was rejected four times for service in the British army because he weighed only 98 pounds. At his heaviest he weighed only about 105 pounds, and when he fought Herman the American lost his forfeit by failing to weigh in at 118 pounds, probably weighing over 120. This was too much of a handicap for a little fellow like Wilde—as Herman is a topnotcher in his own class.

Midget Is Popular.

Among the little fellows who are rapidly making a fortune in the American ring is "Midget" Smith, a bantamweight, who has recently taken two referee's decisions over Jack Sharkey in desperate and very even fights, and has beaten so many other good men in his class that he is next in line for a fight with Champion Joe Lynch.

"Midget" Smith, an unknown, went to Tex Rickard at the Garden a few months ago and asked for "a chance" in some of the preliminary bouts. He said he didn't care what money he received. Tex put him on and he won and kept on winning in every show, until the crowd looked for him and wanted to see him matched with the best in his class.

He is another Kid Lavigne in action, steadily, aggressive, full of pluck and determination, a Battling Nelson for throwing off punishment and a hard, accurate hitter. This "preliminary" boy is now getting his $10,000 for a fight, and he is still satisfied to let Rickard match him without asking a question or discussing the size of the purse.

Among the other little fellows who have shown great skill and fighting ability, are Jack Sharkey, a splendidly aggressive bantam, and Joe Lynch, the champion.

Lynch is a great fighting man. He knocked out Kid Williams before the war, becoming famous by that feat, fought through the campaigns in France, seeing much active service at the front, won army championships in the Interallied tournaments, came home and after winning several hard fought fights took the bantamweight title from Herman. Lynch weighs about 118 pounds, and compares well with such former champions and title holders as Dixon and McGovern.

You wouldn't expect a small athlete to invade such a field of athletic sport as weight throwing, yet a few years ago Julian Elliot was one of the greatest shot putters in the world. He won the Junior National championship at New Orleans with a 16-pound shot put of 45 feet—an amazing performance for a boy of moderate height and weighing only 145 pounds. Elliot won many events, but was compelled to retire from competition because his wrist couldn't stand the strain of the terrific drive he used.

Looking over the list, it is evident that nerve and grit can accomplish more than mere strength and bulk. No man is too small to become a champion in some branch of sport if he will put his heart into the task of getting to the top.

Three Notable Kentucky Derby Entrants Beaten

Tryster Defeated by Paul Jones and Exodus and Star Voter by Careful.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 23.—Three notable Kentucky Derby candidates—Tryster, Exodus and Star Voter—all prominent in the odds, had a public trial in two stakes at the Havre de Grace track and all were beaten. Star Voter and Exodus were starters in the Chesapeake Stakes, the former finishing second to Walter J. Salmon's Careful, which won in easy fashion by three lengths. Exodus made a poor showing and finished fourth, beaten nearly eight lengths.

Tryster, the Kentucky Derby favorite, started in the Susquehanna Handicap, a dash of a mile for 3-year-olds and upward. Tryster, though beaten, conceded big weight by the scale to each of his opponents. He carried 112 pounds, even weight with Paul Jones, the Kentucky Derby winner of 1920, and was only beaten by a scant length. The mile was run in 1:41 2-5, a marvelously fast performance over a track ankle deep with mud and water. It was a full second faster than Careful raced her first mile in the Chesapeake Stakes.

The defeat of Tryster was a keen disappointment to Harry Payne Whitney and a number of personal friends who came over from New York in Whitney's private car. The fact that Tryster had never met defeat, that this was his seventh start, considered a lucky one, and that he had worked well at Brookdale Farm previous to arriving here, caused the expectations of Whitney to run high for another victory.

Track Helped Paul Jones.

But it was not to be. The heavy rainstorm of the morning hours not only spoiled the track, but naturally assisted Paul Jones. He is a noted mud horse. Luck was again in his favor, just as before the start for the Kentucky Derby last year and for the Suburban Handicap at Belmont Park, rain fell and formed a soft cushion for his tender feet.

The interest of the 12,000 racegoers centered in Tryster. His prestige as the champion 2-year-old of last year and his prominence as the favorite for the Kentucky Derby, caused a big crowd to inspect him in the paddock while he was being saddled. It was his first public appearance in Maryland and the racegoers fairly swarmed over each other to get a look at him. Despite the fact that Tryster was conceding a year in age to Paul Jones and that the latter was a noted mud lark, the son of Peter Pan was made the favorite at 6 to 5 with Paul Jones second choice at 2 to 1.

Wins by a Scant Length.

It was a duel between Paul Jones and Tryster from the time they hit the back stretch to the winning post. Paul Jones took the lead and raced Tippity Witchet leg weary in the first quarter. Tryster, a length away, moved up to Paul Jones on the back stretch and they raced head and head to the furlong post, with Paul Jones always in front. Up to that point it was a toss of a coin which horse would win. But in the last hundred yards, Paul Jones, benefited by a previous start, his big pull in the weight and the favorable track conditions, drew out and in a driving finish won by a scant length.

Careful made a runaway race of the Chesapeake Stakes. Turner, who had the mount, beat the barrier slightly and with Nancy Lee at her saddle girth showed the way to the half mile post where she opened up a gap and won easily by three lengths. Star Voter went past Nancy Lee on the back stretch and made a gallant effort to overhaul Careful, but she proved too fast for him in the mud.

TWO BOYS DROWNED IN LAKE 5 BLOCKS FROM THEIR HOMES

East St. Louis Youths Were Wading in Pool That Had Been Deepened by Steam Shovel.

Edward Doddy, 8 years old, and Robert Edwards, 6, both residing at 1751 North Ninth street, East St. Louis, were drowned yesterday in Indian Lake, a short distance north of the city limits of East St. Louis, and within five blocks of their homes.

The boys, with Ruby Hamilton, 7, of the same address, without asking their parents' permission, went to the lake to fish. They started home about 2 o'clock, and when they saw a pool, near the railroad embankment, they discarded their clothing and started wading, believing the water was shallow.

Steam shovels had excavated in the bottom of the lake at that point, using the earth for road building purposes, and the boys stepped off into water seven feet deep. They sank immediately. The Hamilton girl screamed, and James L. Clancy, 26, of 1410 North Thirteenth street, East St. Louis, a clerk in the St. Louis Postoffice, jumped into the water and brought the boys to the surface. Efforts were made to revive them with a pulmotor.

Assistant County Physician Ryan was sent to the scene by Chief of Police Mulconnery, and he directed efforts to restore respiration. The bodies were taken to the Walsh morgue, where an inquest will be held today.

By the Associated Press.

SANTIAGO, Chile, April 23.—Several Argentine automobilists have arrived here from Bahia Blanca, after having crossed the Andes by the Southern Pass, the distance covered by the party being about 1100 miles. The journey was taken for the purpose of encouraging motor communication between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of South America.

MAN SHOT AND SERIOUSLY WOUNDED BY SALOON KEEPER

Ironworker Is Said by Assailant to Have Struck Wife When She Refused Him Whisky.

William A. Miller, 36 years old, of 3138 Easton avenue, an ironworker, was shot and seriously wounded yesterday afternoon by Alva J. Dowdle, 53, in Dowdle's saloon at 3505 Easton avenue.

According to Dowdle, his wife, Mrs. Anna Dewitt Dowdle, was serving drinks in the store yesterday afternoon when Miller entered about 3 o'clock and demanded whisky. When refused he is alleged to have become profane and struck Mrs. Dowdle, who then took a revolver from under the counter. Mrs. Dowdle went into the rear yard, where her husband took the revolver from her. On entering the saloon, Dowdle said, Miller swore at him and then made a motion toward his hip pocket. Dowdle fired four shots, one of which struck Miller in the abdomen. Dowdle and his wife are held at the Dayton Street Police Station.

At noon yesterday Miller, according to Dowdle, had gone to the saloon and said he would be back at 3 o'clock and "clean the place up." Dowdle and Miller had quarreled previously.

At the city hospital it was said Miller also was suffering from acute alcoholism.

OAKLAND INSTALLS OFFICERS

Newly Incorporated Village Governed by Five Trustees.

The first set of elected officers of the newly incorporated village of Oakland, St. Louis County, were installed at the home of Dr. L. D. Le Gear last Friday evening. The village is governed by a board of five trustees, and those installed were Dr. Le Gear, who was chosen as chairman; J. L. Cooper, John M. Curlee, T. L. Horn and Edwin S. Williams.

Oakland is 12 miles southwest of Union Station on the Frisco and Missouri Pacific railroads, and does not have a business house within its boundaries. The lack of an assembly hall makes it necessary to hold meetings at the homes of board members, who are commuting St. Louis business men.

Cocaine Found Hidden on Ship.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, La., April 23.—Cocaine estimated to be worth $35,000 at present retail prices, was unearthed by Federal officers today from a hiding place beneath coal in bunkers of the American steamship West Tolant. The drug was contained in 49 bottles. The West Tolant arrived here from Hamburg.

THREE STORE HOLDUPS BY YOUTH REPORTED

Young Man Gets $70 in One Kroger Establishment Without Show of Revolver.

Three Kroger stores were held up within 40 minutes last night, apparently by the same youth, $205 being obtained.

He appeared at 7:45 o'clock in the store at Spalding and Goodfellow avenues, pointed a revolver at William Ross of 6312 Isabel avenue and took $75 from the cash register, Ross reported to the police.

Fifteen minutes later a young man entered the store at 6114 Ridge avenue and took $60 from the cash register, Oscar Davis of 5707 Garfield avenue, the manager, reported.

At 8:25 a youth of the same description visited the store at Walton avenue and Kensington place, made no show of a revolver, but ordered William Meyer, 3529 North Newstead avenue, to stand aside and took $70 from the cash register. Meyer told the police he observed him enter an automobile which had been standing outside with engine running. He did not see anyone else in the machine.

Leo Middleman of 4226 Evans avenue reported that he was held up and robbed of $398 last night by two negroes as he was driving his automobile into the garage in the rear of his home. His son, Frank, was with him in the machine.

Home Robbed of Dresses.

Ralph Gildehaus, of the H. W. Gildehaus Wholesale Grocery Co., reported to the police last night that his home at 3672 McRee avenue was entered between 9 a. m. and 1 p. m. yesterday, and jewelry and clothing valued at $900 taken. Among the articles taken was a sealskin cape, valued at $500, and six dresses belonging to Mrs. Gildehaus. Neighbors reported that they saw a negro woman leave the house with two large bundles under her arm about 10:30 a. m.

Mrs. Earle Williams of 217 West Steins street was alighting from a street car at Grand and Gravois avenues yesterday when a man seized her purse, containing $2.63, and ran. Jacob Gass, 40 years old, of 4952 Hummel avenue, who later was arrested, had the purse in his possession. Gass said he had found it.

Beaten, Robbed of $100.

Steve Lakrzawski of 1416 North Twelfth street reported to the police yesterday that at 7 p. m. Friday he went to the home of a friend at 2224 North Twelfth street to get some tools that belonged to him, and after being invited by the friend and a stranger to have several drinks of whisky, he was beaten and robbed of $100. The police found on the third floor of the house three barrels containing 100 gallons of mash, a copper boiler and several other articles used in liquor manufacture. The occupants of the house have not been found.

VETERAN RIVER MAN HERE; ADVERTISES TO FIND FRIENDS

Want Ad Brings Call From Woman Acquaintance He Had Not Seen Since 1900.

PERSONAL—Charles Elmore of Paducah, Ky., is a patient at the United States Public Health Service Hospital, 5800 Arsenal street; will be remembered by all river men; visitors welcome.

Investigation of this notice in the want advertising section of the Post-Dispatch discloses that Elmore, who is 67 years old, had spent most of the last 40 years of his life on river boats and that he, on coming here 10 days ago for treatment as a merchant seaman, wanted to acquaint friends of his whereabouts.

One result of the notice was the visit of Mrs. Mollie Bates of 2730 Papin street, whom Elmore had not seen since 1900, when he stayed with her family in Golconda, Ill.

Elmore was found singing and playing the piano for convalescents in the Red Cross Hut. He said he had been in vaudeville several years.

"When I was 9 years old I ran away from home," said Elmore, "We lived in Smithland, Ky., on the Ohio River. One day I climbed on one of the steamers bound for New Orleans and hid among bales of hay. Well, I've been going ever since. Twice I came near not being able to tell about it. Once, in 1876, when I was at Golconda, a friend and I wanted to get to Cairo, so we hid on a coal flat. We were on it three days and three nights without a bit to eat or drink. The steamer Joseph Bigley saw our signals and finally took us off, but we were nearly frozen."

Elmore will be transferred tomorrow to the Barnard Skin and Cancer Hospital.

Personal Observations by Commissioner Brockman of Inactivity Result in Changes.

A few observations made by Philip H. Brockman, purchasing member of the Police Board, while passing through the Laclede avenue district Friday night resulted yesterday in the transfer of four Sergeants. The transfers are effective Monday.

The men affected are Sergt. John ("Babe") Kavanagh, from the Laclede Avenue District to the Angelica Street District; Sergt. Steven Collins, Laclede avenue to Deer street; Sergt. Thomas Hunt, Angelica street to Laclede avenue; Sergt. Joseph Biggio, Deer street to Laclede avenue.

Brockman, who is president of the De Luxe Automobile Co., has his office at 3128 Locust street, which is also in the Laclede Avenue District.

Sergeant Wasn't Busy.

Friday night, after leaving his office, he observed Sergt. Kavanagh near Compton avenue and Olive street. The Sergeant was not particularly engaged for the next 10 minutes, according to Brockman's observations.

A short time later Brockman observed Sergt. Collins near Jefferson avenue and Olive street for about 10 minutes. Neither was he particularly engaged.

Brockman believing that better use could be found for the time of the two precinct commanders, called the district commander and ordered that both Sergeants be made to report on their activities on the corners where he had observed them.

Sergt. Kavanagh accordingly reported he was watching a couple who had gone into a restaurant. Sergt. Collins reported he was on the corner because he had to see his beat men and was there to receive reports and to give instructions.

Yesterday at an informal gathering of the board at which Brockman, President Miller and William Young were present it was decided that both Sergeans should have been more actively engaged than when observed and they were ordered sent to other districts. Their transfers left vacancies in the Laclede Avenue District to which the other two were assigned.

Had Been Suspended.

Sergt. Kavanagh was one of the Sergeants suspended and later tried and reprimanded by the Mansur Police Board when Capt. Tierney, Lieuts. Dineen and Gunn were suspended for failing to suppress gambling in a club said to have been operated by Lawler Daley, Democratic Committeeman on Olive street last year.

Sergt. Hunt was formerly a detective and was transferred to uniform duty three years ago after trial on charges which involved the purchase of a diamond from a home in the suburbs.

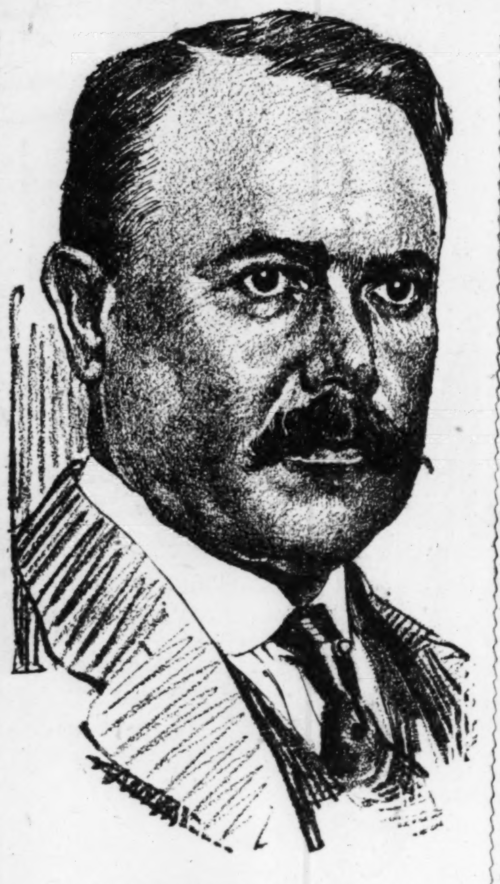
President Obregon Says Mexico Is Only Protecting Self From Exploitation by Big Interests

National Ownership of Mineral Resources Is to Guard Against Exhaustion, Not for Purpose of Confiscation — He Wants Americans to Know the Truth and Is Confident They Would Approve if They Understood His Good Intentions.

Declares to a Post-Dispatch Man That Enemies Who Have Made Their Wealth There Are Spreading False Propaganda to Force American Intervention—People Suspect Fall in Harding's Cabinet, but Hope Hoover and Hughes Will Be Their Friends.



PRESIDENT OBREGON.

By Clark McAdams

Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

WHAT is going on in Mexico may be illustrated by the following story: Some years ago, while en route to California, I overheard three citizens of Arizona talking about Senator Clark's great copper mine, the United Verde. They said this mine had produced enough wealth to have made Arizona a self-sustaining community almost without taxation, but that all she had ever got out of it was the necessity to police it, to have her Legislature manipulated, and to accept whatever taxes the corporation had consented to pay.

I did not know whether this exaggerated the situation in Arizona or not, but the story illustrates perfectly the situation in Mexico. Mexico does not want to be exploited by the great interests, which would leave her only an empty husk, and she is fighting to save herself from that fate. This is a battle against great odds, and foreigners down there in the best position to judge believe Mexico will lose it. They regard intervention as inevitable. Mexico is attempting to socialize her natural wealth, and this brings her into economic conflict with our own Government at every point of contact.

No Government can stand in Mexico without recognition by the United States. When we realize that the United States is unlikely to recognize any government in Mexico until the Mexicans retire from their socialistic program we appreciate instantly the difficulty of agreement between the two countries. The Mexicans have taken a stand, and they will probably depose any President who recedes from it. The United States, which has just termed Russia an economic vacuum, is almost certain to ask for recognition a price which Mexico says she cannot pay.

President's Position Difficult

The position of President Obregon is, therefore, about as difficult as one could imagine. Article 27 of the Mexican Constitution claims for the State whatever is underground. This is socialization of the oil fields and the mineral deposits of Mexico. The pressure upon President Obregon from outside the country to have that article abated is only equaled by the pressure upon him from inside the country to stick to it.

The interpretation put upon the article by the Mexicans is that while foreign capital may develop Mexico and take out oil and mineral, it may do so only by consent of the Mexican Government and upon terms imposed by it. The Obregon Government has not held this article confiscatory of oil and mineral under land legally acquired before the constitutional provision was adopted in 1917. Its critics insist that the article will be held to be retroactive. They demand its repeal. The interventionists pin to this article their hope of intervention. It is their case. If Mexico will not recede from it to gain recognition, then intervention becomes an economic necessity. Without it, say the interventionists, the riches of Mexico are lost to the world—her oil, her mineral and her timber.

Obregon a Sturdy Figure

This is the situation I found in Mexico upon going down there two weeks ago with the Chamber of Commerce excursion from St. Louis. I talked to people on all sides of the controversy. After the oil men and the representatives of aggrieved mining interests had told me their stories, I asked President Obregon to tell me his story. He readily consented to do that, and I was conducted to his office in the National Palace, where I talked to him through an interpreter. The President of Mexico is a sturdy figure. They say he never sleeps in the luxurious bed which awaits him over at Chapultepec, giving as his reason that after years in camp with his army he has disqualified himself for feather beds. He wears civilian clothes, and is never seen in uniform.

He goes about Mexico City freely and it is not uncommon to meet him on the sidewalk. He lost an arm in battle. He has blue eyes and a quick smile. He talks rapidly, and gestures a great deal with his single arm. He was standing in the middle of the floor when I entered the executive chamber, and remained standing there while we talked. He frequently laughed at parallels which we drew between the troubles of Mexico and troubles we have had in the United States. He recalled our Civil War and its severity, our exacting combats with those whom Mr. Roosevelt designated malefactors of great wealth, and certain precautions we had found necessary in the United States to keep big business from devouring us. This is Obregon's fight—a fight in which he is without the support of that great middle class which stands behind champions of the people in our own country.

There Is No Such Class in Mexico

Obregon is not unmindful of what everybody, including the Mexicans, have suffered during the revolutions. He is for repairing whatever may be repaired, for paying damages and getting Mexico back into the family of well-behaved nations. But that is not the issue in Mexico. It is not what will make or break Obregon.

"Tell me your side of the story that foreigners and their money are not wanted in Mexico," I asked.

"I am always grateful for an opportunity to tell our side of this story," he said. "We suffer in both countries from the lies told by people who first enriched themselves in Mexico and then turned to defame her.

"These are the enemies of both Mexico and the United States. I said that last night, while speaking before your delegation of business men from St. Louis, and I want to reaffirm it today.

Country Suffers From Lies

"It is not true that Mexico does not welcome development by foreign capital. She does welcome it. It is not true that we are confiscating foreign interests. We have never confiscated any foreigner's land, and it is not our intention to do so.

"What we are doing here is exactly what you have also had to do in the United States. We are protecting ourselves from exploitation. We do not want the natural riches of Mexico exhausted and the country left to buy, from some nation which conserved her wealth, the things we once had in abundance.

"If you will help us get this truth before the people of the United States you will do us a great service. We are not able to compete with the organized propaganda set up against us. Our best hope is that people will come here from the United States and learn that almost none of the things said about us is true. They will be glad, I know, to go home and refute the slanders of those whose interest impels them to circulate the report that foreigners and their money are no longer welcome in Mexico."

Do Not Want to Be Like Cuba

Since there is a Congress in Mexico, as there is in our own country, the President of Mexico cannot forecast its response to demands which may be made upon Mexico for recognition. The impression I got was that the Mexicans will die for the right to rule their own country. They do not want to become another Cuba. Not every American down there is unsympathetic with the principle which the Mexicans are attempting to establish. I talked to several who are entirely sympathetic with it. They consider that Mexico has a perfect right to name the terms upon which her natural wealth shall be taken, and they do not look without misgivings upon the inclusion in the Harding administration circle of Senator Fall and former Ambassador Fletcher, both of whom they list with those who would deny Mexico this right.

The Obregon Government is as strong as any Mexican Government can be under the circumstances. Whether we admit it or not, we hold a mandate for Mexico under the Monroe Doctrine. No other country is going to recognize the Obregon Government before we have done so. The British burned their fingers on Huerta, and they have no opinion as yet about Obregon.

Oil Interests Are Powerful

But is not this a situation in which we can sympathize with the difficulties of the Obregon Government, exactly as we can sympathize with the difficulties of the farmers of North Dakota? Our own Federal Trade Commission expressed the opinion that the packers had become more powerful than the Federal Government. We may, therefore, guess that the great oil interests, both American and British, are more powerful than any Government that Mexico can set up at this time. While Carranza was President of Mexico, his Government was not recognized in the Tampico oil district, where the foreign interests placed themselves under the protection of Gen. Manuel Pelaez and furnished the money with which that doughty little warrior held the district against all comers.

There is no quarrel between Obregon and Pelaez. Possibly there will be none. Pelaez is himself a considerable owner of oil land. Obregon is trying to be fair to the oil people, but he cannot continue President of Mexico and concede to them everything they want. That is his difficulty, and it is the difficulty of anyone attempting to govern Mexico under the shadow of that supergovernment which Mexico has arisen to cast off. Have we not ourselves arisen time and again to cast off that same supergovernment by those who otherwise would devour us?

Socialist Element Is Powerful

The Premier of Mexico is Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, Secretary of Government. Calles, so it is said in Mexico, leads the socialist element which dominates the Mexican Government. It is a powerful element, and has lost none of its effectiveness through the various revolutions since Diaz was deposed. The Mexicans felt that Diaz was giving the country away. Calles is trying to establish the principle of dominum directum on the part of the nation to the extent of its ownership in the common wealth underground. He is also attempting to divide the great Mexican haciendas and restore to the people some part of the land.

There is no such thing as having 160 acres of land in Mexico, as one is commonly found doing in the United States. A landowner in Mexico usually has from 20,000 to 100,000 acres. The Mexicans are trying to divide these great estates, but they are not giving the peons lands in severalty which they can sell, as our Indians have done. They design to give them only the use of it for taxes. They are also dividing only the lands of Mexicans. There are some smart men in Mexico. They know the mistakes of the bolsheviki and the French revolution. They know why we adopted the farm loans act. They think they know the way out in Mexico. They have established public schools and compulsory education. Calles is regarded by some observers in Mexico as the most practical radical in the world. They say he could make Mexico a model of compromises between extremes if the United States would let him.

The Americans in Mexico have suffered too much as a rule to look sympathetically upon what the Mexicans are trying to do. The old regime, which enjoyed under Diaz for so long special privileges which maintained it in ease and luxury, is bitterly opposed to Obregon—and behind Obregon the socialists, Calles and De la Huerta. All these people would like to see the United States extend her south border to Guatemala. Their high priest is Hearst, whose slogan is "From Canada to the Canal!"

Americans Have Suffered

The most comforting assurance the Mexicans and their American sympathizers have at this time is that this is probably not the slogan either of Mr. Hoover or Mr. Hughes. The Mexican question is under consideration now. According to dispatches some pronouncement of our policy is to be made before the last of the month. The expectation of all those who are opposing Mexico's attempt to escape the lot of Cuba is that before we recognize the Obregon Government we shall require a treaty in which Mexico pledges herself to conservatism. The Mexicans have refused to consider a treaty before their Government is recognized. They say they cannot do that, any more than they can consent to a reparations commission sent into Mexico to adjust damages during the revolutions.

Meanwhile, Mexico is at peace, her business relations with the outside world are being resumed, and trade is reviving. We can be friends again if the Mexicans will give up their advanced notions about what Mexico ought to get out of her natural wealth. If they can't give them up, as they say they can't, then perhaps those who think intervention inevitable are right. It seems to us absurd, but when did any people know what their empires were up to?

"No War Tax Reduction Possible Without Reduction in Armament," Says Daniels

"And Only a World Agreement Will Reduce Armament"

Until This Is Reached, Declares Former Naval Secretary, We Must Continue Our Naval Building Plans to the Point Where Our Force Shall Be the Strongest in the World.

Since So Large a Portion of Our Revenue Goes Into Warships and Army Needs, It is Idle to Talk of Smaller Federal Taxation Without Removing This Overshadowing Expense Source.

TWO eight-year members of the Wilson Cabinet have been in St. Louis in the past week, and both have spoken on national defense, the billions that it is costing, and how some of those billions can be saved.

David Franklin Houston, lately head of the Treasury Department, and previously Secretary of Agriculture, said to a dinner gathering:

> Since 1789 this nation has expended $9,000,000,000 in civil projects and $58,000,000,000 on militaristic projects, yet we are a peaceful nation. We still clamor for a navy, as big or bigger than any other in the world, and the late war has taught us what armies must cost in the future. How the nation is going to deal with its fiscal problem if it desires to continue that measure of a militaristic policy and if it further undertakes to maintain isolation, is difficult for me to discover. Certainly every right-thinking man must desire to bring about, by some rational process, a condition that will permit the expenditure of the nation's money for construction instead of destruction.

Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy from 1913 to 1921, who was here Thursday in connection with the Southern Methodist educational campaign, not only points to a condition, but urges a program. His argument is, in substance:

> There can be no reduction in war taxes without reduction of armaments.
> There can be no reduction of armaments without an international agreement.
> There can be no international agreement without a move by this country for such agreement.

Harding Takes Over His Policy

Former Secretary Daniels has seen his big-navy policy, as developed in accordance with the ideas of President Wilson, taken over in the last few weeks by the Harding administration and the Republican leaders in Congress. He hopes to see the new administration carry out a plan of gradual disarmament by agreement.

"Our war expenses will continue," he said in an interview at the Statler Thursday. "We will spend, next year, a billion and a half, unless we go into the League of Nations or establish an international understanding for arbitration.

"We must either have a navy so big that it will enable us to be a hermit nation, or we must reach an agreement with the other nations which, like ourselves, do not wish to spend all their resources on war and preparations for war.

"If President Harding desires," Daniels continued, "he can secure an international agreement within six months, as to the size of navies and armies. Such an agreement would leave enough ships to constitute a mobile police force on the sea, to be used against any nation which might in future try to imitate Germany.

"This would not require any action by Congress. The President could himself take the action on authority contained in legislation already enacted.

Way to Agreement Now Open

"The navy bill of August, 1916, embodying a three-year building program, which, because of war interruption, is still in course of being carried out, contains this express provision:

> "The President is authorized at such time as he may deem favorable to request a conference of all naval Powers, to submit the difficulties of nations to arbitration; and when he has made such an agreement, the ships authorized shall not be built, unless already under construction.

"The same measure which appropriates the money for shipbuilding thus authorizes the appointment of men to bring about an agreement.

"If President Harding were to appoint men tomorrow to represent the United States in a conference of naval Powers, for the purpose set forth in the act, I believe it would not take more than six months for an agreement to be reached.

"If, on the other hand, any nation should block such action by a refusal to come in, it would at once be made clear which nation was seeking to become the Germany of the future."

'No Help From Tariff in Restoring Trade; Interchange, Not Restrictions, Needed'

FORMER Secretary Daniels, as a Southern man, views with disgust, if not with alarm, the recent leaning of some Southerners toward high tariff doctrine.

"A committee of Southerners has been in Washington in the last few days," he remarked when he was visiting St. Louis. "They are asking for a high tariff, as a means of benefiting the South, as they consider it.

"The trouble with the South is that it lacks a market. It will not get a market by establishing new restrictions on trade.

"Furthermore, an interchange of trade with Europe is the only way that Europe will be able to pay her debt to us. High tariff legislation, of the kind that these men from the South are favoring, will be almost equivalent to annulling the debt of European countries to us."

Reverting to national finances, the former Secretary said:

"It is absurd to talk about reducing Federal taxation without reducing armaments. Our peacetime expenditures cannot be very much reduced, and ought not to be. Our rivers and harbors must be improved. The development of the country must go on.

Should Not Lose Treaty Benefits

"Measures of preparation for war cannot be suspended by the United States alone. This was provided for in the League of Nations covenant, as the very heart of the peace treaty. President Wilson saw to it that it should be in the treaty.

"The treaty not having been ratified, we should not lose its benefits because President Harding may wish some other way to be followed. A way is at hand, and can be followed without entering the League of Nations, or forming any new formal association."

"How many nations should be embraced in an agreement?" Daniels was asked.

"Senator Borah proposed that there should be only three," he replied; "the United States, Great Britain and Japan. In my judgment, that would be a tactical blunder, if nothing more.

"If the United States, Great Britain and Japan should have a treaty requiring them to act together under certain conditions, all the other nations might come to feel that it was an Anglo-American-Japanese alliance against the rest of the world.

"Why should we exclude France, or Italy, or Brazil, or Argentina, or Spain? To enlist the South American countries in harmony with us would give much greater strength to the arrangement.

"I urged that Senator Borah's resolution be amended to provide for all nations having naval establishments. The resolution was not so amended, and failed of passage.

Danger of Antagonistic Group

"The danger is that, after Germany has been required to make reparations, the world will again divide into antagonistic groups.

"Comparison of our naval strength with that of Japan is frequently made. Our navy in the Pacific is as large as Japan's, in total tonnage, and it has dreadnoughts, submarines and destroyers, but it lacks battle cruisers and scout cruisers.

"Japan, by its 8-8 program, proposes to construct eight battleships and eight battle cruisers in the eight years from 1920 to 1928. The Jutland battle showed the value of the battle cruiser as a destroyer, but showed, too, that it cannot fight against a dreadnought.

"Our naval program is to provide us with a fleet equal in total tonnage to that of any other nation."

Daniels was reminded that President Wilson, in his St. Louis speech of February, 1916, which was the basis of the naval program adopted later in that year, said:

> There is no other navy in the world that has to cover so great an area of defense as the American navy, and it ought, in my judgment, to be incomparably the greatest navy in the world.

Problem of Defending the Canal

"I am not taking the position that we need a navy as large as any two other Powers," Daniels said. "The Panama Canal furnishes a means of uniting the fleet in either ocean in a few days. All that is necessary is for the Secretary of the Navy to send out the one word, 'Unite.'

"It is true that the Panama Canal may be considered an element of weakness as well as an element of strength. It is not free from danger of being attacked and put out of commission for a period which would prevent it from performing its service of uniting the navy promptly.

"When the fortifications of the canal are complete, and a submarine force has been provided there, the danger of destruction of the canal by naval vessels would be remote. There is still the danger from the air, and the defenses of the canal will include defenses against air attack, and provisions for aircraft. Attacking aircraft, which would have to come across the sea or from a considerable distance, could usually be handled by the defensive aircraft—still, one cannot say just what might happen.

"However, I hope and believe that Congress will take the other alternative. I do not believe this Congress will adjourn without doing something. It would be criminal not to find some way to gather the fruits of the war.

Some Understanding Likely

"The present administration came into office on the votes of those who were opposed to various things, including the League of Nations covenant, or parts of the covenant. It still has difficulty in finding a platform on which all the elements could stand. But of those highest in the administration, President Harding has favored some understanding, and Secretary Hughes has favored the League covenant without Article X.

"Secretary of War Weeks demands an army of 175,000, while the legislation proposed is for an army of not more than 150,000. It is a question of money. The bill for increasing the navy personnel from 100,000 to 125,000 died, but will come up again. If there is danger of war, more than 125,000 will be necessary.

"When I went to Washington, a battleship could be built for $12,000,000—now it costs thirty-odd millions. Aircraft, of the type now required, is tremendously expensive.

"Not less than a billion will be required annually for a navy big enough and powerful enough to enable us to be a hermit nation, ready to fight everybody else at the drop of the hat.

"With us, this will mean continued high taxes and heavy burdens, but we can do it. For other nations, the requirements of a similar policy will be almost impossible.

"I talked with Lloyd George in Paris, and with representatives of France and Italy, and they felt that it would be a sin for the nations to go on in a tremendous competitive program.

What Could Be Done Now

"The 1916 program is now under way, and while the Iowa and the Massachusetts could be stopped, and $20,000,000 saved on each of them, it might be advisable to complete them and reduce total tonnage by junking old craft. We shall continue to need some ships of the best type for police duty, and ships 20 years old will not answer.

> "Adoption of a program for international agreement now would make it possible to omit the task, which otherwise must be undertaken by Congress not later than next fall, of framing a supplementary program, to keep up the naval expenditure in increasing sums annually."

Former Secretary Daniels is once more a North Carolina newspaper publisher. His personal attitude toward Washington affairs, as he now describes it, is that of being "on the outside, looking in."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

State System of Highways.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Knowing your interest in the good roads question, permit us to call your attention to the pending legislation that will be passed during an extra session of the Legislature, to be called by the Governor.

The subject we refer to is the authorization of road bonds, as provided in an amendment to the Constitution at the last election and the expenditure of same.

The city of St. Louis and St. Louis County paid into that fund last year from automobile license tax $456,253. The city alone paying $388,579—not one cent of the above can be spent within the city of St. Louis. The only way that the city of St. Louis may derive a benefit worth while out of the expenditure of this money is to get the right sort of a system of roads for Missouri, giving to the city an opportunity to get out into the State and the people out in the State an opportunity to get into the city by continuous highways, and for the above reasons we take the liberty of addressing you on the subject and familiarizing you with our opinion and desires in this matter as citizens of St. Louis.

We heartily indorse a State system of highways, connecting as many of the industrial and populated centers of the State as the money will provide. We unreservedly indorse a policy that will build a type and character of road that will last at least during the life of the bond issue, as far as the money at hand will construct.

We favor a primary and secondary system of roads for Missouri, laid out for the purpose of serving the largest number of people consistent with the State's good, and we believe the plan as provided in House bill No. 530, introduced by Mr. Bailey (by request), to be along the line that will give to us the desired results.

If we are to expect a return on the money that St. Louis will pay into that fund for the next 30 or 40 years, it necessarily follows that a primary system of roads connecting the east and the west, the north and the south of Missouri and connecting at the State lines with other state roads is absolutely essential and necessary. Before this bond issue has been paid off, the city of St. Louis will be paying into the State Treasury $600,000 annually. This amount of money is stupendous and should bring to our attention the fact that upon the work of the next Legislature depends whether Missouri and St. Louis will get what she deserves and should have in the way of highways for the money expended.

This expenditure should be regarded in terms of State and not counties.

W. V. BAILEY,
Chairman Public Affairs Committee, St. Louis Kiwanis Club.

The 50-Cent Gun Tax.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

A letter from a Missourian recently appeared in which he protests regarding the payment of a 50-cent tax for recording the serial number of guns and revolvers with the Sheriff's office—this in order to prevent murders and to trace those who have committed crimes.

If the additional work involved and payment of the small fee required will make it more difficult for lawbreakers to obtain firearms, does it not appear that this is a wise measure?

Laws have their advantages and disadvantages, but I believe they are made for the benefit of the people as a whole—Missouri farmers included.

If the payment of 50 cents will have a tendency to prevent even a few promiscuous shootings, it appears very cheap at the price. LEE.

Birds.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The earth could get along without man, but not without birds. Man is not essential to the earth; birds are.

Birds are the flying squadrons of nature, doing police duty, now North, now South. They follow the seasons, not for comfort, but on duty. As summer comes, danger comes from pests, and so the birds come. As summer goes, danger recedes, and the birds go back to their Southern duty.

Wherever there is an abnormal outbreak of insect life, the birds mobilize there to check it. Flying over a country, they can tell by the foliage of the trees if they are needed there; withered forests tell them that the enemy has appeared in force.

Birds are the great planters of the earth; they seeded vast spaces of wilderness and crowned the crests of rocky hills with trees. They are the guardians of our orchards and grain fields. Carnivorous birds, like eagles, vultures, crows, hawks and herons, keep the earth clean of decaying flesh that would otherwise pollute soil and water.

Whenever you look at a bird, you see a most wonderful creation. It is a greater traveler and a stranger creature, comparatively, than you will ever be. To kill it is to affront nature. The bird has beauty, music, fleetness, wonderful domestic skill and devotion, and these have always appealed to refined natures. To lower natures the economic appeal must also be made. Don't kill birds. If the birds were entirely to disappear tomorrow, human life would not endure long thereafter. N. H.

DISARMAMENT BY AGREEMENT.

Peace is now the chief concern of man. The hope and aspiration of the world for permanent peace rest upon an association of nations to guarantee peace through arbitration, an international tribunal and disarmament. The League of Nations was the outgrowth of the plan to end war to which the nations were committed at the conclusion of the world war. The rejection of the existing League by the United States confuses the situation and checks progress, but ultimately the solution of the problem lies in the organization of an effective league or association.

Meanwhile, the competition in armaments, one of the most potent factors in the promotion of imperialism and war, goes on apace. Not only does the building of great armaments make war inevitable in time, but it places ruinous burdens upon the peoples of the civilized nations.

The most effective method of reducing armaments to a peace minimum is by general agreement obtained through an international league or association, but armament building can be checked by agreement of the leading Powers to reduce armaments, particularly naval construction, until a general agreement can be brought about.

The Harding administration is pledged to an effort to obtain a conference of the chief naval Powers looking to an agreement to check naval construction for a term of years. President Harding is committed to this effort and a bill has been introduced in the House of Representatives by Representative Rogers of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, with the tacit consent of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, authorizing the President to call a conference of representatives of the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan for the purpose of reaching an agreement for the reduction of armaments. Undoubtedly a resolution to this effect will be adopted by Congress. Regardless of congressional action, ex-Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, in a clear and forceful interview on the subject published in today's Post-Dispatch, points out that the President is authorized in the navy bill of August, 1916, which provided for the three-year naval building program, interrupted by the war, to request a conference of naval Powers, with a provision for checking the program when an agreement shall be reached.

The importance of armament reduction as a means of averting war and of relieving the people of ruinous taxation cannot be overestimated. Armaments are hounds of imperialism and war, and expenditures for them exceed all other governmental expenditures. Secretary Houston, in his speech at the St. Louis Club, pointed out that "since 1879 this nation has expended $9,000,000,000 in civil projects and $58,000,000,000 in militaristic projects. Yet we are a peaceful nation. Ex-Secretary Daniels estimates that if we maintain our position of isolation in international affairs and no armament agreement is reached, we will spend a billion and a half in war preparations next year. The costs of armament programs on sea and land and in the air have enormously increased, and continued competition in armaments would ruin the nations crippled by the war and impose a staggering load on the American people. It would force war as an alternative of economic ruin.

We assume that an agreement among the leading Powers is the absolute condition of the reduction of armament or a cessation of competition. No nation can check or reduce armaments without an agreement. It would expose itself to destruction. It would be suicidal.

We assume, in accord with Mr. Daniels, that the nations must organize an effective league to promote peace (and the United States must enter it) or an agreement of the leading naval Powers must be reached, or we must build and maintain a navy equal, if not exceeding, that of any other nation.

The continuance of our naval building program and the effort to obtain an agreement to reduce armaments are corollaries. The continuance of a big navy program is necessary to our safety, without agreement, and the cost and menace of war preparation are the strongest arguments for an agreement to cease competition in armaments.

We may accept in the main as sound Mr. Daniels' summary of the armament situation and of the steps necessary to disarmament:

> There can be no reduction in war taxes without reduction of armaments.
> There can be no reduction of armaments without an international agreement.
> There can be no international agreement without a move by this country for such agreement.
> Therefore, the new administration should take steps to save the people a billion dollars a year.

The logic of the situation is irresistible. On the one side are staggering costs and taxes and the menace of war; on the other is economy and the promotion of peace.

The stake in obtaining an agreement overshadows every other consideration, because it involves all the problems of peace, reconstruction, economic rehabilitation and resumption of industry and trade. It involves the progress and prosperity of our own and of all peoples.

The necessity of immediate steps to bring about a disarmament conference and agreement is manifest. Leadership rests with us. There should be united purpose and effort on the part of the Government and the people to assure the realization of this object. Prompt action is imperative.

LEGENDS AND REALITIES.

The Victoria whom popular imagination invested superlatively with the gentleness, poise, Puritanical earnestness—a "serene and pensive Madonna" on a throne—was, as a matter of fact, of the earth earthy. At least so Lytton Strachey says in a book soon to be published, of which a precis recently appeared in the Post-Dispatch. Mr. Strachey, who has pried the glamor off of other "Eminent Victorians" in an honest search for their real characters, is qualified for the task of painting Victoria as she was. He tells us she was a domineering person, as a sovereign deaf to ministerial argument, and in her domestic affairs could, and did, put on an occasional royal tantrum.

The service of such a book will be questioned by those who at any cost would keep their illusions; but such a study is eminently preferable to the prevalent American tendency of molding our historical figures into "plaster-of-paris saints." That "first-class fighting man," George Washington, as Ingersoll observed, "has become a steel engraving," and the same process is at work on Lincoln, whom the pen-and-inksters seem determined to fashion into the likeness of St. Gaudens' esthetic model.

In the appreciations evoked by the emancipator's latest birthday anniversary there was a note of apology for the pine knot's midnight oil and the rail splitting. The endearing term, "Homely Abe," we were informed, was wrong, as was the reputed carelessness in dress. Another half century and this snobbish denial of provincial privations and the resolution which overcame them, promises to achieve a miracle with Lincoln—to beau-brummel and belvidere him.

The Stracheys, however, come betimes, to find the truth and pass it along. Thanks to that fact, posterity that wishes to know the truth will see history's Cromwells with their warts.

THE MISSISSIPPI MESSAGE.

The Nation's Business, in its May number, reports a general improvement. Prospects are brightening. Among the auspicious signs are the resumption of automobile production, a better demand for lumber and other building materials and that always happy augury—the excellent condition of winter wheat. The survey further remarks the restricted cotton acreage compared with last year, which, however, will probably be counterbalanced by the greater crop diversification.

The darkest cloud on the industrial horizon is the high freight rates. Designed to increase railroad earnings, they have defeated their purpose. They have seriously reduced tonnage. They are characterized as "prohibitory."

The blight of the excessive rates is particularly noticeable in their effect on the early fruits of the far South. Formerly at this time those fruits, so welcome after the winter's canned diet, embellished Northern markets at reasonable prices. They are present this year, of course, but not in their old-time opulence and at costs quite beyond the reach of the average purse. The reason is the transportation charges which are four or five times as much as the price the fruit grower receives.

But there is a rift in the transportation clouds. Events occurred during the past week of significance and promise to the whole country. The arrival at New Orleans of the towboat New Orleans, with a cargo of between 13,000 and 14,000 tons of freight, is the biggest news item of the week. Its magnitude can be appreciated when put into terms of railroad service. That boat did the work of 560 freight cars, or 19 trainloads of 30 cars each, the average freight train in current practice.

Two other events of reassurance were the christening of the Gulfport, sister ship to the Mobile, which was launched the same afternoon at the dockyards of the St. Louis Boat and Engineering Co. The Mobile is a steel barge, 280 feet long, 50 feet wide, with a capacity of 2000 tons—the equivalent of 85 freight cars, or almost three trainloads.

Sponsored by beauty and baptized with wine, in the presence of an enthusiastic assemblage, the ceremonies of christening and launching incarnated all the traditions of river romance—a colorful occasion prophetic of the great river's resurrection to a national and world service.

The War Department has just sold 81,000,000 pounds of canned meat at 6 1-2 cents a pound, for which the Government paid 34 cents and the market price of which is 21 cents, for a neat net loss of about $22,000,000. With the Grand Old Party in charge you can depend that public affairs will be conducted on a business basis.

EINSTEIN IS ALL WRONG.

The Einstein theory of relativity, concerning which many of us have entertained rather grave doubts, is entirely erroneous. Moreover, Dr. Einstein himself, though a gentle appearing wight, is a villain of the deepest dye and a conscienceless muckraker, if Prof. See of the naval observatory at Mare Island, Cal., has been correctly quoted. To be sure, Prof. See does not bring those charges directly, but such deductions may be extracted from the professor's comment.

Suppose we grit our teeth and trek along with Prof. See for a minute and see what we shall see. Dr. Einstein's initial blunder, we are informed, was in abolishing ether. Now, it happens that ether is the supreme speedster of them all, with a record of 240,000 miles a second. Some bird, the professor truly remarks. Ether has other claims to distinction. It is the cosmic cement, the essential glue, that holds the world together. If ether should be Volsteaded, as Dr. Einstein proposed, the present universe would go whirling into the void. Such an exit might evoke one last, expiring round of applause from the Bolsheviks, but it would sternly, if fleetingly, be disapproved by the rest of us.

Not satisfied with dispatching creation into chaos, Dr. Einstein has had the audacity to declare that light is crooked. Prof. See counsels us to disregard such scurrilous testimony. Light, he says, is not crooked. It is not deflected by the "influence of gravitation," as Dr. Einstein says, nor is it lured from the straight and narrow by starry sirens or the jazz of the spheres. Light is irreproachable and dependable.

That is about all for the theory of relativity, from the scientific point of view. Whether any practical observations are pertinent may be debatable. It appears, though, that Prof. See regards Dr. Einstein, who has been given the freedom of the City of New York, as a product of those "legally chartered" schools to whose prospective graduates our Governor has just awarded the freedom of the State of Missouri.

JUST A MINUTE IN MEXICO.

MEXICO CITY—When we go down to Mexico from the United States one of the first things we undertake is to find out whether or not the people of Mexico like us. This is a natural inquiry, because we have so mixed good with evil in our relations with Mexico that one could not very well guess the result. It is likely to seem to us at home that Mexico, because of the Monroe Doctrine, is our debtor. We feel that except for the Monroe Doctrine the country would long ago have been taken away from the Mexicans by some predatory power. Considering it at home we cannot think of anything outweighing if balancing that great kindness to Mexico, and our disposition is to look for gratitude from the Mexican people.

That is our point of view. It is quite well known to us at home. It is not, however, the Mexican point of view. We find that out when we come to Mexico. The Mexican people know all about the Monroe Doctrine. They are not without gratitude for the respects in which it conserves for them their liberty. They have not forgotten our protest when the French set foot in Mexico and Napoleon III put upon the throne the Emperor Maximilian. They are quite aware that this happened at a time when we were too busy fighting our Civil War to enforce the Monroe Doctrine in Latin-America, nor are they forgetting that when we could get to it our protest left Maximilian without the support of France. That record is straight enough in the Mexican public mind. So much for our credits. Now for our debits. The Mexicans have never forgiven us for their loss of Texas. Texas is an empire. Today even, so I am told by people who know this subject, there is a community of race among Mexicans upon both sides of the Rio Grande. "I have lived in Mexico for 30 years. I have never known a Mexican who did not grieve for Texas," an American said to me. "They somehow don't feel that way about California or anything else they have lost or sold. Texas is their Alsace-Lorraine."

When you stand on the great rock at Chapultepec and look off over the white capital of Mexico—one of the loveliest prospects anywhere—you may see at the foot of the rock a monument to the cadets who fell at Chapultepec when that stronghold was captured by American troops in the war of 1847. What the legend upon that monument says about the end of those cadets is not comfortable reading for tourists from the United States, any more than we can read in comfort what is inscribed upon the monument at San Jose, Costa Rica, commemorating the victory over Walker's filibustering expedition. One does not care to judge at this time the necessities of one's country as they were conceived in time past. Nevertheless, there is your monument to those cadets, and that is what Mexico feels about it.

But more than either of these, perhaps, is the Mexican fear of what we could do if we would. Another American said to me: "Nothing has opened the eyes of the Mexicans like the feats of the United States in the world war. It was then the giant revealed his strength." Dear reader, if you were of that part of the world, could you always be sure that the giant's strength is not to be abused? Could you always be sure that might is not to our right, as it has been the right of so many giants? There is no way in which you could comfort yourself with that assurance, and there is no way in which Mexico can comfort herself with it.

Now let us sum up. The Mexicans do not dislike us. They don't like us as much as they would had we not done some things to them they have never relished. Nevertheless, they consider us a great people and appreciate the noble impulses of which we are capable. More than one Mexican orator has told us down here that the unselfishness we displayed in the world war is without parallel in history. "You are a great people to have taken that high ground when civilization was weltering in sordidness," one said. They would like to be friends. The anti-Americanism of Carranza was not a true expression of what the Mexican people feel. That was Carranza, who disliked us. It is different now under Obregon, who likes us. If Mexico could feel that our great strength is not to be abused at her expense, all the Mexican people would like us. It is difficult to be fond of those we fear. Mexico is afraid of us. She does not know whether the purity of our motives is always going to be equal to the impurity of our wants. Can we be sure of that, would you say? I am afraid not. There are many people in both countries who feel that Mexico as a part of the United States would be the garden of the world. When you remind these people that California under the Japanese would be pretty much the same thing they begin to scratch their heads. A great deal is being said of Mexico's strictures upon foreigners owning land in that country, but there is nothing in Mexico like the law which forbids Asiatics to acquire land upon any terms in California.

We need Mexico, as Mexico needs us. It is difficult now, when the greatest oil field in the world is in Mexico, for us to be as good friends as we can be when the tumult and shouting of sucking the oil out of the earth goes on to the United States of Colombia, or whatever country is next to be milked dry and left to mourn for its young. Oil is a terrible thing in the world. We will have a better world when it is gone. Oil is the greatest commercial commodity on earth in our time. If you have it, the world comes in on you and takes it. Resistance is useless. Oil is king, and if you have it you will not be long hearing the tread of his armies. Nations are an incident. They can resume after the oil is gone. Nobody cares about boundaries and flags. Oil is the thing.

The Paseo de la Reforma in Mexico City is one of the finest boulevards in the world. Before I left the Mexican capital I sat down upon one of the great stone benches beside that magnificent street and enjoyed a last look at it. Here the height of the buildings is in strict architectural relation to the width of the street. There are seven great circles, each 300 feet in diameter. In each circle is a piece of statuary, including one monument to Columbus. Between the sidewalks and the open street are two rows of trees, with lawns and flowers between the rows. The facilities for looking on from this shade are the finest I have ever seen on any boulevard, consisting of long seats with inclined backs where one may rest him truly. Upon the Paseo de la Reforma there occurs every afternoon from 4 until 6 o'clock such a procession as one cannot see anywhere in the United States. It is at this time that Mexico City turns out for the air. Seeing that parade of fashion, of wealth and luxury, of beauty and happiness, one would not guess that any grandees have fled from Mexico; that revolution has for 11 years devastated the country, and that all sorts of people, all pretty much called Bolsheviks by the old regime, have from time to time ruled the republic. It looks as if nothing had happened. It must be hard for something to happen and really leave its mark.

TO MY MAW.

SOMETIMES I think I love not life.
Sometimes I think I love not Men,
Nor Health, nor Sport, nor even God,
And Nature makes me sick; and then
I nudge my Soul and say to It:
"I think that I would like to quit."
To which my Soul makes answer: "Pshaw!
What matters? You still love your Maw."
And so I toss a laugh at Life,
And pass a thousand smiles to Men,
And wave a gay salute to God,
And frankly wink at Nature; then
My Soul jabs me and says, says It:
"Old Son, your Maw won't let you quit!"

EIGHT-HOUR DAY AT STEEL MILLS.

From the Chicago Tribune.

THE United States Steel Corporation, according to a reliable report from Gary, Ind., has determined to establish the eight-hour day in its mills throughout the country. That marks a victory for American standards and Americanization in general which can hardly be overestimated. Despite the hardship of a 20 per cent reduction in pay which accompanies the reduction in hours, it is a victory for the most important principle established in a century's steady improvement of the conditions of labor. The 12-hour day and the seven-day week in the steel mills have been a handicap to the best interests of the steel towns and the country, as well as of the individual worker. Opportunities for rest, recreation, education and Americanization have been restricted to a prohibitive extent. Alien workers have remained aliens instead of becoming Americans. The system has been a dangerous irritant to organized labor and a deterrent to progress. The corporation is to be congratulated upon finally seeing and preparing to remove all these disadvantages. It will profit. The change will put the steel worker on the same basis as the workers in almost all other lines of industry. They will have opportunity to conserve their health and strength to extend their energies and ambitions, to educate themselves and their families, and to become American citizens in the best sense of the word. Not the least important immediate advantage of the change will be the provision of jobs for many thousands of workers now idle. In the Gary mills alone three shifts will call for about 10,000 additional employes when full production is restored. Many thousands now idle in steel towns throughout the country will return to work. They accept a 20 per cent cut in pay, but even so they will be earning a living, and through the exercise of their purchasing power will be contributing to the restoration of general prosperity, which in turn may eventually restore the old wage scale. At the same time a reduction in the price of steel products should serve to stimulate many lines of manufacturing. Altogether, the decision promises well for employer, worker and consumer alike.

WOMEN IN THE ARMY.

E. ALEXANDER POWER, in Harper's Magazine.

THE duties of the camp hostess and her assistants do not end with chaperoning the girls visiting the camp; they must supervise the welfare of the girls working there as well. Where women employes of the various staff departments live on military reservations, the hostess makes the necessary recommendations for insuring them the best possible living conditions; she likewise provides lunching and resting places for those who arrive on early trains and leave in the afternoon. She is also expected to promote social recreations for the army nurses on duty at her camp and to interest herself in the social life of the families of the married men. It will be seen, therefore, that a successful camp hostess must be an executive, an adviser, and a diplomat combined. All appointments to hostess work are made by the War Department as the requirements of the army demand, with the understanding, however, that appointments so made are probational and dependent upon a satisfactory completion of the training courses mentioned. Attached to the staffs of the various department commanders are a number of supervisors, chosen from women of wide experience and special qualifications, who are charged with assisting the department E. & R. officer in supervising and co-ordinating the work of the various hostesses throughout the department and in furthering the development of cordial relations between the military establishment and the civilian community.

LIBERALISM IN CLASH WITH CONSERVATISM IN SUPREME COURT CASES

law forbidding the discharge of an employe because of membership in a labor organization. Justices Holmes, Day and Hughes dissented.

1917—Invalidation of a Georgia law touching the speed of trains approaching public crossings. Justices White, Pitney and Brandeis dissented.

1919—Invalidation of the Employment Agency law of the State of Washington. Justices Holmes, McKenna and Clarke dissented.

Division of Thought.

The foregoing list which is by no means exhaustive, suggests the division of thought that has existed in the Supreme Court, particularly since Justice Holmes of the liberal group was joined on the bench in 1916 by Justices Clarke and Brandeis. "Brendeis, Clarke and Holmes dissenting," has come to have a familiar ring.

Supreme Court Judges are eligible for retirement after they have passed the age of 70, and served for 10 years. The two qualifications must be co-existent. Four of the Justices could now retire if they wished —Chief Justice White, who is 75 years old, and has served 27 years; McKenna, 77 years, with 23 years' service; Holmes, 80 years, the oldest man on the bench, with 18 years' service, and Day, 72 years, with 18 years' service.

Every now and then a report crops up that some one of the four is about to retire. Usually the report is connected with the name of the Chief Justice, who, it is stated, has only been waiting so that his successor might be appointed by some President other than Wilson. In this connection it is widely believed here that when White or some other Justice does retire, the vacancy will be offered to former President Taft. Taft's first love was the Supreme bench; the presidency was high second choice. Though it is altogether likely that Taft's ambition will be gratified at the first opportunity, there is no present indication that any of the four men mean to retire in the near future. All four are active on the bench, and the oldest of them, Justice Holmes, belies his years in his physical spryness. Age certainly has not dulled the edge of his mental keenness.

Vacancies May Occur.

While there is no immediate likelihood of any change on the Supreme bench, the age of the four now eligible for retirement is such that vacancies may occur in the next eight years. If President Harding should serve eight years it would not be unlikely that he would have the appointment of four Justices. Former President Taft stressed this probability in the campaign, adding that "there is no greater issue in the election than the maintenance of the Supreme Court as the bulwark to enforce the guarantee that no man shall be deprived of his property without due process of law." It was one of his reasons for urging the election of Harding that Harding would be a better man to name Supreme Court Justices than Gov. Cox.

In view of the possibility that Mr. Taft himself will be the first Harding appointee to the Supreme bench, his opinion of the three Wilson appointees is particularly interesting. It was given in an article in the Yale Review of last October. "Mr. Wilson," said Mr. Taft, "is in favor of a latitudinarian construction of the Constitution of the United States, to weaken the protection it should afford against socialist raids upon property rights. He has made three appointments to the Supreme Court. He is understood to be greatly disappointed in the attitude of the first of these (Justice McReynolds) upon such questions. The other two (Justices Brandeis and Clarke) represent a new school of constitutional construction, which, if allowed to prevail, will greatly impair our fundamental law."

Others who have been suggested as possible appointees under Harding are Charles Evans Hughes, who resigned from an Associate justiceship to run for the presidency, and George Sutherland, former Senator from Utah.

One may or may not agree with Mr. Taft in his estimate of Justices Brandeis and Clarke, but there can be no dissent from his judgment as to the tremendous power inherent in the right of the President to name the men who exercise judicial control over legislation. The trend of thought of the "odd man" on the bench may work far-reaching effects.

YOU'LL GET RID OF BLACKHEADS SURE

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, and that is to dissolve them.

To do this, get two ounces of calonite powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear, leaving the parts without any mark whatever. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions from the body that form in the pores of the skin. Pinching and squeezing only cause irritation, make large pores and do not get the blackheads out after they become hard. The calonite powder and the water simply dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition. Anyone troubled with these unsightly blemishes should certainly try this simple method.

PRINTERS TO DISCUSS WAGE ISSUE TODAY

Scale Committee to Make Offer in Effort to Avert Strike Over 44-Hour Week.

A special meeting of Typographical Union, No. 8, has been called for 2 o'clock this afternoon at Gambrinus Hall, 3621 Salena street, at which the Wage Scale Committee will outline its plans of an offer to employing printers with a view to reaching an agreement on the 44-hour week, and thus avert a strike May 1. The International Typographical Union on this date proposes to institute the short work week, and the employing printers represented in the St. Louis Typothetae have served notice on the union that the 48-hour week must be continued.

It is understood the union leaders propose to offer in exchange for the basis 44-hour week a wage scale of 90 cents an hour for the first 44 hours and $1.25 an hour for overtime Saturday afternoon. This is a reduction of 2¾ cents in the hourly scale for the first 44 hours, but four hours' overtime on Saturday would compensate for the difference between the proposed scale and the prevailing scale of 92¾ cents an hour, based on the 48-hour week.

R. T. Deacon, chairman of the St. Louis Typothetae, said the employers had information that such a proposal would be made, and added that it would not be accepted under any circumstances.

"Decision on 44-Hour Week Final"

"Our decision is final as to the 44-hour week," Deacon said. "We will not consider any proposition in which it is mentioned or even implied. We will not negotiate for an agreement on anything other than the 48-hour week. We are determined to hold this ground regardless of what action the union may take."

Thirty St. Louis periodical publishers, in a circular letter to the printers and their employers, appeal for a spirit of conciliation to avert a strike, stating that a suspension of work by the printers would seriously damage their business. The letter says, in part:

"Apparently each side has delivered an ultimatum to the other, and has announced its stand upon a position from which it declares it will not recede; and those respective positions are declared to be in direct opposition to each other. Permit us to call attention to the fact that this is the accepted and certain method of provoking relentless war. It is to this method of procedure that we herewith enter our emphatic protest. We are justified in registering our opposition to this course because of our intimate relationship to the industry, because of our vital concern in its methods of conduct, and because of the jeopardy in which our interests and the interests of those whom we serve, are now being placed by the present attitude of the printing employers and employes. We further submit that no just cause can be injured by intelligent and open discussion. If each side feels secure in the wisdom and justice of its contentions, the opportunity to present its cause to an impartial tribunal should be sought and welcomed."

Letter Signed by Periodicals.

The letter was signed by the following periodicals published here: American Paint and Oil Dealer, American Paint Journal, National Druggist, The Drygoodsman, Mid-Continent Banker, Farm Machinery and Farm Power, St. Louis Furniture News, Auto Review, Milling and Grain News, Sporting News, Sporting Goods Dealer, Interstate Grocer, America at Work, Shoe Repair Service, The Jewish Voice, St. Louis Christian Advocate, the International Musician, Standard Masonic Publishing Co., The Medical Brief, Missouri A. LABOR IS DIVIDED ON PLAN TO REFER COMPENSATION LAW

Damage Suit Lawyers Behind Scheme, Charles J. Lammert, Building Trades Head Charges.

SAYS 5 CENTS A NAME PAID FOR SIGNATURES

M. J. Cassidy, Secretary of Building Trades Council, Asserts Act Is Bad and He Will Fight It.

A movement recently started in St. Louis by certain labor leaders to invoke the referendum for repeal of the Workingmen's Compensation Law, enacted by the last Legislature, indicates that labor again is divided against itself with respect to compensation, as was the case in several previous attempts to enact a law satisfactory to all concerned.

Through the instrumentality of certain labor leaders of St. Louis and Kansas City a Workingmen's Compensation Law, passed by the previous Legislature, was defeated in a referendum Nov. 2, last, and notwithstanding that Central Trades and Labor Union, the Building Trades Council and Metal Trades Council, the three big union central bodies of St. Louis, are in favor of giving the new law a trial, although it does not meet entirely with their approval, and attempt to amend it from time to time, there is an element in local labor circles that must have in full what it wants, or nothing.

This element met Thursday night in the office of Thomas J. McNamara, secretary of the Asbestos Workers' Union, and it was stated after the meeting that no action was taken. It was said that 16 trades were represented at the meeting, including Maurice J. Cassidy, secretary of the Building Trades Council. Cassidy belongs to the Hoisting Engineers' Union, and said he attended the meeting as a delegate of that union.

It is known that this group proposes to assist in the circulation of petitions for a referendum on the new law, and that the leaders are attempting to align a large part of the labor membership in behalf of the movement.

Says Labor Isn't Committed.

Charles J. Lammert, president of the Building Trades Council, said the group that met at McNamara's office had no authority to commit labor to any movement for a referendum, and that labor, as represented in its official bodies, was for giving the new law a trial, in its present form, and if needful later on, to amend it.

"Cassidy, McNamara and others as official representatives of labor, have no authority to commit union labor in general to this movement," said Lammert, "for the law as it stands is a good start and should not be repealed.

"I understand this movement for a referendum is being financed by damage suit lawyers and ambulance chasers who seek to prey upon the workingman, and we thus have reason to be distrustful of the real purposes of the movement.

"We hear that petitions are to be circulated for a referendum and that 5 cents a name is to be paid the circulators. May I ask who is financing the movement? Organized labor is not, neither are the employers. The only others interested are damage suit lawyers, and we conclude that since their interest is so keen in workingmen's compensation, labor would better not align itself with the.

"The Building Trades Council has not indorsed the movement and will not do so. We are content to give the law a trial, and warn workingmen against signing petitions in the interest of those who have nothing in common with labor."

Central Trades Not for It.

Joseph Hauser, president of Central Trades and Labor Union, said that body had not indorsed the movement for a referendum, and that he believed the sentiment of a majority of the delegates was for giving the new law a trial.

The bill as passed by the Legislature was agreed upon by the State Federation of Labor, and the employers at joint conferences, as a compromise following repeal of the previous compensation law.

Cassidy said he opposed the law because it was a bad one in that it does not provide State insurance nor embrace public employes, among other things, and again for the reason that it does not contemplate full measure of compensation to all employes in the building trades.

He said the Hoisting Engineers' Union, which he represented at the meeting at McNamara's office, had officially indorsed the referendum and appointed him delegate to impart this information at the meeting, and that he was not being paid by anyone for opposing the law, but was working openly for the referendum because he believes the law will operate against the interests of the true spirit of compensation.

It will be recalled that Cassidy was among the foremost opponents of the law that was repealed and has led the faction that always insisted upon monopolistic State insurance as the first desire of the workingman.

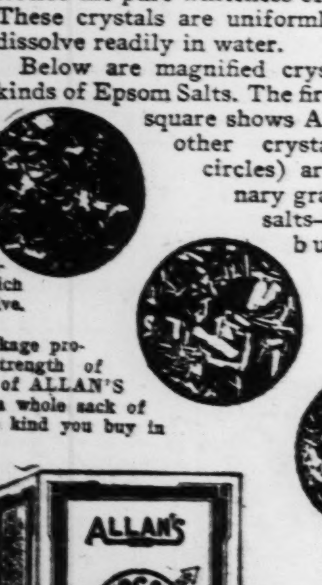
Make This Simple Test WITH ALLAN'S EPSOM SALT

Shake out a quantity into your hand. Notice the pure whiteness of the crystals. These crystals are uniformly fine. They dissolve readily in water.

Below are magnified crystals of four kinds of Epsom Salts. The first view in the square shows ALLAN'S; the other crystals (in the circles) are those ordinary grades of epsom salts—the kind you buy in bulk.

Notice the difference.



ALLAN'S is 4% stronger than any other epsom salts. It shows the highest percentage of magnesium sulphate, the element which makes epsom salts effective.

The sanitary sealed package protects the purity and strength of ALLAN'S. One package of ALLAN'S will do more good than a whole sack of ordinary epsom salts—the kind you buy in bulk.

It's easy to say "ALLAN'S," and it means a lot, for it's pure.

"OWN YOUR HOME" EXPOSITION WILL OPEN TOMORROW

More Than One Hundred Exhibits of Houses Will Be on Display at Coliseum This Week.

TO GIVE AWAY LOT AND HEATING PLANT

Prospective Home Builders Will Be Told How to Finance Plans and Where to Locate Residences.

The St. Louis Own-Your-Home Exposition will be opened at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Coliseum and will continue, afternoon and evening throughout the week.

It is the first exposition of its kind held in this city and is being sponsored by the Building Industries' Association with a view to stimulating home building. There will be more than 100 exhibits, many of which will show the prospective homebuilder how to finance, plan and build his own home, while a comprehensive exhibit of the City Plan Commission will show where homes should and should not be built.

There also will be exhibits of model homes of from three to six rooms, with full plans and specifications, and the management of the exposition has arranged with the owners of these plans to sell them at nominal prices. Building material of all kinds will be shown, together with house furnishings, home labor-saving appliances and the latest schemes in artistic decorations.

As an inducement to arouse interest in home-building, a complete heating plant for a six-room house and a building lot will be given away to exposition visitors.

The St. Louis Public Library will have an exhibit of a model home library, and the St. Louis Tuberculosis Society will show an ideal room for sleeping and also in contrast, a room unfit for human habitation.

Adolph Boeckeler, chairman of the Exposition Executive Committee, and Mayor Kiel will open the show with short addresses, and throughout the week short addresses on the advantages of private ownership of homes will be made by architects, builders, real estate men and others who have specialized in the housing problem. There will be band concerts both afternoon and evening throughout the week.

Robert L. Burch, 715 Equitable Building, managing director of the exposition, said a large number of persons from outlying towns had requested reservations and that several thousand tickets had already been disposed of.

BAND CONCERT FOR SOLDIERS IN HOSPITAL THIS AFTERNOON

American Legion Organization Plans Series of Similar Affairs for Wounded Men.

The American Legion band will give a concert at 2:15 this afternoon at the U. S. Public Health Service Hospital, 5300 Arsenal street, for the enjoyment of wounded soldiers who are being treated there. The band will include about 40 pieces.

The legion band is a comparatively recent organization, formed with the especial purpose to provide cheer for recuperating soldiers, a series of concerts for those in hospitals here having been arranged. The band is desirous of enrolling former service men who play suitable instruments. It meets for rehearsal Thursday evenings at 5035 Delmar boulevard.

PAWNBROKER HELD UNDER NEW ANTI-REVOLVER LAW

Negro Says He Purchased Weapon and Ammunition From Market Street Man.

The first arrest in St. Louis, on a charge of violation of the new State law forbidding the sale of firearms to persons without permit, was made yesterday.

Meyer Wittles, 23, who conducts a pawnshop at 1919 Market street, was charged with selling a revolver and cartridges to Fred Williams, 3207 Morgan street, a negro. Williams declared that he bought the revolver in a shop to which he had taken his watch to be repaired. Detectives took the ticket for the watch, found the watch and then demanded of Wittles a record of the sale of the revolver such as the law requires.

Wittles denied the sale. Williams identified him as the man from whom he had purchased the revolver for $13.50.

DRY AGENTS, AFTER STILL, ARE SMOKED OUT OF CLAY MINE

Fumes of Burning Oily Waste and Rubber, Coupled With Odor of Gas, Repulse U. S. Officers.

Federal prohibition enforcement agents, twice smoked out of Fred Gittens' clay mine at Page avenue and Walton road, St. Louis County, have abandoned the planned invasion for the present. They have received information from various sources that a still is being operated there, and are anxious to explore the mine, but gas masks are not included in their equipment.

They went out last Tuesday and questioned Gittens. He denied that there was a still in the pit. He went down the 80-foot shaft with them. At the bottom of the shaft they found a tin receptacle filled with burning oily waste and rubber which was intended to smother any other odors that might have been thereabout, but which failed to do this, according to the agents.

As they started along the entry there were a number of explosions in the depth of the mine, and clouds of smoke and gas blocked their advance, and drove them back. Other attempts were made during the day to penetrate the mine, but each time the explosions were repeated, and the smoke and gas drove them back.

They went back Thursday and found the lights out. The electrician said he was very sorry, but something was wrong. The agents found that what was wrong was that the fuses had been removed. They obtained fuses and put them in, and got the lights going again.

They went to the shaft and found that the cage was not in operation. Nobody could be found who could get it started. They climbed down the air shaft and found at the bottom of it a pool through which they had to wade. That was about as far as they got. The explosions began again, and they were driven back through the pool and up the ladder to the fresh air.

Gittens says he has 12 Americans and two Italians working in the mine and he is positive that all of them are digging clay and none of them is making whisky.

Besides the odors which repulsed the agents and strengthened their suspicions that a still was in operation somewhere in the clay pit, the only discovery of value made by them in their visits to the place was a spacious dug-out opening from one of the passageways in which a large number of new tin cans, each of five-gallon capacity, were stored.

The agents were informed that the various leads in the clay pit extend for some distance, but because of anonymous warings they did not penetrate far in their searches.

TELEPHONE Toll Service rates are graduated according to the cost of furnishing the service. "Station-to-Station" service is less expensive than "person-to-person" service because it is not necessary for the telephone company to locate a particular person.

By using "station-to-station" service when it will answer your needs, the cost is 20% less than the "person-to-person" service.

FURTHER savings are possible by selecting the time of day when the call is made.

"STATION-TO-STATION" calls between 8:30 p. m. and midnight are charged at "Evening Rates" and the cost is about 50% less than the day "station-to-station" rate, when the day rate is 50 cents or more.

"STATION-TO-STATION" calls between midnight and 4:30 a. m. are charged at "Night Rates" and the cost is about 75% less than the day "station-to-station" rates, when the day rate is one dollar or more. Reduced rates do not apply when the "station-to-station" day rate is 25 cents or less.

MANY subscribers are taking advantage of this service, which is speedy and less expensive.

ANALYZE YOUR REQUIREMENTS AND USE "station-to-station" service wherever possible.

To place a "station-to-station" call, reach the long-distance operator in the usual way and say—"I wish to talk to anyone at Main 678, Chicago," or—if you don't know the telephone number—say, "I wish to talk to anyone at James Smith's residence on 'A' street, Chicago."

SOUTHERN PRESBYTERIANS BEGIN CANVASS FOR $500,000 TODAY

The actual canvass for pledges to the fund of $500,000 for the four State institutions of the Southern Presbyterian Church will begin today in all its churches in Missouri. Sermons on the subject of Christian education will be preached by pastors and teams of laymen will begin to canvass the memberships for pledges on a five-year basis.

The institutions for which the canvass is to be made are Westminster and Synodical Colleges, Fulton; the School of the Ozarks, Hollister, and the Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky., which is partly owned by the Missouri Synod.

Final plans for the campaign were perfected in Westminster and Central Churches at dinners for lay workers last week. John F. Green is financial chairman in Central Church and Dr. F. M. Gordon in Westminster. John M. Atkinson is campaign chairman for the State, President John James of Synodical College, executive secretary, and Edward H. Foot, campaign director.

MAY 12 TO BE OBSERVED AS "HOSPITAL DAY"

8000 Institutions Will Make Effort to Inform Public by Service They Give.

Thursday, May 12, will be generally observed throughout the United States by 8000 hospitals as a "National Hospital day," on which special efforts will be made to inform the public as to the services that the hospitals give. May 12 has been selected because on that day Florence Nightingale, pioneer in modern hospital and nursing methods, was born.

In St. Louis there will be receptions and exhibits at the two hospitals maintained here by the United States Public Health Service, the Marine Hospital, at 3640 Marine avenue, and the Public Health Service Hospital, at 5800 Arsenal street.

Established in 1857.

The Marine Hospital was established to care for merchant seamen, having been opened in 1857. In June, 1918, as a general hospital, it began furnishing treatment to disabled ex-service men, and continued to do so until July 1, 1919, when all patients except those having tuberculosis were transferred to the Arsenal street hospital.

The capacity of the Marine Hospital is 70 patients, who are cared for by two medical officers, one attending specialist, eight nurses and 45 other employes. Its patient population numbers 55.

The Arsenal street hospital was one of the first hospitals established by the Public Health Service when Congress, March 3, 1919, directed it to care for the wounded and disabled soldiers. It was an army hospital during the war and was taken over July 1, 1919. It is used as a general hospital.

Capacity 650 Patients.

Its capacity is 650 patients, who are cared for by 28 medical officers, four dental officers, 43 nurses and 298 other employes. Like most hospitals, its actual patient population fluctuates widely from day to day. At present it numbers 575. The daily turnover is about 23 discharges and about the same number of admittances. In addition to the regulation hospital treatment carried on at this institution, there is a physic-therapy and occupational therapy department. The physiotherapy treatment includes the use of electrical apparatus, hydrotherapy and massage. The occupational treatment consists chiefly in the teaching of several kinds of handicraft, such as basket weaving, metal working, rug weaving, etc., which assists in bringing back to normal the use of stiff or partially stiff joints, assists in the restoration to normal function of injured nerves, contracted muscles and tendons and helps to keep the patient occupied, thereby lessening the tediousness of hospital life.

Hospitals Have Increased.

The hospitals operated by the Public Health Service have steadily increased, both in number and capacity, since Congress authorized the service to provide hospitalization for patients of the War Risk Bureau. On that date the service was operating 22 hospitals (all belonging to the Marine Hospital Service) with a total capacity of about 1500 beds. On June 30, 1920, it was operating 50 hospitals with more than 12,500 beds; on Jan. 1, 1921, 58 hospitals with about 14,500 beds; and on March 5, almost exactly two years after it took hold, 61 hospitals with 17,650 beds. The 61 hospitals include 12 for tuberculosis patients, seven for neuro-psychiatrics, one for epileptics and one for lepers.

Patients Cared For.

The patients cared for in these Government hospitals consist of "War Risk" beneficiaries and of earlier beneficiaries of the service (merchant seamen, lighthouse attendants, Coast and Geodetic Survey employes, etc.). The War Risk patients numbered 12,400 March 5, 1921, and the other beneficiaries 3150. The service has been compelled to place many of its patients in civilian hospitals, where they are cared for under contract. The number of these contract patients has risen from about 5000 in Jan. 1, 1920, to 10,500 on March 5, 1921, nearly all being War Risk patients.

The personnel of the service now comprises about 3200 physicians, 150 dentists, 1400 nurses, 400 reconstruction aides and 125 dietitians. The nurses are still about 300 short and additional dietitians are needed.

COMET 2½ TIMES BRIGHTER NEXT WEEK THAN AT FIRST

Heavenly Body Named for Winnecke to Be About Same Distance From Sun as Earth, June 13.

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 23.—Winnecke's comet, the periodic which, acording to Dr. Crommelin, a British astronomer, will approach very near the earth in June, is increasing gradually in brightness, but is still much too faint to be seen with the naked eye. Word to this effect has been received at the Harvard College observatory from Prof. A. O. Leuschner of the Students' Observatory of the University of California, at Berkeley.

The comet will approach nearest to the sun on June 13, when its distance from the sun will be nearly the same as that of the earth. According to the computations of Prof. Leuschner, the exact distance from the sun will be about 93,000,000 miles. It is estimated that on May 5 the comet will be about 2½ times as bright as when detected on April 10, but still visible only through fairly large telescopes.

The computations received here did not show how near the comet would come to the earth, but astronomers generally interpret the prediction of "very near" made by the British astronomer as meaning a distance of millions of miles.

Thousands Are Nervous Wrecks

From Weak, Thin Watery Blood

without ever suspecting the real cause of their trouble — Iron-starvation.

A New York Physician says that MORE THAN ONE HALF THE POPULATION OF AMERICA PERISHES BEFORE MIDDLE AGE and that one of the chief contributary causes of this terrible waste of human life is the devitalizing weakness brought on by lack of iron in the blood.

THERE ARE 30,000,000,000,000 RED BLOOD CORPUSCLES IN YOUR BLOOD AND EACH ONE MUST HAVE IRON.

An enormous number of people who ought to be strong, vigorous and in the prime of life are constantly complaining of weak nerves, headaches, pains across the back, disturbed digestion, shortness of breath, a general "run-down" condition, melancholy, bad memory, etc., when the real cause of all their suffering is IRON STARVATION OF THE BLOOD.

The proof of this is shown by the fact that when organic iron is supplied to their blood that all their multitude of symptoms often quickly disappear, and the very men and women who were formerly so complaining now become strong, healthy and vigorous, with even dispositions and sunny, cheerful natures.

Nature put plenty of iron in the husks of grains and the skins and peels of vegetables and fruits to enrich your blood, but modern methods of cookery throw all these things away—hence the alarming increase, in recent years, in anaemia—iron starvation of the blood, with all its attendant ills.

If you are not willing to go back to nature, then you should eat more such iron-contains vegetables as spinach and carrots and reinforce them by taking a little organic iron from time to time. But be sure the iron you take is organic iron, and not metallic iron which people usually take. Metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron, and is therefore an entirely different thing from organic iron. Organic iron is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. It may be had from your druggist under the name of Nuxated Iron.

Nuxated Iron represents organic iron in such a highly condensed form that one dose of it is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating one-half quart of spinach, one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen apples. It's like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat.

Over 4,000,000 people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. A few doses will often commence to enrich your blood and revitalize your wornout, exhausted nerves. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain satisfactory results. Beware of substitutes. Always insist on having genuine organic iron—Nuxated Iron. Look for the letters N. I. on every tablet. At all druggists in tablet form only.

NUXATED IRON ENRICHES THE BLOOD-GIVES YOU NEW STRENGTH AND ENERGY

Cleavage in Rent Cases Recalls Occassions When "Latitudinarian" Construction of Constitution Stood Out Against Legalistic Interpretation.

WASHINGTON, April 22.

THE five-to-four decision of the United States Supreme Court this week in the New York and District of Columbia rent cases again brings into sharp relief the cleavage in the court on social and economic questions. In this instance, the three Justices who have stood consistently for what Mr. Taft calls a "latitudinarian" construction of the Constitution, as opposed to a strict or legalistic interpretation, were joined by two others in upholding the validity of the two statutes in dispute. Broadly speaking, the result was a victory for human rights over property rights for the "liberal" school of thought represented most conspicuously in the court by Justices Holmes and Brandeis, and in less degree by Justice Clarke. These three were reinforced in the rent cases by Justices Day and Pitney, and opposed by Chief Justice White and Justices McKenna, McReynolds and Van Devanter. Though affirmed by a bare majority, the statutes are made the law of the land quite as effectively as if they had been upheld by all nine members of the court.

Divided opinions have been common in the long history of the Supreme Court; study of the records reveals, indeed, that virtually no case of transcendent importance has been decided without dissent by one or more Justices. Many great decisions have been made by a five-to-four vote. Nowhere is the "power of the odd man," as someone has epitomized majority rule, more strikingly exemplified than in the annals of the greatest legal tribunal in the world.

What Taft Said of Brandeis, Clarke and McReynolds

"MR. WILSON is in favor of a latitudinarian construction of the Constitution of the United States, to weaken the protection it should afford against Socialist raids upon property rights. He has made three appointments to the Supreme Court. He is understood to be greatly disappointed in the attitude of the first of these (Justice McReynolds) upon such questions. The other two (Justices Brandeis and Clarke) represent a new school of constitutional construction, which, if allowed to prevail, will greatly impair our fundamental law."

Great Domestic Issues.

They are fascinating annals, these records of the Supreme Court. Nearly all the great domestic issues that have confronted the country have been brought to a focal point in the court's opinions. The issues of slavery, of states' rights, of trusts, of capital and labor, of prohibition, to mention but a few of the greater, have come to the court in various forms and have been fought over by lawyers before the dais of the black robed Justices and again by the Justices in the privacy of their chambers. The conflict of opinion that has marked the court's decisions in vial cases is but a reflection of the conflict that runs through the whole people when fundamental issues are at stake. Among men of varying temperament, different degrees of imagination, opposing political faiths, appointed at different periods by presidents of rival parties, there is bound to be sharp divergence of views on matters of great importance in the national life. Unanimity would be remarkable.

Several recent decisions have emphasized the present day split in the court between the so-called "liberal" element and the opposing, generally the majority, school of thought. In dissenting from majority opinion upholding convictions under the espionage act in a number of cases, Justices Brandeis and Holmes were always together. They were again together, without re-enforcement, in opposing the majority opinion which upheld the Burleson order denying the second-class mail privilege to the Milwaukee Leader for alleged seditious editorials. Liberal thought throughout the country, as well as many newspapers that could hardly be accused of radicalism, condemned the decision of the court as a blow at the freedom of the press and applauded the minority views of Brandeis and Holmes.

Dissented From Majority.

The same two Justices, with Justice Clarke, dissented from the majority opinion in the Duplex case, which organized labor has declared inimical to its rights. In this decision the court held illegal a boycott which labor agents had set up against products of the Duplex printing machinery factory and directed the issuance of an injunction to prevent interference with the sale of transmission of Duplex products in interstate commerce.

It was by a five-to-four vote that the court last year, in the Ruppert case, held that Congress was within its rights in passing the war prohibition act and in defining intoxicating liquors as beverages containing one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol. The dissentin Judges here were McReynolds, Day, Van Devanter and Clarke.

By four to three the court decided in 1920 that the United States Steel Corporation was not a monopoly in the meaning of the antitrust act, and that the public interest would not be served by its dissolution. Justices McKenna and Brandeis took no part in the decision. Justices Day, Pitney and Clarke dissented.

Justices Brandeis and Clarke dissented from the decision of the same year which exempted stock dividends from taxation.

Justice Brandeis was in disagreement with the decision of the court that upheld the antisedition statutes of Minnesota. Chief Justice White also dissented, but on different grounds, holding that the subject matter was within the exclusive legislative power of the Federal Congress.

One of the most notable five-to-

four decisions of recent years was that in which the court nullified the child labor act, by which Congress had sought to prohibit the transmission in interstate commerce of goods made in factories employing children under 14 years, or children between 14 and 16, more than eight hours a day. The court declared that the act exceeded the powers of Congress to regulate commerce and invaded the powers reserved by the Constitution to the States. From this view, Justices Holmes, Brandeis, McKenna and Clarke dissented.

Employes Held Liable.

Another decision in which strict construction of the Constitution prevailed over human welfare grew out of a suit under the New York workmen's compensation law, which made an employer liable for the death of an employe upon a gang plank between a vessel and a wharf. There was no dispute as to the authority of New York to impose such liability for a death on a wharf, but the court held that the provision in question contravened the article of the Constitution which confers exclusive jurisdiction of all admiralty cases upon the United States courts. Congress later sought to achieve the desired end by passing a law which, in effect, adopted as Federal law the workmen's compensation statues of the various States. The Supreme Court again held that Congress had exceeded its powers. In each case the decision was by five-to-four vote, Justice Holmes speaking for the dissenters.

The cases thus far mentioned, constituting but a few in which there has been division of opinion, are all of recent date. Going back into the annals of the court, one finds that from the beginning the Justices have been at odds in significant cases, sometimes dividing on political lines, sometimes on the age old line separating property from human rights.

The Dred Scott Case.

The story of the Dred Scott case, to cite perhaps the most famous of all, is part of the history of the country. In this case, decided March 6, 1857, Chief Justice Taney in the majority opinion held that Dred Scott, a Missouri slave, had not effected his emancipation by going into free territory. Of greater moment than the statement of Dred Scott's status was the celebrated obiter dicum of the court to the effect that the Missouri compromise had been unconstitutional. This meant that all Federal restrictions on slavery in the territories were invalid. The decision roused the North to fury and helped measurably to hasten the day of the Civil War. The decision in the Dred Scott case was by six to two, one Justice not participating.

Almost equally famous were the legal tender cases, in which was recorded a reversal of the Supreme Court by itself. The question was brought up to the court shortly after the Civil War whether Congress had a right to make the currency, authorized by it in 1862 and 1863, legal tender for debt. The Supreme Court held on Feb. 7, 1870, that it was not legal tender for debts contracted prior to the passage of the legal tender acts of those years. The decision was by vote of five to three, the court then consisting of eight members. A storm of opposition swept the country.

Shortly after the decision, one of the Justices of the majority group resigned and Congress increased the number of Justices to nine. That made two vacancies, which President Grant filled with Judges favorable to the legal tender acts. A rehearing was granted, and in December, 1870, without any Justice then on the bench having changed his opinion, the clauses of the acts which had been declared unconstitutional by a vote of five to three were upheld by a vote of five to four.

Income Tax Law of 1894.

Standing out in any summary of famous cases is that in which the income tax law of 1894 was held unconstitutional. No case since the Civil War has stirred up more excitement or more bitter feeling. The contending factions in the court itself were more than once on the verge of personal hostilities. The decision was that the tax on incomes, in so far as it applied to incomes from property, real or personal, was a direct tex and, therefore, void, because not apportioned as required by the Constitution. There were two hearings. On the first, at which there were only eight members of the court, Justice Jackson being ill, it was held that a tax on income from real estate was a direct tax, Justices White and Harlan dissenting. The court announced that it was equally divided as to whether a tax on income from personal property was direct.

On a rehearing as to the nature of the tax on incomes from personalty, Jackson having returned to the bench, Fuller, Field, Gray, Brewer and Shiras held the tax direct, and Harlan, Brown, White and Jackson dissented. It was stated at the time, but it never has been officially established, that Justice Shiras was the one that changed his vote on this point.

Tax Law Invalidated.

By a five to four vote the Court held that the entire tax law was invalidated by the unconsitutional portions, the law not being separable. It was this case that led to the adoption of the Sixteenth Amendment to the Constitution, which specifically gives Congress the right to collect income taxes, from whatever sources derived, without regard to apportionment among the several states or to any census or enumeration.

Says a writer in the Central Law Journal for Sept. 19, 1919:

"One man's appointment to the bench, one man's vote, one man's obiter words, have not only produced the most momentous events, but have often fixed the destiny of our country for all future time." He names 45 important cases in which decisions have been reached by five to four. Some of these have already been reviewed. Two others should be mentioned: The slaughter house cases of 1872 and the Northern Securities case of 1904.

The decision in the former, involving as it did the construction of the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth amendments of the Constitution, is one of the most important since the Civil War. The Louisiana State Legislature had granted an exclusive privilege to a corporation to maintain slaughter houses in a certain area, including the city of New Orleans. Its right to make the grant was upheld in the Louisiana Supreme Court, whose decision was affirmed by the United States Supreme Court in a majority opinion which greatly restricted the scope of the amendments in question. State rights advocates applauded the decision, John S. Wise of Virginia declaring that it did more than all the battles of the Civil War to bring order out of chaos.

Northern Securities Case.

In the Northern Securities case, the epochal opinion of the majority held that a merger of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railways was an illegal combination in restraint of trade and affirmed the

Our Great Month-End Sales Begin Tomorrow

The Spirit of Seventy-One Years

¶ What makes a person? The body—plus the spirit. The same thing is true of a store.

¶ Building, fixtures and goods are merely the body of the business. Without the spirit the body would be a corpse, and the spirit which animates a vital business, while it may manifest itself in a hundred different ways, is always one—the spirit of service.

¶ If a store is to survive—and this one is 71 years old—the fundamental necessity is that the human side should be right. Business can survive the loss of all else except good will. That is vital. The very first necessity, therefore, of business success is that, at every turn in the road, the protection of the interests of the customer should come first, and the profit to the store, second. To reverse this order means ultimate failure. Always to respect it may seem at times to involve loss—but in the long run it lays up riches which business depressions cannot diminish, where moth and rust cannot corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal.

¶ The vitality of Vandervoort's arises out of the spirit of service which animates its entire working force from the executive heads down to the youngest bundle-wrapper or cash girl. The growth of the business is the tribute of the community to this spirit.

¶ The development of this spirit goes far beyond the province of rules or regulations. It cannot be imposed from above by authority. We have it because it is within the hearts and minds of our salespeople and delivery force, our technical experts and our executive heads. A working force of two thousand people must, even with the best management, know many changes in the course of a year; yet Vandervoort's retains its character and grows in usefulness to the community because the new recruit coming into the atmosphere of the store recognizes the spirit of service as worth living up to, and responds to it.

¶ Two guests were seated at a table in our tea room last week. A little woman was waiting on them. "That woman," said one to the other, "is of English training. She shows such an unusual interest in getting us just what we want, and yet she does it without being forward or officious. It takes tradition of service running through many generations to produce a person like that." "But she has no English accent," said the other guest. "I think she may be Scotch. Let's ask her." Then to the little woman, "Where did you begin to wait on table?" "Right here," said the little woman, "sixteen months ago." And where were you born?" was the next question. "About 50 miles from here, in the country." Vandervoort's, in 16 months, had put upon the waitress the mark of its peculiar conception of service, yet the guest was right. The little woman WAS the result of generations of courteous attention to the needs of guests. She had been with us 16 months—but back of her was the spirit of 71 years.

right of Congress to enact antitrust laws under its power to regulate commerce among the states. The opinion was by Justices Harlan, Brown, McKenna, Day and Brewer. Justices White, Fuller, Peckham and Holmes dissented.

The Supreme Court has held strictly to the principle, first authoritatively laid down by Chief Justice John Marshall in the celebrated case of Marbury against Madison, that the court has the right and power to nullify an act of Congress in violation of the Constitution. A compiler of legal statistics recently published a study showing that from October, 1889, to October, 1917, the court declared 18 acts of Congress unconstitutional, and in the period from the beginning to 1916 voided 3789 acts of State legislatures.

Some cases of nullification of legislative acts by majority vote of the Supreme Court have already been recited. Below are some other recent instances, all in the period since 1900: aimed purely at individual action, whereas the fifteenth amendment relates to the abridgement of the right to vote by the United States or a State. Justices Harlan and Brown dissented.

1905—Invalidation of an act of the New York Legislature providing that no employe of a bakery should be required to work over 60 hours a week or 10 hours a day. A conviction under the act was set aside on the ground that the act was an arbitrary interference with the right of the individual to make a contract. Justices Harlan, Day, White and Holmes dissented.

1908—Invalidation of the Federal Employes Liability act, imposing liability on railroads in interstate commerce for the injury or death of employes through negligence on the part of any employe or defects in equipment. Congress later passed an act to meet the objection, and this has been declared constitutional.

The Court held that the section arbitrarily sanctioned an illegal invasion of personal liberty and the right of property. Justices Holmes and McKenna dissented.

1909—Invalidation of an act punishing the harboring of alien women for immoral purposes within three years after arrival in the United States. Justices Holmes, Harlan and Moody dissented.

1910—Invalidation of an Arkansas law requiring the payment by foreign telegraph companies of a certain amount based on their capital stock for filing acts of incorporation. Justices Fuller, McKenna and Holmes dissented.

1910—Invalidation of a Kansas act fixing a charge on foreign telegraph companies of a percentage of their capital stock for use as school funds. Justices Holmes, Fuller and McKenna dissented.

No One Needs Two Pairs of Glasses

One-Piece Bifocal Lenses

GLASSES that relieve eye-strain and give you the comfort of perfect vision are certainly beyond price. Yet Bifocal Lenses, which combine every advantage of sight correction, are comparatively very inexpensive. Each Lens is scientifically ground of one piece of glass. There is no cement to come loose.

Sight is perhaps the most precious possession of any human being. Only the best care should guard sight that is imperfect. In our Optical Department, Dr. George M. Rosenthal, the well-known optometrist, will test your eyes with the best and most widely accepted equipment.

Your eyes can be tested in the morning, as you begin your shopping, so that by the time you are ready to go home your Glasses will be ready to wear. You will find satisfaction in our prompt service as well as our efficient treatment. (Main Floor.)

FEDERAL AID ROAD WORK IN ARKANSAS IS ON FIRM BASIS

Is Free From Conditions Which Surround Other Road Work in State, Bureau Chief Says.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON.—Federal-aid road projects in Arkansas are notably free from the serious conditions which are said to surround other highway construction work in the State, Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture, believes, after investigating the situation which has recently attracted public attention generally. The conclusions reached by MacDonald are summarized as follows:

The conditions complained of are to be found mainly in the road districts created by special local laws.

The State law, known as the Alexander law, though not perfect, provides sufficient safeguard to protect the public interest and to prevent confiscatory taxation. It provides that assessments levied shall be in proportion to benefits received and shall not exceed 30 per cent of the assessed valuation of the property.

Of 96 projects which have advanced to the point where the Government is apprised of the details of the laws creating the districts in which they are located, 43 are in road districts created under the Alexander law, and 52 are in road districts created by special laws. One project, which has been completed, was initiated by a county and was not in a road district.

Creation of Districts.

Under the Alexander law, the right of appeal from the assessments levied is protected. To establish a district the County Court must have a petition signed by a majority in land value, acreage, or number of land owners in the territory affected. The proposal must be advertised for three weeks and any property owner has the right to protest at any time within 30 days. In certain special districts on the contrary, it is alleged that the limit on assessments is raised to a practically confiscatory level, that unjust discriminations are made in the law and that, on account of special provisions, assessments are not always in proportion to benefits. The districts are created by acts of the Legislature and not upon petition of the land owners, and opportunity for appeal is usually denied. The time allowed for appeal against the assessments is usually reduced to two or three weeks.

Though a number of Federal-aid projects are in such districts, the Department of Agriculture has not been advised of any injustice in connection with Federal-aid projects. In every case the legal procedure required by State statutes and by the Federal-aid Road Act has been followed to the letter. The Federal-aid Road Act made its operation in each State subject to prior assent on the part of the Legislature in such State, and provides that the work in any State shall be done in accordance with State laws.

State Road Act.

The act of the Arkansas Legislature assenting to the Federal-aid Road Act provides that, before any State or Federal money is advanced to any road improvement district, there shall be submitted to the State Highway Department certified copies of the papers pertaining to the organization of the district and that the State Highway Commission shall submit the papers to an attorney for examination. If the attorney finds that the district was created in conformity to the Constitution and laws of the State, he so certifies to the Sate Highway Commission, and the improvement district is then prima facie legal unless suit is brought within 10 days.

In line with this provision, the Department of Agriculture has required that there be filed as a part of the record in connection with each project, a copy of the certificate by the attorney as to the validity of the road improvement district, a certified copy of the resolution by the board of commissioners of the district showing that the funds required to meet the district's share of the cost of the improvement are available, a certified copy of an order or resolution by the County Court approving the action of the district commissioners and agreeing to take over and maintain the road after completion, and a certificate that the project had been approved by the advisory board of the State Highway Commission. In addition, the Legislature, by the act assenting to the Federal aid road act, pledged the good faith of the State to maintain the roads improved with Federal aid and to make adequate provision for it.

Federal Act Misunderstood.

The principal difficulties which the Government has encountered in its work in Arkansas have arisen from causes altogether aside from the acts creating the districts. They are due mainly to the peculiar conception of the Federal aid road act held by officials of the State Highway Department which has led them to act as though the only function of the Secretary of Agriculture was to approve any project which the State Department might submit. It has been necessary on a number of occasions to deny the correctness of this interpretation.

Further trouble has been caused by the ill-advised promises of Federal assistance made by persons connected with or associated with the State Department. These promises have been made without definite knowledge as to whether there would be money enough to fulfill them, or whether the details of the projects submitted would be satisfactory to the Federal Government. The failure to comply fully with these promises has developed considerable local dissatisfaction and a feeling on the part of those unfamiliar with the facts and with the limitations imposed by the Federal aid road act that the Federal Government was in some way to blame.

The Department of Agriculture, through its specialists in the Bureau of Public Roads, has made several efforts to assist the State in the correction of the laws and the conditions which are now complained of, but has met with no great success on account of local resistance. The only hope of improvement is in a realization of the seriousness of the situation by the people of the State.

SEVEN SONS ARE PALLBEARERS

Children of Mrs. Mary C. Neighbors Serve at Her Funeral.

Seven adult sons of Mrs. Mary C. Neighbors of 1307A South Boyle avenue, who died Tuesday, were pallbearers at her funeral yesterday from the residence. Burial was in Oak Hill Cemetery, Kirkwood. The sons were Frank, George, Samuel, Charles, Harry, Frederick and Emil Neighbors.

Two daughters, Mrs. Alice Murphy and Mrs. Albia Michaels, and her husband, William H. Neighbors, also survive.

Woman in Men's Clothes Arrested.

Mrs. Ora Koehler was discharged in Police Court yesterday following her arrest in front of 3320 Pine street Friday night when she was found in male attire. She explained that she had changed to this attire to trail her husband, a chauffeur for a taxicab line. She was warned not to appear publicly in such attire again.

GANZ TO CONFER HERE ON SYMPHONY PLANS

Director Departs Tuesday — Work of Popularizing Subscriptions Encourages.

Rudolph Ganz, director of the Symphony Orchestra, will arrive today for conferences with members of the Symphony Society relative to plans for next season. This afternoon he will be guest at a tea given by Mrs. Charles M. Rice, and tomorrow will attend a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Symphony Society. He is to leave the city Tuesday night.

The wor kof popularizing subscriptions to the guarantee fund proceeds encouragingly, according to reports of the Women's Committee. One member reported 47 subscriptions obtained in two days, the amounts ranging from $5 to $25 annually for three years. In one day's report were six contributions of $20 each, 14 of $25, six of $50, five of $15, 22 of $10, 32 of $5, one of $3, six of $2 and 15 of $1. In the same day's report were two subscriptions of $1000 each, and $1600 in amounts ranging from $50 to $500.

The committee has appointed subcommittees to work in the different industrial groups of the city—real estate, lumber, building trades, railroads, textiles and the like. In addition, each of the 100 members of the committee will endeavor during this week to obtain subscriptions from 10 persons who have never been on the symphony list. The pledges are expected to be from $5 up.

There are committees at work in many of the surrounding towns. The University Musical Research Club made a drive of its own, and turned in several subscriptions. It will be suggested that other musical organizations follow the same lead.

Eight New Washington U. Chairs.

Eight additional chairs have been established at Washington University, effective at the opening of the school year in September. These include an instructor in analysis of highway construction materials, lecturer on highway engineering, assistant professor of political science, assistant professor of accounting, assistant professor of education, assistant in mathematical physics, instructor in electrical engineering, and an instructor in botany. G. W. Armstrong has been named for the latter chair, for one year, and W. W. Horner of the St. Louis streets and sewer engineering staff, as lecturer on highway engineering.

HOGS FALL TO $8.25, LOWEST IN 5 YEARS

Beef Steer Prices During Week Approach Bottom Basis of Year—Sheep Steady.

LIVESTOCK RECEIPTS.

	Last Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.
Cattle, calves	16,029	12,885	18,158
Hogs	72,385	73,023	62,756
Sheep	5,610	5,757	4,574
Horses, mules	819	820	1,790
Totals	94,843	92,485	87,278

Prices for live cattle and hogs took a downward course on the St. Louis market the past week. Beef steers approached the low level of the year, while hog quotations were the lowest since 1916. There was no material change in the market for sheep and lambs.

Comparatively light receipts Monday influenced a steady trade for beef steers, though the following two days brought in materially larger runs and a downward trend in values resulted. Slight improvement was noted on some of the lighter weight steers Thursday and Friday.

Compared to a week ago average steer prices are 25c off, extreme cases showing a 50c drop. The greater loss applies to the better grades of good weight. The top for heavy steers was $8.85 and over 35 loads sold at $8 or better. Bulk of all ranged from $7.25@8.25. Eastern order buyers offered good competition, taking over 65 cars of cattle, 65 per cent of which were good beeves selling from $7.25@8.85.

Butcher yearlings opeend higher Monday, top that day for lightweight steers and heifers mixed making $9.35. Tuesday and Wednesday brought forth sharp declines and the market closed 25@50c under the initial day's session. Several lots of yearlings sold from $9 up, though the principal sales extended from $7@8.50.

Butcher cows also underwent price deflation, the market closing 25c and in extreme cases 50c under seven days ago. Butchers sold mainly from $5@6.50. Canner and cutter cows at $2.25@4 remained steady. Bulls developed a firmer trend, the market advancing 25c in some quarters.

Stocker and feeder cattle were few in number and the demand was limited. Selling ruled slow throughout the week at barely steady prices. Demand from the country centered largely on the lighter weight stockers, the bulk of which sold from $5.50@7; top feeders sold as high as $7.50 and $7.75.

Veal calves advanced sharply early in the week, top Tuesday making $9.25. Values again slumped later in the session, best lights Friday selling at $8@8.25, or 25@50c under a week ago.

Hog Market Is Weak.

Total receipts of hogs the past week were 73,000, or about the number that arrived a week previous. This was too many for the demand and sharp declines reduced the market to the lowest level in over five years, or since February, 1916. The downward trend continued unbroken all during the week until Saturday, when the market reacted slightly. Closing values were 75 cents lower on most grades, exceptions being heavy hogs, which were 25@50c lower, and rough hogs, which were practically steady. The lowest point of the week was reached Friday, when the top was $8.25. The following day the top moved up to $8.40. The spread was the narrowest of the season, heavy 300-pound hogs selling within 50 cents of the top, whereas a week ago there was a $1.25 to $1.50 spread. Best light and butcher hogs are quotable from $8.25@8.40, medium weights $8@8.25, heavies $7.75@8, roughs $5.25@6.25 and pigs $7.50@8.40.

Sheep Receipts Light.

Hardly enough sheep and lambs were shown the past week to make a market. Total receipts were 5500, of which number more than half were billed direct to packers. It was a very unsettled market at all times, but with a slightly better tone, both sheep and lambs showing a slight advance. Based on latest sales choice lambs are quotable from $9.50@10, clipped $9@9.50, yearlings $7@8, fat wool sheep $6.25@6.50, clipped $6@6.25, canners $2@3 and choppers and bucks $3@4. These quotations are based on city butcher purchases the past week. Packers received most of their supplies direct from other markets and on the few purchased their attitude was decidedly bearish.

Demand for the Better Horses.

Receipts of horses on commission were moderate at St. Louis the past week, auction supply embracing slightly over 300 head. Selling was influenced largely by quality, the better grades of Southern and Eastern stock moving readily at steady to strong rates and the poorer stock meeting an indifferent demand at barely steady prices.

Chunks and work horses were in principal demand from the East. Good to choice draft horses are quoted at $175@220, fair to medium grades, $125@175. Chunks are selling largely from $75@150. Southern horses also sold reasonably well. A range of $40@115 is catching the bulk of southerners sold out of first hands.

Light Offering for Mules.

The usual spring slump in mule receipts has appeared, arrivals on commission during the past week not exceeding 200 head. About 50 per cent of these were sold at auction, the remaining supply finding outlet from commission barns. Good sized, sound animals found satisfactory sale. Trading on the smaller types is very limited, though there has been some call for miners and pitters of extra good quality.

REVULSION FROM RECENT EXTREME PESSIMISM SHOWN

Not All of the Better Feeling in Stock Market Attributed to Psychological Causes—Future, However, Still Is Uncertain.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 23.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review today, says:

"A revulsion from recent extreme pessimism has been apparent in the markets during the past week. While part of the better feeling may be attributed to psychological causes, it is clear that in certain directions, at least, a more substantial basis exists for optimism. The employment figures of the New York State Industrial Commission, for example, show that on March 15, the volume of employment among factory workers was slightly greater than a month earlier, and that the average earnings of those employed also had increased. While the betterment was small, it came after an uninterrupted decline in employment since last March and in earnings since last October and was accompanied by a continued fall in the cost of living. It is apparent also that textile mills have been able at least to maintain the better rate of operation attained early in the year, which the increase in the price of crude oil, after a succession of sharp cuts during the winter, indicates that the normal seasonal demand is making itself felt in the oil industry.

"Then, too, the public has seen the weeks slip by without fulfillment of the crop of sensational rumors regarding failures and has seen a refinancing operation successfully performed in one of the largest and most difficult situations. It must be admitted, also, that reports of independent steel company earnings are, when the extremely low rate of operation of the first three months of the year is considered, not as bad as might have been expected. When in addition it is remembered that the decline in commodity prices shows signs of slackening, that bank reserves continue to grow and that money tends to become slightly easier, it is scarcely surprising to find that people are beginning to wonder what industries have hit bottom and when a general revival will begin. As the stock market generally anticipates major changes in the tendency of trade, it is natural to find this more optimistic tone reflected in security prices. Activity has been largely professional in character, but the week has furnished evidence that short operations are becoming increasingly dangerous. The chastisement administered to the shorts in Studebaker was exceedingly severe, while covering in many other issues grew anxious once the idea of a general rally took hold. Persistent strength in oil shares, furthermore, suggested what the possibilities are like in case an individual industry turns the corner. Firmness in copper shares also suggests accumulation on the theory that the worst is past.

Foreign News Brighter.

"Without minimizing the seriousness of the problems confronting the European nations, it may be argued again that the future hardly has anything worse in store. The British coal strike, to be sure, remains to be settled, but conferences are again under way and labor's strength certainly is not as great as before the split in the 'triple alliance' and probably is waning. There is a feeling also that the other big European question, that of German reparations, is likely to come nearer to a solution. The Germans, having had a taste of the allies' temper and having been disillusioned with regard to any interference by this country, certainly are in a more tractable mood than at the start of the last conference.

"The allies, on the other hand, have had an intimation from this side that a settlement is desirable and have strong reasons of their own for wishing one. While the various representatives at the coming meetings will continue to give a large share of attention to their 'home fronts,' it is not unlikely that the corresponding circumstances will be more favorable to a settlement than in March. Having made the brave gestures on the previous occasion, they are more likely to settle down to business now.

No Overnight Revival.

"Favorable outcome to the European problems undoubtedly would help the general tone here. At the same time, it is true that the immediate effect of such events is limited. An important political or social decision may open the way for a whole series of economic developments, but the consummation of the latter requires time. Having flung off a too deep pessimism, it would be equally unwise to rush into a too heedless optimism. It is still possible that we stand at the entrance to a period of extended depression comparable to that experienced around 1893, although this seems impossible, probably on account of the small stocks of many manufactured articles. Time is required to lower production costs, to thaw out frozen credits and to bring cheaper money. A great industrial revival will not start overnight nor are we likely to see an uninterrupted bull movement in stocks. The investors' opportunities are not going to slip out of his hand tomorrow. There are signs, nevertheless, that better things are in the making, and it is not without reason that the investing public is watching for evidence of a turn in individual industries."

Saturday's Market Irregular.

"Active trading continued on the Stock Exchange this morning with buying still generally in the ascendency. Prices showed considerable fluctuations and some irregularity, as profit-taking was interspersed with further short covering. Some of the issues which have had the sharpest runups showed natural reactions, but others demonstrated that their turn had come in the covering process. Oils continued to be leaders. During the last hour the rails were taken in hand and toward the close showed gains of 1 and 2 points. Industrials meanwhile ranged from fractional declines to advances of 4 points. Numerous small orders were in evidence. Sterling was up ⅛ of a cent at $3.93 and the other European exchanges were firm. May cotton rallied 21 points to 12.06 cents and May wheat was firm at $1.31.

"Decrease of $6,800,000 in surplus reserve, which brings the total for this item to $9,600,000, is shown by the Clearing House Bank statement. Government deposits, meanwhile, are $43,000,000 less and reserve deposits at the Reserve Bank are $12,800,000 smaller. Loans show a contraction of $69,000,000 while deposits are reduced by $40,000,000."

Domestic Bar Silver Drops.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Domestic bar silver declined from 99¼c to 99⅛c an ounce in the local market today. Bullion dealers attributed the drop to the increased cost of transporting silver to the Denver mint instead of Philadelphia, where operations have virtually ceased.

Bar Silver.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Bar silver, domestic, 99⅛; foreign, 60⅝. Mexican dollars, 46½.

LONDON, April 23.—Bar silver, 35d per ounce. Money, 5 per cent. Discount rates: Short bills, 5⅝ per cent; three months' bills, 6⅛ per cent.

Paris Prices Firm.

PARIS, April 23.—Prices were firm on the Bourse today. Three per cent rentes, 56 francs, 70 centimes. Exchange on London, 53 francs, 90½ centimes. Five per cent loan, 83 francs, 95 centimes. The dollar was quoted at 13 francs, 70½ centimes.

Dry Goods Market.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Cotton goods markets were quiet today, but prices generally remained firm. The woolen goods future has chiefly the clothing wage situation with which to deal. Raw silk was easier, due to arrival of large shipments. Silk fabrics were strong. Burlaps remained quiet and some traders detected uneasiness.

Foreign Exchange and Domestic Money

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Movements of foreign exchange during the past week were the narrowest noted in a long period and in some exchanges the fluctuations were the smallest in range that have been noted since the convulsion in the market at the end of July, 1914. This was the case especially in sterling exchange, which had a range of less than 1 cent throughout the week for the first time in all the years since the beginning of the World War. The steadier market for sterling can only be regarded as the natural result of gradually changing conditions since the war ended, the market recently being neither aided by banking or Government support nor disturbed by speculative operations. Italian and French exchanges have also been established in new conditions. Italian exchange, after its improvement from the low level of 3.30c, reached last November, moved in an orderly manner at the higher range now prevailing, yielding 10 points or so at the end of the week, after making moderate gains for almost three days.

French exchange also made a moderate advance in the first three days, followed by a reaction in the last half of the week, and some disappointment was expressed that it was not in better demand after the various steps were taken to force reparations payments. These measures were a factor in causing efforts to liquide German exchange marks falling from 1.60c to 1.39c. Trading in marks has fallen off greatly in volume and at times during the week transactions in marks were on an extremely small scale.

PRICE CHANGES SLIGHT, TRADING DULL ON CURB

Oil Stocks Receive Most Attention—Moderate Activity in Mining Department.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Business was unusually small on the Curb Market today. Price changes generally were slight, but the tone of the market was comparatively steady.

Oil stocks again attracted the bulk of attention. Carib Syndicate held steady, and one or two made small upturns. Recent favorites, however, were subject to profit taking sales and turned easier, fractional recessions being recorded in International Petroleum, Maracaibo, Elk Basin and others. Mexican investment rose to a new high record.

Sweets Co. moved up a fraction from the previous close on moderate buying orders, the demand showing that offerings at the moment were small. A steady tone was shown in United Retail Candy, United Profit-Sharing and U. S. Steamship. Southern Coal and Iron was in supply and dropped more than a point.

"Moderate activity prevailed in the mining department, but price changes were unimportant.

RELUCTANCE TO CUT REDISCOUNT RATES APPROVED

London Comment on Federal Reserve Board's Attitude —Feared Easier Money Would Lead to Revival of Speculative Activities.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, April 23.—In spite of stock exchange optimism, various factors, such as the European economic chaos—including our own labor situation—ultimately must be faced. Some are already wondering what America's ultimate role in European affairs will be, because the time may come when America will recognize that her own interests are affected, while Europe may recognize the need for aid in settling problems which de- of the facts in the situation, which ity.

Those who suggest that America will become an actual arbiter probably are premature and incorrect. It is believed, however, that America's counsel and influence will become increasingly important. Meanwhile President Harding's restraint and caution are highly approved here and the Republican attitude is contrasted with our own experience in 1906, when the radicals, returning to power after a prolonged period of the tory regime, plunged widely into reckless, semi-socialistic legislation as a result of their long absence from office. Your political situation, moreover, undoubtedly is steadied by the sound cahracter of your Constittuion, while you probably scarcely realize that England is practically under a single chamber government, pending reconstitution of the upper house. If and when America acts in European affairs, it is believed that her policy will be inspired by precisely the same motives as Britain's, namely, no desire for revenge against the German people, but an insistence on an adequate recognition of Germany's crimes in precipitating the war. This is necessary in order to insure against a repetition of the offense, or the emulation of Germany's past conduct by another country.

Germany's Condition Improves.

Indications increase, meanwhile, of comparatively prosperous conditions in Germany, owing largely to the meritorious industry of the German people and their prompt acceptance of the facts in the situation, wihch is combined with a determination to make adversity a stepping stone for a new prosperity. The only drawback is a continued materialism which tends toward militarism.

Your export trade, which recently reacted on account of the European depresison, is expected now to obtain a partial stimulus through our coal strike. Your trade with Germany, moreover, manifestly is helped by our reparations bills concerning imports of German goods.

Some perplexity exists, however, regarding the system by which Germany is obtaining dollar credits, though it is evident that gold shipments from Berlin are considerable.

Reserve Board Commended.

The determined reluctance on the part of your Federal Reserve Board to reduce rates commands approval here, where, in view of the world's shortage of goods, it is considered that the trade depression should be regarded as temporary. Much danger exists here lest our acute depression, with easier money, should lead to a revival of speculative activities, thus prejudicing the position when a real revival of trade requires large credits.

The general belief prevails that the new budget on Monday will be of a humdrum character, though possibly it may include some remission of the tax imposts on continental wines, these having injured French trade without improving our exchequer receipts. Talk regarding the possibility of a Government funding and conversion loan increases.

New York Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, April 23.—The raw sugar market continued unsettled owing to liberal offerings of uncontrolled sugars with sales of 20,000 bags of Porto Ricos reported at 5.09 for centrifugal, a decline of quarter cent from the last previous sale. Cuban sugars were unchanged at 4⅝c cost and freight, equal to 5.64 for centrifugal, although no business was reported.

No further changes were reported in refined which is listed at 7.20@7.50 for fine granulated, but the undertone was unsettled owing to the easier ruling of the spot market, with demand light.

Futures were easier earlier, under scattered selling by commission houses and after showing declines of 3 to 11 points price rallied on covering, closing unchanged to 1 point net lower. May closed at 3.96; July 4.06 and September 4.08.

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 23.—This week has seen a pretty good test of the judgment that the business and financial system has turned the corner. The stock market, called upon to decide between a dubious and skeptical view and an optimistic view, has shown its preference for the latter. If it were the custom for the security movement to await the actual occurrences of outside changes before acting, this week's rise might seem in part at least premature. But it is the function of a security market to anticipate, and the advance of the last few days has been a process of discounting an improvement which has only barely started in some lines and has still to start in others.

A situation where bad news, in the shape of the reduction and passing of dividends and of very poor statements, ceases to affect prices, is a very strong one. All past experience teaches that this may be considered as a sign of the bottom being reached and of the markets getting ready for an upward swing. This characteristic has been repeatedly noticed in the Wall Street trading of the past month and particularly has it been a feature in the operations this week. Independent steel companies like the Republic and the Lackawanna have come out with their reports for the first quarter showing barely more than bond interest earned, that is practically no surplus for dividends on the stocks. Yet these reports have found the market for steel shares quite impervious. Goodrich Rubber passed the dividend completely where most people had looked for a reduction merely, and Goodrich stock went up. Railway shares have held their ground against the worst possible earnings statements and in face of predictions of receiverships in case permission is not soon given for a lowering of wage scales.

Whils thus on the one hand unfavorable news has ceased to count, the market on the other hand is prompt to seize upon and enthuse over the first sign of an upturn in oil prices and play up to the full the recovery in the motor trade. A price movement which in these ways magnifies all that is favorable and minimizes all that is unfavorable, is unquestionably one whose predominating drift is upward.

Foreign Trade.

The March figures on the foreign trade with their showing of the exports balance cut in two from the month last year, revealed the main cause of the recovery in the exchanges. But besides cutting down their excess purchases over sales by half, the countries of the world have shipped to the U. S. so far this year the enormous sum of $200,000,000 in gold. These gold transfers became necessary when the American banks shut down upon any further extension of credit abroad as one of the most vital measures for promoting deflation. How much farther the gold movement will be carried depends upon whether the unusual curtailing of foreign purchases shown by the March trade statement is to be a continuing feature. If the balance of exports over imports keeps on at the greatly reduced total of last month it should be pretty well offset by invisible credits in the form of ocean carrying charges and American tourist expenditures, without gold shipments being necessary to make up a deficiency. But the addition even of $200,000,000 to this country's gold supply must ultimately, tell upon money rates as it has upon bank reserves. Likewise it is a factor to consider in any investment forecast of the close relation between the course of interest rates and the course of bond prices.

The Railroad Problem.

The railway problem is the most formidable remaining influence of restraint in the financial situation. One by one individual industries are rounding the turn. Cotton and woolen manufacturers were the first, then came drygoods and the retail trade generally, then motor and tire making, finally this week, oil. Next in all likelihood will be copper. The steel trade was among the last to go through its readjustment; it will logically be the last to recover. But the recovery will be greatly helped by a satisfactory settlement of railway rates and wages and probably will be held up if the settlement is not satisfactory. The gravity of the rail problem and the fact that its importance to the business welfare of the nation is recognized on all sides, is the best guarantee that it will be solved along lines of reason and common sense. And the reasonable solution beyond a doubt is a compromise which will scale down wages in keeping with the reduction that has occurred in the cost of living, while revising downward rate schedules which are now so oppressive. Rate revision, it has come to be seen, promises far more in the way of relief to the farmers than any amount of tariff legislation.

Conditions Abroad.

In the latest figures of France's foreign commerce, is to be witnessed another instance of how Europe is getting on its feet even while the critical question of German reparations remains to be disposed of, and while plans for extending American credit have not yet been worked out. At the close of last year Great Britain was able to show an excess of imports over exports so small that a net credit—figuring in all offsets—of some $1,000,000,000 was the estimated result. Within the last few months France has followed the same path by so curtailing its outside purchases that for the first time in its recent history it has a balance in favor of the export side. If we add to this testimony the remarkable recovery during the last month in the Italian exchange, we have a very convincing combination to show how the economic situation abroad is on the mend.

After yesterday's sudden expansion in the volume of Stock Exchange business, trading today was considerably less active. Prices, at the same time, moved with a good deal more irregularity. This is the normal course of things, however, in a market so abruptly lifted from a rut.

The Bond Market.

Railroad bonds were not as responsive as were the stocks to the more optimistic feeling expressed over the railway outlook. While the railway shares were jumping anywhere from a point to 3 points, rail bonds as a rule advanced only fractionally. Chesapeake & Ohio convertible 4½s, for example, were up only half a point to 76. Seaboard Air Line consolidated 6s closed at 47¼ as against 47⅛ last night, and the refunding 4s were precisely the same, namely, 39½. New York, Westchester and Boston 4½s were up only a quarter of a point at 35. St. Paul convertible 6s were unchanged. St. Louis and San Francisco prior lien As did not improve over yesterday's final of 60¾. Northern Pacific 3s were likewise unchanged at 55. Chicago and Northwestern 6½s hung around their low level of 98.

The net changes in the industrial bond list were likewise very small. Sinclair Oil 7s gained a quarter of a point at 92½. Cuba Cane Sugar convertible 7s lost a half point to 83¼. In the Government group City of Paris 6s, anticipating their retirement or refunding, were sought after actively at their high level of 98. Norway 8s were strong at 100¼. French 8s were a trifle firmer at 98½. Liberty Bonds were scarcely changed at all on the day.

GRAIN VALUES ADVANCE IN TRADE DURING WEEK

Emergency Tariff Measure and Unfavorable Indian Wheat Crop Outlook Factors.

Wheat averaged higher in price the past week, aided by a belief in likelihood of quick final action on the emergency tariff and by extremely bullish crop advices from India.

Passage of the emergency tariff bill through the House of Representatives had an immediate bullish influence in the wheat market, an influence which subsequently was emphasized by gossip that the bill would receive the approval of the Senate next week.

In like manner, eleventh-hour stoppage of an extension of labor difficulties in Great Britain was supplemented by later signs that the English coal miners' strike might possibly soo be brought to a finish.

Prospects that the wheat crop of India would be 100,000,000 bushels less than last year's total and that no exports need be looked for this season from India, Russia or the Balkans counted also in favor of the bulls, and so, too, did scattered reports of domestic crop deterioration. On the other hand, breaking values at Winnipeg together with continued arrival of Canadian wheat at Minneapolis and Duluth were factors at times in depressing the market here to new low prices for the season.

Independent strength in corn and oats was promoted by big export sales of corn.

CORN GAINS 7c DURING WEEK IN CHICAGO TRADE

CHICAGO, April 23.—Moving within narrow limits, today's short session grain market was unmarked by important developments and wound up about where it started. A strong undertone in corn and an advance in provisions furnished the only outstanding features of a dull day.

The wheat pit was unsettled, but futures in that grain averaged higher and May was active enough to gain an additional 4 cents spread over the July option. This happened despite heavy selling of May credited to a Chicago elevator interest, which was said to be transferring its holdings to July. This selling served to balance some rather persistent buying of the near option by commission houses and some Northwest elevator interests. Similarly the local buying of July was offset by pressure on that month from eastern houses. This latter phase of the market was ascribed to decreased export demand, trade advices saying that Germany and Italy, which had been good buyers recently had cabled refusal of latest offers.

At the close wheat was unchanged to a fraction higher, with May at $1.30 to $1.30⅜ and July at $1.07½@1.07⅝.

Corn showed about 7 cents above the low mark of last week. There was some rather persistent buying, with sales to the Seaboard on demand of exporters for cash grades. May closed at 61⅜c to 61¼c, July at 63⅝c and September at 66c to 65⅞c, the net gains ranging from ⅛c to ⅝c. Local cash sales totaled 214,000, of which 145,000 bushels were for export.

Weather and crop reports created bearish talk among oats traders, but the dealings were limited and the prices were not appreciably affected. At the close oats were ¼c higher to ¼c lower, with May at 38¼c to 38¼@⅜c, July at 39⅝@½ and September 39¾@⅞c.

Pork, lard and ribs all scored advances. Packers' representatives were buying provisions and there was a lift in the market for live hogs. No appreciable attempt was made to stem the advance and all provisions closed strong.

NEWS MORE FAVORABLE AND COTTON IS STEADY

Further Rains in South and Firm Stock Market Influence Price Range.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Reflecting an improved sentiment in connection with reparations and the British miners' strike, the cotton market today was quite active and generally stronger. The opening showed an advance of 1 to 6 points and in subsequent dealings the market sold 20 to 26 points above the previous night. May led the upturn with an advance to 12.06c, based on large covering orders by Wall Street houses. July sold at high as 12.72c, October 13.34c, and December 13.80c, and while some of the improvement was subsequently lost under profit-taking in the final hour, the market nevertheless closed very steady at a net advance of 11 to 18 points.

A broadening of outside speculative interest was one of the bull factors of the day, the public being interested in new crops because of the unfavorable weather reports from the South. Another buying motive was the reported increase of foreign demand for spot cotton in the South. Offerings were compartively light throughout the day, the trade evidently anticipating a favorable outcome of the European problems and being influenced by the improvement recently noted in Manchester business. Domestic trade reports for the week were better.

Sales of print cloths at Fall River for the week were 95,000 pieces, while curtailment, owing to a holiday last Tuesday, amounted to fully 180,000 pieces.

The BABIES

By Frank Swinnerton

(Copyright, 1921.)

ALTHOUGH the railway systems by which the whole of England is served are numerous, there are whole districts, even those in the neighborhood of large towns, which are still outside the service of trains. Villages lie remote, and single cottages again stand apart from the villages to which they are considered as belonging.

In such large cities as Lancashire and Yorkshire there are many villages of this kind, and many isolated cottages; and these are often occupied by families of which the head is employed in work at as great a distance as 10 or 15 miles away. To live 10 or 15 miles from a town is a small matter for rich folk, who can reach a main line of communication with the world by motor; but for poor people the case is different.

James Morrow was a poor man, and he went to work and returned from it every day by means of a bicycle. He and his wife had a brick cottage a couple of miles or more from the village of Vainton, and Vainton itself was more than 10 miles from Lawton, the nearest town, with 8000 inhabitants and a small railway station upon a loop line. Lawton was in the north of Lancashire, and Vainton lay upon the Westmorelad border.

The cottage in which the Morrows lived was very remote from other buildings, but it rested upon high land beside a long road, so that it was in the way of the carriers, and was visited by them often enough to insure that necessaries (except in the depth of a hard winter) were easily obtained. Although distant, the cottage was not unhandy, and Agatha Morrow, until she was well upon the way to become a mother, used often to ride into Lawton and back upon the cart of a friendly peddling merchant. These days were now long past. She had been content for weeks to potter about the house, and to rest, and to look forward to her baby and the visit she would pay to her sister in Lawton when her time drew near. It had been arranged that the baby should be born at Lawton because, with a doctor so far away and with nobody at hand who could nurse her, it would have been dangerous to try and manage without leaving home. Already James was having to do more and more in the cottage. In another three weeks he would be more alone there, and would be calling morning and evening, on his way to and from work, at her sister's tiny house in Lawton.

Agatha was conscious of a sinking heart. It was her first baby, and sometimes, when James was not there, she could not restrain herself from long fits of crying that came merely from weakness and a kind of nervous dread of the ordeal through which she was presently to pass. She was thus often morose when he came home at night, morose and exhausted, which was a trial to both of them. Their relations were thus half passionate and more intimate than they had ever been, and half full of curious hostility. At times it seemed to Agatha that she hated her husband. Then, by a violent revulsion of feeling, she would cling to him, bitterly weeping, as the one person in the world who was essential to her happiness. In other moods they would both laugh, and be at once young lovers for whom the world held nothing but joy.

Agatha was only 25, and James was five years her senior. He had worked in a steel factory just outside Lawton since he had been a small boy, and was a big, tough man, rather stupid in some ways and extraordinarily shrewd in others. Agatha had called him her baby, sure of her own greater understanding; but it was not as her baby that she always thought of him, but as a strange strength outside herself who could never know what she was feeling, and yet who, curiously enough, belonged to her and was her master. She loved him greatly, and would love him more as she grew more and more used to his own love and confidence.

ON his side, James was still rather afraid of Agatha's weakness. Her body was such a slight thing, compared with his own big-boned strength, that he had hardly yet begun to realize how strong, in all her softness and greater gentleness, she could be. She was so small, so slim, so quiet in her movements, that he had worshiped her. When he found that she could love him, James was shaken in his modesty. He grew sublimely arogant, a towering, confident piece of manhood. In pride and joy he had married her; in trust and confidence Agatha had responded to his love. And now, when they had been married 18 months, they were going to have a baby, and from the days of exultation they had come to those more difficult days which were straining the nerves of both to such a pitch as to be almost unendurable.

Agatha was seeing nobody but James, and spending long days alone with her moods of happiness and fear, and by the time her husband returned at night she was often worn out with her loneliness and the work she had to do in the house. James, tired also, was eager to work to save her; but he did not understand her moods well enough to be able to respond to them. They were thus often disunited and irritable, at a time when peace was essential to both, and puzzled at themselves and at each other. Neither had had the experience to realize that Agatha needed company. Neither had the imagination to kill the puzzlement and rise to a better knowledge of the situation.

The cottage lay back from the road, with a garden in front of it and along one side. To the north rose a gentle hill; to the west there was a barren piece of land where stones and weeds made cultivation impossible. Through this land a stream, coming from the hills, trickled easily in all weathers down to a big pool that froze in winter and in summer became deep and small in an inclosure of thick mud. Hills were around, some green, some rocky. The district was very deserted, because it was largely barren; but James and Agatha both knew it so familiarly now (although both had belonged to Lawton) that the quiet solitude had never until the present moment affected them. The whole countryside was gray and green, with its mixture of stone and vegetation, not rich, but pleasant to see and to live with. There were hardly any trees. In the garden there were a few apple and pear trees; but James found potatoes and other vegetables of more use in the house, and although later Agatha might find fruit bushes material for jam making, she at present and for several months had done little preserving. It had not been customary in Lawton, and she was not yet a countrywoman.

The cottage was of stone—very small and very square; built to defy the wind and the troublesome winter weather. It had four rooms only, all very small and square, with small square windows and small squares of bright carpet. The kitchen, where they sat in the evenings, had a big grate, and a rug, and very little furniture excepting an arm chair and a smaller chair which Agatha had been used to regard as her own. It was a beautifully cozy kitchen which they both loved. In summer the door stood wide open, so that Agatha in the evening could see James a mile away, his head moving above the low hedges; and in winter, when the door was closed, they spent the short evenings happily talking or sitting silent (he reading and she sewing or knitting) until bedtime or until a meal had to be prepared. They worked for each other devotedly, and loved each other with undemonstrative kindness, often saying nothing, but each glad of the other's proximity.

It was winter now, and snow lay upon the distant fells. Already there was a roaring wind, and blank clouds were lowering heavily above the district. The stones gave a grayness and bareness in the fields about the cottage. The light was bad, and the days so short that there seemed alway to be shadows everywhere.

In the cottage it was so dark that even the cheerful fire could not destroy the sense of gloom. Agatha sat beside the fire with an uncontrollable shiver. She had on a red knitted shawl, and was pale and lethargic. From time to time she turned her head almost impatiently, listening for the sound of James' bicycle bell or his footstep. But with the wind gathering outside and the sense of coming storm she could hear nothing.

Upon the table was preparation for his meal, roughly laid. Before the fire the meal itself was keeping hot. Seven o'clock wheezed from the old clock which had been given to them by James' mother, and Agatha knew that her husband must be nearly home. Her mouth was drawn with impatience at his lateness; she was on edge, inclined to cry, inclined to say sharp things, irritable at anything that hindered the smooth progress of habitual doings. He did not come.

THE clock ticked on, and steam rose from the big black kettle, and the fire glowed and whirred behind its podgy bars. Agatha rose from her chair and went to the window. As she did so she gave an exclamation. The storm had burst. Snow was thickly faling, so that the air was opaque with falling flakes. She could not see a yard from the house. A chill seized her. James must be riding through this! No wonder he was so late! With a quick sense of his probable wetness and cold, she toiled up the stairs to their bedroom and laid out some other clothes for James to change into.

She was sitting resting upon the edge of the bed when she heard his bell and his cheery whistle. Instantly her expression of strain was relaxed and a slow smile of happiness appeared in its stead. She reached the bottom of the stairs as James entered the kitchen, white from head to foot with the tumultuous snow and holding and clapping and blowing upon his hands to restore the circulation to his numbed fingers.

"Well, my lass," he cried, and his tone was inquiring, "are you better this evening? Eh, but it's snowing! I've never seen a fall like it. Snow, snow, snow! So thick I couldn't see the road. By the morning there won't be a road to see."

"And you've to go through that!" she exclaimed passionately.

"My word! I've done it before. I did it last winter." He was astonished at her vehemence. "It's no worse."

"It is worse. And I've to go through it," Agatha proceeded.

"Nonsense!" He drawled the word reassuringly. "Not for another fortnight. A good fortnight—more like three weeks. And all the snow'll be gone by then. But I've been thinking, Aggie—couldn't Mattie take you next week? I was worrying about you today—about your being alone, and that. I thought if you'd go to Mattie's sooner I'd be quieter in my mind."

"Nay!" cried Agatha. "I'll not go. I'll not go till I must. I'm all right here. I couldn't bear to be there, with Mattie worritting. Eh, you've no idea how stupid she is. Stupid! I'm better alone. She'd make me angry and ill a dozen times a day."

James jerked his head doubtfully. He was warned by Agatha's peevish voice that he must not argue with her overmuch.

"I was only thinking it might come on sooner than you think for," he said gently. "However, I'll change my things a bit. Look there, now; there's a pool around me already!"

He took off his wet boots and stomped upstairs in his slippers. Within five minutes he was again in the kitchen, warm and dry, eating his savory supper and every now and then casting an anxious, protecting eye at Agatha. He was determined that she should go at once to Mattie's. The snow had interfered with his plan; but he had been delayed this evening by a call in Lawton on this same business. The notion had come to him during work; while he watched a long bar of white-hot steel rolled and pressed into another appearance altogether by the powerful engines employed for the purpose he had suddenly thought of Agatha alone.

SOMETHING had made him realize that it was madness for her to be alone now. It might mean her death. He had been so afraid that he had instantly made up his mind. He had left his work early, had called to see Mattie, and had even spoken to a man with a covered cart who would come out to the cottage and bring Agatha into Lawton.

But the difficult task of persuading her to make the journey nearly a fortnight before she had reckoned upon her trial had yet to be tackled in earnest. He knew that he must make a plan. It would not do to move her during the next day; but perhaps if the snow quickly melted in the inevitable thaw Aggie could be brought to Lawton within a week. Then he would feel at ease. Now, having once glimpsed the horror of her loneliness, this rough man would not cease to have the vision constantly in his thoughts.

All the time he was eating his supper he was making a plan. While he smoked his pipe in silence after the meal he made a hundred plans. They were all crude, obvious plans; but he had made up his mind, and he knew it was only a question of evading her obstinacy. He would have to act decidedly, but first of all to persuade her.

When at last they were ready for bed James put his arm round Agatha's shoulders so that her forehead could rest at ease against his neck and their faces be together.

"My dear lass," he said softly, awkwardly "My dear little lass."

He kissed her as she stood in his arms, and looked into her eyes. For both of them it was an instant of happiness, without care. Then they went slowly together up the stairs.

It was when Agatha was in bed and James was half undressed that he began again upon his anxious plan to get her into Lawton, where he could be sure that she would have company and care.

"If I arrange it, will you go to Mattie's soon-

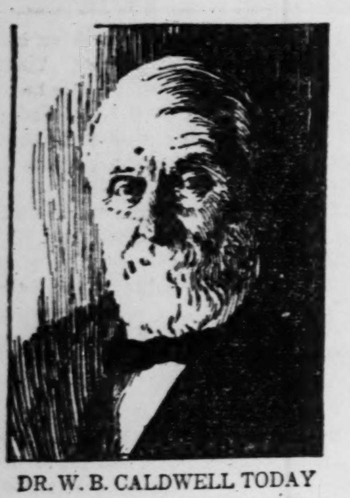
Lives to See the Prescription He Wrote in 1892 Become the World's Most Popular Remedy for Constipation



DR. W. B. CALDWELL TODAY
Born Shelbyville, Mo., March 27, 1839
Began the manufacture of his famous prescription in 1892

Founder of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, long past Biblical old age, but hale and hearty—Still sees patients daily—Wonderful achievement of a "country doctor."

WHEN I started to practice medicine, back in 1875, there were no pills or tablets or salt waters for the relief of constipation, and no artificial remedies made from coal tar.

The prescription for constipation that I used early in my practice, and which I put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid remedy, and I have never had reason to change it. I intended it for women, children and elderly people, and these need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

I am gratified to say that under successful management my prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that over eight million bottles were sold by druggists last year proves that it has won the confidence of mothers whose chief interest is the health of their children.

It is particularly pleasing to me to know that the biggest half of those eight million bottles were bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for grownups. The price of a bottle holding 50 average treatments is sixty cents; such a bottle will last a family several months.

I have never made a secret of what is in Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a compound of Egyptian Senna and other simple laxative herbs with pepsin and pleasant-tasting aromatics. These ingredients are endorsed in the U. S. Pharmacopoeia. I consider Syrup Pepsin today in the serious 82nd year of my age, as I did in 1892, the best remedy a family can have in the house for the safe relief of constipation and its accompanying ills, such as headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and I believe if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

Every genuine De Luxe Bedspring bears the trade-mark on the side rail of the spring. Look for it—it is your guarantee

"DeLuxe" The Bedspring LUXURIOUS

A Great Physician Said:

"It's not so much how long you sleep, as how well you sleep that counts."

He spoke the truth. Eight hours of sound, restful sleep refreshes more than ten hours of dream-troubled hours in bed.

We would all be happier if we would realize the importance of sleep and the fact that to get 100 per cent value out of sleep, we must sleep on a good bedspring.

Just any spring will not do—not by a long way. The average coil, woven wire or national spring makes it impossible for the body to lie relaxed and at ease. It makes restful sleep impossible.

So be particular about the spring you use.

Consider carefully the advantages of the De Luxe Spring—the spring scientifically constructed to rest the body. This spring is so designed that it easily accommodates itself to the body without excessive pressure on prominent parts of the anatomy.

Examine the De Luxe at your dealer's. The more carefully you compare the De Luxe with any spring at any price, the more certainly you will recognize its superior, luxurious comfort. It is always finished in Rome Gray enamel, and on the side rail appears the Rome Quality Trade-Mark, which identifies all Rome products. For wood or metal beds.

er?" he asked. "Could you go?"

"No!" cried Agatha fiercely. "I won't."

"I'd get Thomas to bring his cart for you. You'll be all quiet and cozy. And Mattie would like it."

"No," again cried Agatha.

"I'm worried about your being alone. I'd be more easy in my mind."

Agatha made a desperate movement.

"I've told you," she obstinately said.

"Well, then, can I bring old Mother Cinder out here to spend a week? Aggie, darling, you musn't be alone."

"I must. I can't stand it. I musn't be worried."

"But you're ill, love."

"O! O!" Agatha was in agony at his stupid persistence. "Don't talk of it, Jim. Don't talk of it. It makes me fair crazy."

He continued his undressing, and sighed heavily. Then he shook his head. Whatever he did now must be done without her agreement, for it was clear that he could not win her to his views by pleading. James cast about in his mind for some distraction, for Agatha was moving restlessly, and turning her head from side to side and feverishly clasping and unclasping her hands. He was alarmed at her agitation. It seemed to him unnatural, terrifying.

"Well, then," he went on. "Forget all that, my love. See • • •" He sat on the edge of the bed, half bending over her. "See, if it's a boy it's to be a John. And if it's a girl it's to be Deborah"——

"Ruth!" cried Agatha.

"Ruth?" questioned James. "Why, lass! It was to be Deborah!"

"Ruth!" said Agatha in a tone of bitter resolve.

He was overwhelmed at her protest. The name had been settled long ago, and the baby was to be named after his mother. Now, to learn that Agatha was determined upon another name was a shock.

"But we fixed it-" he said in a puzzled way.

"Ruth!" cried Agatha, almost shouting. "I say it's to be Ruth. I want it Ruth."

"Perhaps it'll be a John," he ventured.

"I don't like John."

"Good Lord!" ejaculated James. "What a contrary"——

Agatha horrified him by bursting into tears.

"You cross me. You cross me," she wailed. "O, I'm so ill, and so misearable. You make me unhappy."

"I?" he demanded. "I'm a clumsy fool."

"You're not!" said Agatha, vehemently.

"Yes. And what d'you want him called, then?"

"He's to be Ralph."

"Lord!" Then James suddenly became angry and jealous in his turn, for Ralph was the name of a man who once had been his rival for Agatha's love. The ways of women were past understanding! He was angry and helpless. He could not speak. In that threatening silence Agatha looked at him through her tears, and began uncontrollably to sob. "O, for God's sake!" cried James, almost beside himself with fear and exasperation.

Agatha gave a sudden shriek and a terrifying groan. She was deadly white. James hurried to give her a drink of water, while she lay with staring eyes of pain. Her eyes were turned to his, and full of fear. Both realized instantly what had happened. James began trembling from head to foot, so that he could hardly clothe himself again. He was stricken with terror. It had come, and it was the worst that could have happened. They were unprepared and helpless. He might lose both his baby and his wife, and they were cut completely off from the world.

Again Agatha groaned. She seemed to be fighting for breath. Her eyes closed and her dry lips were rigid. He knew she was in ghastly pain. Gripping the lamp, he hurried downstairs for some brandy that was kept in the kitchen, and there he lighted another lamp. What could he do? Could he leave her in order to get a woman's help from the village? For the moment he must stay; but he left the second lamp alight on the kitchen table and hurried back to the bedroom.

Agatha was no longer in bed, but had risen, and was moving about the room, in great agony. Her eyes were staring, and in them such an expression of physical anguish that James felt almost mad to see her suffering and to be so unable to offer any true help. He put the brandy to her lips, and she drank a little, resting against him. Then she drew away, as though his touch made her desperate.

LOOM WOVEN Lloyd Baby Carriages and Furniture

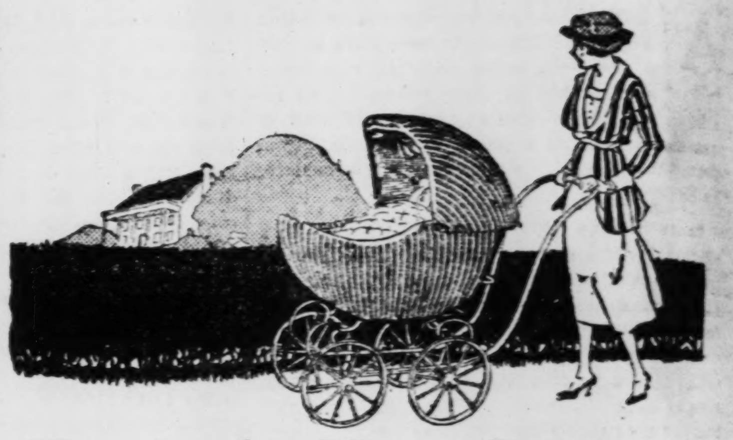
Lloyd Loom Woven Wickers Are First in Demand; In Every Way Better Than Those Made by Hand.



Here's the Very Carriage You Always Dreamed Of

Remember how you planned it—a low, roomy, comfortable carriage; smooth and gliding. O, yes! And smart and good-looking—graceful lines and the newest finish.

Well, here it is at last—the prettiest carriage in all the world for the prettiest baby. You'll be surprised, too, at the reasonable cost.

It was Marshall B. Lloyd who invented the method and loom which produce Baby Carriages and Wicker Furniture thirty times faster and finer than the old hand woven products. These inventions cut labor costs, enabling Mr. Lloyd to weave the finest wickers, use the best materials, employ the most skilled workmen, add the latest refinements and still sell his wicker products at remarkable prices. That's the power of invention.

Ten thousand dealers carry Lloyd Loom Woven Products. If yours does not, write to us and we'll send you the name of the nearest one who does.

TUBERCULOSIS SOCIETY WANTS CITY DENTISTRY DEPARTMENT

Recommendation Is for Maintenance of Dentists at Koch Hospital and Other Institutions.

The special municipal appropriations committee of the Tuberculosis Society of St. Louis, of which Dr. S. T. Lipsitz is chairman, has reported an urgent recommendation for a dental laboratory and a resident dentist at Koch Hospital, the municipal tuberculosis sanatorium, and an appropriation of $1000 to cover the cost of the laboratory and equipment. A bill was introduced in the Board of Aldermen last week to create a section of dentistry within the Department of Public Welfare with the appointment of a dentist at each of the city institutions.

The recommendation of Dr. Lipsitz's committee, which was indorsed by the Board of Directors of the Tuberculosis Society, is based on a recent survey made by Dr. J. P. Harper, dean of the St. Louis University College of Dentistry. Dr. Harper states that there are 143 patients at Koch Hospital who need dental care. Many general practice dentists object to attending tuberculous persons, Dr. Harper states.

Good teeth are an important factor in the treatment for tuberculosis, because of the question of diet.

A resident dentist would be available for the care of children and would supplement the work of the School Board at the open-air school at Koch Hospital. A daily session of regular grade school work is conducted in a pavilion for children patients.

MEMORIAL ATTENDANCE GROWS

Over 15,000 persons more than in the previous year passed through the various activities of Boyle Memorial Presbyterian Center, 816 North Eleventh street, last year, according to a recent report given by Rev. Paul Nelson, pastor and director of the work. The total number was 61,779.

For two years the attendance at Sunday school and church services has more than doubled, he said.

In the last year, 27,629 quarts of milk were sold at the cash and carry station, and 26,968 bottles of milk for babies were handled. The report showed that 3318 persons attended the daily vacation Bible school last summer, and that 4597 children had been taken care of in the nursery. A call for contributions to help take care of the increasing numbers has been sent out by the Rev. Mr. Nelson.

Baby Chick Expert Says Conkey's is "A LIFE SAVER"

Herbert H. Knapp, Shelby, Ohio, President of the International Baby Chick Association, writes:

"In our own plant we found Conkey's Buttermilk Starting Feed a life saver. Not a single case of White Diarrhea this season. Your chain of feeds was a happy thought. Three Buttermilk Mashes for Starting, Growing and Laying are complete and surely do bring results."

Conkey's

The Original

Buttermilk Starting Feed for Baby Chicks

Conkey's carries them safely through the critical first eight weeks. It is an appetizing combination of pure sweet grain and concentrated, sanitary Buttermilk, scientifically proportioned and combined by a special Conkey process — entirely different from any other buttermilk-feed.

It prevents the big losses due to weakness and disease and gives your chicks the quick snappy getaway that produces early broilers and layers. The buttermilk puts an edge to the appetite; strengthens and tones up the sensitive digestive organs of the little chicks, and helps to prevent White Diarrhea.

Conkey's is different—it is so clean, sweet and genuine. No mill ends, shriveled or unsound grain, weed seed or mill sweepings used — only the best and purest grain. Yet it costs so little for those first eight weeks no poultryman can afford to be without it.

Who Are the Most Successful Business Men and Women?

Those who have the ability to work hard and are full of "pep" and energy.

Enthusiasm, too, is necessary, for there never was a great man who was not enthusiastic. It's essential to success.

A lady customer told me, after she had selected furniture for a ten-room home:

> "Your house should be successful if all of your salesmen are as friendly, as enthusiastic and work as hard to please as did your Mr. ————."

W. F. Whelan, 250 Fort St. West, Detroit, Mich., writes: "I have taken Cadomene tablets and am on my fourth tube. Have been troubled with Neuritis for 5 years. I feel about as young now as I did 20 years ago; am 47 now. I will probably take them for about 5 months more. If this testimonial is of any benefit to humanity, you may spread it on paper and send it everywhere."

A Delightful Row

"My wife had suffered from stomach and liver trouble for many years and had taken medicine enough to sink a ship; so when I brought home a bottle of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, on the advice of my employer, she refused to take it. Her liver trouble hadn't helped her disposition any. We had a big row, but she took it the next week. Her ailments have disappeared." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. NEW BOOKS FOR THE WEEK AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Any of these books will be sent by parcel post to cardholders, on receipt of postage, in order of application.

ESSAYS: SPECULATIVE AND POLITICAL, by Hon. Arthur James Balfour. The reader will be interested in the second part of the book, as it contains the author's essays on "Anglo-German Relations," "Treitschke's View of German World Policy," "The Freedom of the Seas," "The Foundation of a Durable Peace," etc.

DIPLOMACY AND THE STUDY OF INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS, by D. D. Heatley. In this work an attempt is made to portray diplomacy and the conduct of foreign policy from the standpoint of history, to show how they have been analyzed and appraised by representative writers and to indicate sources from which the knowledge thus acquired may be supplemented.

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT OF THE UNITED STATES, by Isaac Lippincott. This record gets away from the cut and dried form generally followed and embraces the economic development of the United States from the first settlement to the present day.

OSCAR WILDE; HIS LIFE AND CONFESSIONS, by Frank Harris. The author was an intimate friend of Wilde, and in these two volumes brings out many personal characteristics that are not generally know.

COLLECTED LEGAL PAPERS, by Oliver Wendell Holmes Jr. The opinions of Justice Holmes touch every field of our national activity; they are vigorous expressions of America's real personality, and may be regarded as among the most important milestones on the road to a better democracy.

INTERNATIONAL POLITICS, by C. Delisle Burns. The questions that the author deals with are: "The Great Powers," "Undeveloped Countries," "Capital Abroad," "Conflict Abroad," "Conflict of Nationality" and "Labor Problems, Such as Emigration."

WOMEN IN THE LIFE OF BALZAC, by Juanita Helen Floyd. The author shows that—contrary to the general impression—Balzac's knowledge of the social circles concerning which he wrote was long and intimate, and incidentally he reveals the influence upon his work of his relatives and friends, among whom were many women of the French nobility.

VISITING NURSES MAKE REPORT

The monthly report of the Visiting Nurse Association shows that 6541 visits were made by the nurses during the month, of which 1711 were to mothers. There were 1028 new cases and 1147 old ones handled during the month and 211 newborn babies and 243 other babies cared for.

For 1003 cases no fee was charged. The association is nonsectarian, and serves the sick regardless of race or color. The association has 32 nurses and is in need of more because of increased demands for service.

The annual bridge party will be given on May 3 at the Glen Echo Club to provide for the annual salary of one nurse. Reservations may be made with Mrs. F. W. Langenberg, 6902 Washington avenue.

Says His Prescription Has Powerful Influence Over Rheumatism

Discoverer Tells Druggists Not to Take a Cent of Anyone's Money Unless Allenrhu Completely Banishes All Rheumatic Pains and Twinges.

Mr. James H. Allen suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work.

He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

He freely gave his discovery to others, who took it, with what might be called marvelous success. After years or urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers. PILES CURED WITHOUT THE KNIFE By Dr. Henrich's Method TO STAY CURED

No Cutting. No Pain. No Chloroform. No Hospital. No Danger. No Loss of Time. Consultation and Examination Free—Tell Your Friends.

PILES Cause Many Diseases—Headache, Nervousness, Heart Palpitation, Stomach and Liver Trouble, Nausea, Backache, Rheumatism, Constipation, Eczema, Fistula, Cancer, Consumption, etc. You can pour all the medicines down your throat that money can buy; you can spend your last dollar at the world's best watering places; you can allow your body to be cut and slashed to your heart's content, yet you will never be rid of such Diseases until YOUR PILES ARE CURED by THE HENRICH METHOD. (The proof of all this is that nothing you have ever done has given you permanent relief.)

I positively cure every case of Piles that I treat by my Mild Medical Method.

I can furnish you the names and addresses of hundreds of people whom I have cured from all over Illinois, Missouri and some from Arkansas, Tennessee and other states. I convinced them as I can convince you:

First—That no matter what you have tried without success, your Piles can be permanently cured, positively and easily by my treatment. You don't need to despair or suffer any longer.

Second—As to an Operation—well, to put it mildly, Operations in the Rectum are as Dangerous as they are Painful—so much so that I would not operate on a fellow human being for the removal of Piles for a money consideration. Scar Tissue is as bad as Piles.

If you are afflicted, call soon or write today for full information on an easy and positive cure.

The millionaire and his chauffeur are brothers under the skin in the presence of White Banner Malt Extract. Both know "that's the brand" that gives sure results.

When Prohibition closed down a well-known Illinois Brewing Company, we formed a new company to use its equipment, save its invested capital and keep its employees working. The same maltsters again take the barley grain and put it thru many of the same processes formerly used, but now the product of their skill is White Banner Malt Extract—a food product of recognized value.

The sale and use of White Banner Malt Extract are absolutely legal. Ask for it anywhere without hesitation.

The Rise of Sensible Shoes

It is quite the fashion now to wear sensible and efficient shoes. Once upon a time they were considered "old," but since the college girls and the women's clubs and the Y. W. C. A. girls turned to good-looking shoes modeled upon natural lines, the whole world of style has turned its back upon the sharply pointed toe.

Low heels for daytime wear are illustrated in the fashion magazines. The sharp toes of two years ago seem very out-of-date.

Comfortable shoes make life so much easier for every woman, whether she spend her day in the business district or whether she passes the hours in duties of household and motherhood, it is no wonder the styles have changed.

One of the best looking of sensible shoes is the Cantilever Shoe, which we recommend to you with perfect confidence. You will find its natural lines most agreeable to your foot, its flexible arch most delightful when you walk and want your feet to feel free and strong.

If you stand a good deal, its snug fitting instep will prove most restful. Proper heels, medium or low, with good room for the toes to feel at ease, are other features that go to make Cantilever Shoes so delightfully comfortable that every day you wait you are missing a new happiness. Come tomorrow, see how smart they look on your foot and how wonderful they feel.

IMPROVEMENTS AT MUNICIPAL THEATER

New Scenic Studio and New Stage Among Changes Being Made.

Several improvements are under way at the Municipal Theater in Forest Park in preparation for the opening performance of "The Chocolate Soldier," on Tuesday night, June 7. They include a new scenic studio and a new stage. The latest developments in theatrical art will be represented in both, yet they will be so arranged as not to mar the sylvan beauty of the setting.

The new scenic studio is immediately contiguous to the rear of the stage, and is situated between two large dressing-room buildings, one of which was completed last summer and will be used for the first time this season. The new studio will contain complete equipment for building and painting the scenic investiture of the outdoor stage for all of the operas. It faces on McKinley Drive and forms a quadrangle with the dressing-room buildings. It is of the mission style of architecture, a one-story structure 80 feet long, 40 feet wide and 26 feet high. It does not interfere with the forest view appearance as seen from the auditorium, and was planned to add scenic beauty as one approaches the theater from the north side of the park. This building will also house the offices of the theater management and store-rooms for the "props."

Two Dressing-Room Buildings.

The two dressing-room buildings will afford ample facilities for principals and chorus, and will eliminate much of the inconvenience of other years. The new building will contain quarters for the musicians and their instruments. A new bridge has been built across the River des Peres, connecting the dressing rooms and scenic studio with the stage.

An entire new stage has been constructed, modern in details and embodying many of the new ideas in theater stages. It is built on a concrete foundation. A series of elevated joists and several ventilating holes permit air and moisture to reach the foliage and shrubbery, thus preserving the natural embellishments of the stage.

A concrete retaining wall, arched so as to form a sounding board to aid the acoustics, has been built along the front of the stage. It also serves to conceal the footlight trough, which is equipped with electrical facilities for four different colors of lamps. The retaining wall will also house an electric light scheme devised by Ralf Toensfeldt of the City Lighting Department, and designed to conceal the stage from the view of the audience while scenery is being changed.

The various improvements will be paid for out of a $10,000 fund provided by a subscription of the city for $5000, the Municipal Opera Association for $3000 and the Fashion Show organization for $2000. The latter organization uses the Municipal Theater for an annual fall style show.

As has already been announced, the complete repertoire of operas to be presented under the auspices of the Municipal Opera Association include, in the order in which they will be presented, "The Chocolate Soldier," "Fra Diavolo," "The Fortune Teller," "San Toy," "Beggar Student," "Pirates of Penzance," "Chimes of Normandy" and "Sari."

DANDRUFF SURELY DESTROYS THE HAIR

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

Rupture Kills 7,000 Annually

Seven thousand persons each year are laid away—the burial certificate being marked "Rupture." Why? Because the unfortunate ones had neglected themselves or had been merely taking care of the sign (swelling) or the affliction and paying no attention to the cause. What are you doing? Are you neglecting yourself by wearing a truss, appliance or whatever name you choose to call it? At best, the truss is only a makeshift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and cannot be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The binding pressure retards blood circulation, thus robbing the weakened muscles of that which they need most—nourishment.

But science has found a way, and all truss sufferers in the land are invited to make a FREE test right in the privacy of their own homes. The PLAPAO method is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful self-treatment for rupture the world has ever known.

The PLAPAO PAD when adhering closely to the body cannot possibly slip or shift out of place, therefore cannot chafe or pinch. Soft as velvet—easy to apply—comparatively inexpensive. To be used whilst you work and whilst you sleep. No straps, buckles or springs attached.

Learn how to close the hernial opening as nature intended so the rupture CAN'T come down. Send your name today, to PLAPAO CO., 580 Stuart Bldg., St. Louis, Mo., for FREE trial Plapao and instructive information.—(c) P.I.

POSTERS AND COUPONS AID NEAR EAST RELIEF

"Silent Salesmen" Have Receptacles for Money to Go for Purchase of Flour.

The Near East relief campaign, which opened in St. Louis Monday, is receiving marked co-operation from the churches, industries, lodges and women's clubs. The campaign is being conducted through the "Silent Salesman Posters" and coupon books for funds to clothe, house and give medical relief to the people of the Near East, as well as to establish industries.

The "Silent Salesman Posters," with receptacles for coins to be used in the purchase of flour, have been placed in every bakery, grocery and drug store and in hotels and restaurants.

"When you buy flour to send to the Near East," said R. T. Langenberg, State chairman of the Near East Relief Committee, "you are making an investment in human life. Every barrel means another day of life for 261 starving children. It will sustain the life of one child for one year.

"The Near East Relief is operating in four areas—Constantinople, the Caucasus, Syria-Aleppo and Persia. In these the Near East Relief has established hospitals, clinics for the care of the sick, homes for girls rescued from Turkish harems and soup kitchens, besides clothing depots and industries.

"The Near East Relief campaign has a working staff of 270 Americans and Canadians, while another staff of 270 Americans and Canadians co-operate with the Near East Relief but do not receive a salary from the fund. There are 63 hospitals under the supervision and maintenance of the Near East Relief Committee.

"The heaviest task of the committee is the care of orphans. The committee maintains 229 orphanages and cares for 54,600 in the institutions and partially supports 56,039.

"During the year food relief was given to 561,970 refugees who were forced to leave their homes by military operations. During the year there were 300,000 garments sent to Armenia from America."

The quota of St. Louis is the saving of 2500 lives and the campaign will continue until this quota has been subscribed.

APPEAL FOR MORE NURSES MADE

Council Urges Women to Take Up Profession.

Another appeal has been made by the St. Louis Council for Nursing Education to young women to take up nursing as a profession. The Washington University, St. Luke's, Jewish and city hospitals, which are represented in the council, will open new terms in the training schools next month. The training course in the hospitals is for three years, and only high school graduates or those with an equivalent education are admitted. The course is free.

Virtually all hospitals have the eight-hour day rule for nurses and salaries have been increased. Miss Helen Wood, Washington University Hospital; Miss Elsie Rogers, St. Luke's; Miss Anna Gillis, city hospital, and Miss Rogers, Jewish Hospital, will give information concerning training.

Are you "regular"? If so, read this

THE careful stenographer cleans her typewriter regularly. Would you give your body less care than a stenographer gives her typewriter?

Your system, even more than a typewriter, requires periodic cleansing. Whether or not the bowels seem regular, they should be flushed occasionally. Physicians know that elimination, even when regular, may not be complete. They know, too, that waste remaining in the intestines brings on most forms of human sickness.

Millions keep in good health by flushing the system at regular intervals. Try this sensible plan; know better health.

Use a harmless water laxative that will flush the system quickly, completely. Don't gamble with slow, overnight cathartics. Take Pluto Water. Pluto loses no time in ridding your system of poisonous waste. Works in thirty minutes to two hours. Safe, gentle, certain, quick. No griping.

Bottled at French Lick Springs, Indiana. Your physician prescribes it.

ECZEMA

Also Called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Water Poison, Weeping Skin, Etc.

For fifteen years I have been treating one disease alone, ECZEMA. I have handled over one million cases. I do not pretend to know it all, but I am convinced the disease is due to an excess of acid in the blood, and closely related to rheumatism and cancer. This acid must be removed.

Eczema is called by some people Itch, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Weeping Skin, etc. I am fully convinced Eczema is a curable disease, and when I say it can be cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and not merely patched up for a while to return worse than before. It makes no difference what other doctors have told you, or what all you have tried, all I ask is just a chance to prove to you that this vast experience has taught me a great deal that would be of help to you. If you will write me today I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will do more to convince you than I or anyone else could in a month's preaching. It's all up to you. If you suffer any more with eczema and refuse to merely write to me for free trial, just blame yourself. No matter where you live, I have treated your neighbors. Merely dropping me a postal today is likely to give you more real comfort in a week than you ever expected to enjoy again. Do it right now, your very life may be at stake.

HERBERT OPERETTA AT AMERICAN THIS WEEK

"Eileen" Last Work in Which Composer Collaborated With Late H. M. Blossom.

A romantic operetta, "Eileen," the last work produced by Victor Herbert in collaboration with his favorite librettist, the late Henry M. Blossom of St. Louis, will be presented at the American Theater tonight. "The Greenwich Village Follies," which opened the present season at the Shubert-Jefferson, begins tonight a return engagement of a week.

Herbert is said to have cogitated for several years a musical work in honor of Ireland, his native land. He gathered much material in the way of incident and folksong, and "Eileen" was the result. The scene is laid in the Emerald Isle at the time of the French Revolution, when many of the sons of Erin were in league with France against England.

The hero is one Capt. Barry O'Day, an intriguer of typical audacity, resourcefulness and wit. He is in love with Eileen, a beautiful Irish girl. His frequent narrow escapes from the British soldiery provide the dramatic interest of the piece. Many funny situations are promised, not the least of which arise from the unconscious assistance given to the gallant captain in his escapes by a slow-witted English baronet. The lyrics and dialogue are said to abound in humorous sallies. In the cast are Irene O'Donoghue, Maude McCullough, Josie Claflin, Ida Van Tine, Frances Clyde, Vincent Sullivan, Harold Crane, Roger McKenna and many others.

"The Greenwich Village Follies," supposed to reflect the life of a much explaited quarter in New York, is one of the few big shows which have been able to keep touring during the current theatrical slump. It is making its way back to New York, in its ninetieth-odd week. The cast, virtually unchanged since last fall, includes James Watts, female impersonator; Ted Lewis, jazz expert, with his orchestra; Al Herman, black-face comedian; Verna Gordon, in marionette and Javanese dances; Sylvia Jason, comedienne, and others, with a "beauty" chorus and many handsome settings.

Week's Announcements.

The Marcus Show of 1920, a revue coming from the West, is announced for next week at the American, to be followed by the Dunbar Opera Co., in De Koven's comic opera, "Robin Hood." "The Broadway Brevities of 1920," with Bert Williams, is to bring the Shubert-Jefferson's season to a close next week.

William and Gordon Dooley, with a company, lead the Orpheum bill this week in a musical comedy called "Two Vagrants." Others listed are Margaret Young, a favorite vaudeville songstress; Mel Klee, comedian, in "Just a Laugh;" Robert Hyman and Virginia Mann, in a comedy, "Five Thousand a Year;" Mang and Snyder, athletes; Harry Enger and Netta Packer in "Don't Push;" and the Ruth Howell duo, aerialists.

This week's features at other vaudeville houses are: Columbia, Samaroff and Sonia, in "Bits of Russia," a peasant scene of folk dances and acrobatic numbers; Grand, Tom Powell, minstrel, in "Old Black Joe Land," and Aurora and a company of singers in "A Night in Venice;" Rialto, Fay and Florence Courtney, with popular songs, new and old; Empress, Carl Rosini, magician and illusionist; and King's, Julia Curtis in a one-act comedy, "Three A. M."

The Gayety, which announces an extension of its season until the middle of May or later, offers this week "Girls From Happyland." "Der Himmelsleiter," a comedy in German, will be given at 7:30 o'clock this evening at the Eagle Auditorium, Lafayette and Jefferson avenues, as a benefit for Jean Wormser, stage director of the German stock company.

ST. LOUIS ORCHESTRA CLUB TO GIVE CONCERT THURSDAY

The St. Louis Orchestra Club, directed by Frank Gecks, will give a concert Thursday night at the Central High School auditorium. Ruth Hazlett Wunder, soprano, will be the soloist, offering songs by Strauss, Cyril Scott and others.

The orchestra is to play the overture to Weber's "Der Freischuetz;" Mrs. Woodward-Finden's suite, "Four Indian Love Lyrics;" the slow movement from Schubert's Symphony in C Major, and two movements from Saint-Saens' "Suite Algerienne."

Serve with Oatmeal

—To bring the rose tint to women's and children's cheeks.

—To increase men's energy and vim.

Do this, madam, for tomorrow's breakfast. Stew some raisins according to the recipe printed here, and mix with the oatmeal that you serve tomorrow morning.

Do it for the added flavor—to make oatmeal more attractive.

But do it mainly for the food-iron that raisins send into the blood, and for the raisin's mildly laxative effect.

The bloom of youth

Have you had your iron today?

The tonic food-iron of raisins helps to bring the bloom of youth to cheeks that perhaps are paler than they should be. Then the nutriment of raisins—1560 calories per pound—gives men and children the energy they need.

For regulating, tonic and nutritious properties combined, one can find no other food that's so effective. The luscious flavor makes it easy to serve stewed raisins frequently, so there's every argument in favor of their daily use.

Try it for a month and see. Look in your pantry now. Begin tomorrow.

SUN-MAID RAISINS

Use Sun-Maid Raisins in all your cooking, for they are the finest grown. Made from tender, juicy, thin-skinned California table grapes.

Packed in an immaculate plant in California. Clean, sweet, wholesome, American raisins—the kind you know are good.

Three varieties: Sun-Maid Seeded (seeds removed); Sun-Maid Seedless (grown without seeds); Sun-Maid Clusters (on the stem). All dealers. Insist upon the Sun-Maid brand.

Stewed Raisins

Cover one-half package of Sun-Maid Raisins with cold water and soak over night. In the morning add a slice of lemon or orange. Place on the fire in the same water in which they have been soaked and allow to cook slowly for thirty minutes. Sugar may be added, but it is not necessary, as Sun-Maid Raisins contain natural fruit sugar. Serve with or without cream.

What Dr. J. H. Kellogg says:

(Dr. Kellogg is head of the famous Battle Creek Sanitarium.)

"Raisins are served on the Battle Creek Sanitarium Table every day. A pound of Raisins has twice the food value, an equal amount of iron and seven times as much food lime as a pound of choicest lean steak. The sugar of Raisins is much more wholesome than cane sugar, requiring no digestion and being absorbed in one fourth the time required for ordinary sugar. If the American people would eat more Raisins and less meat the results would be better digestion, less rheumatism, less Bright's disease, less heart disease, greater efficiency and longer life."

Raisin Rice Pudding

½ cup Sun-Maid Seeded Raisins
½ cup rice
2 cups milk
3 eggs
½ cup sugar
1 cup water
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg (may omit)

Wash rice and place in double boiler with 1 cup water. Cook until water is absorbed. Add 2 cups milk, cook until rice is tender. To the remaining 1 cup milk add the sugar, spice and well-beaten eggs, combine with rice and raisins, pour into pudding dish, set in pan of hot water and bake until custard is set.

The Doctor's Advice

by Dr. Lewis Baker

Elsie asks: "I have pimples, oily skin, and suffer from constipation, headache, and never feel strong and well. Please prescribe for me."

Answer: You should overcome constipation and cleanse the system of accumulated poisons by taking Sulpherb tablets (not sulphur) for several weeks or more. These tablets are very beneficial, especially as they have a tendency to clean the blood and improve its quality.

"Fond Mother" writes: "Please recommend a first-class cough medicine free from opiates and suitable for adults and children."

Answer: Obtain from druggist a 2½-oz. package of concentrated essence Mentho-Laxene. With home-made sugar syrup this makes a full pint. Directions to make and take are with each package. There is nothing better or cheaper.

"Sickly" writes: "Being past middle age and observing that my nervous system is in bad shape, I write for a prescription. I do not gain strength from my food, am weak, listless, forgetful, sleepless at times, tired and unable to act the part of a strong man of health, such as I was at one time."

Answer: Get from a well-stocked pharmacy a sealed tube of Cadomene tablets, which are especially made for those needing a strong, harmless, rejuvenating tonic. Astonishing and pleasing results follow and life and hope are renewed.

K. C. asks: "My scalp itched terribly, is feverish and a great amount of oily dandruff is present. What is good for this?"

Answer: First shampoo the hair and apply plain yellow Mi-rol about once a week as per directions. This relieves the itching, overcomes the dandruff and makes the hair beautifully glossy and vigorous.

A. R. writes: "Rheumatism is my complaint, for which I would like a real curative medicine."

Answer: I have found a good blood treatment very effective, if taken over a period of several months. Ask your druggist for elixir Chin-Cea compound, and insist on getting it in 8-oz. sealed bottle package.

"Boston" writes: "What should I do to relieve a severe case of kidney and bladder disease? Have depression, fever, chills, pains like rheumatism and soreness in region of bladder."

Answer: For such symptoms as we describe I prescribe my favorite formula under the name of Balmwort tablets. This is a splendid efficacious remedy for such abnormal conditions. Begin their use as per directions on each sealed tube.

"Jane" writes: "My nerves are in a dreadful condition, my appetite is very poor and I am extremely thin. My body is so thin that it makes me very unhappy. I should like you to tell me a true remedy."

Answer: If you wish to become stouter, improve your appetite and your nervous system, I heartily recommend the use of three-grain Hypo-Nuclane Tablets, which you will find in any well-stocked drug store in sealed cartons with full directions for taking. Hypo-Nuclane Tablets improve the nutrition, add red corpuscles to the blood, strengthen the nervous system and improve the general health.

Claims Dandruff Will Cause Baldness

If you have dandruff you must get rid of it quickly—it's positively dangerous and will surely ruin your hair if you don't.

Dandruffy heads mean faded, brittle, scraggly hair that finally dies—new hair will not grow—then you are hairless and nothing can help you.

The sure way to abolish dandruff for good is to destroy the germ that causes it. To do this quickly, safely and without risking a penny, get from your druggist a bottle of Parisian Sage. This is guaranteed to banish all dandruff, stop itching scalp and falling hair, and stimulate a new growth, or money refunded.

If you want beautiful, soft, thick, lustrous hair, and lots of it, by all means try Parisian Sage. Don't delay—begin tonight—a little attention now insures abundant hair for years to come.

Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. will supply you and return your money if you are not entirely satisfied.

FREE FORMULA FOR FRECKLES

If you freckle easily, this is the season to prevent their appearance or remove these unsightly defects. Here is a good old-fashioned formula which does the work:

Derwillo, 2 oz.
Oatmeal, 2 tablespoonfuls.
Use as directed in every package of Derwillo.

This formula can be used freely, as it is absolutely harmless and will not stimulate or produce a growth of hair. Mix it at home, then you know you have the genuine article. Do not accept a substitute, as there is nothing better, just as good or just like it. Try it today and you will be delightfully surprised. Your freckles and tan will disappear as if by magic. The first application will astonish you. This splendid formula not only prevents and removes freckles and tan, but beautifies as well and brings to any skin that rosy white, velvety softness so much desired by everyone. No other freckle remedy does this. It is also splendid for dark, sallow skin, roughness, pimples, blackheads, sun spots, wrinkles, chapped skin, and puts the bloom of youth on your cheeks which will cause admiration everywhere. You will look many years younger and have a skin everyone "just loves to touch."

NOTE—When asked about Derwillo, one of our leading druggists said: "Derwillo is surely a wonderful aid in removing freckles and tan. It is away ahead of anything we have ever sold before, and we are authorized to refund the money to every dissatisfied purchaser. We would not permit the use of our name unless the article possessed unusual merit." It is sold in this city under a positive money-refund guarantee by all department stores and druggists, including Wolff-Wilson, Judge & Dolph, Johnson Bros. and the Enderle Drug Co.

INGROWN NAILS

Toe Nail Turns Out Itself if you Toughen the Skin

A noted authority says that a few drops of "Outgro" upon the skin surrounding the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensative skin underneath the toe nail, that it cannot penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost overnight.

"Outgro" is a harmless, antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

'THICK-EAR DRAMA' INTRODUCED IN NEW PLAYS IN LONDON

Phrase Coined by Gerald du Maurier in Speech After Successful Premiere of His Play 'Bulldog Drummond.'

STORY OF DANIEL ALSO IS PRESENTED

'A Bill of Divorcement,' Another Play of Unusual Interest; 'The Heart of a Child' Given.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, April 5.—Now comes a new theatrical cult, the "thick-ear drama." The phrase was coined the other night by Gerald du Maurier, son of the famous George, in the course of a curtain speech following the successful premiere of his play, "Bulldog Drummond," at Wyndham's Theater.

"What we have attempted tonight," observed the playwright, "is to get away from the ordinary routine hitherto practiced at this theater. Up to now we have given you the sex or the high-brow play; by way of change we offer you this evening what I am moved to describe as a thick-ear play."

If "Bulldog Drummond" is a fair example of the genus "thick-ear," it is a very excellent thing, indeed. It embodies a thumping good story, with plenty of sensational effects, a love interest calculated to keep you on the edge of expectation, as thorough-paced a band of desperadoes as "ever scuttled ship or cut a throat," and, above and beyond all, an element of whimsical humor shared equally by both the good and bad characters.

Capt. Hugh Drummond, the hero, finding that the piping times of peace serve only to awaken a craving for fresh adventure, inserts an advertisement to that effect in the Times. As a result, he comes to grips with a gang of maurauding thieves and blackmailers, who have captured and drugged an American millionaire whose diamonds they covet. He is held a prisoner at the lair of the gang, ostensibly a respectable nursing home at Godalming. There are raids back and forth, the American magnate is captured and recaptured, until finally, in two tremendous tussles, the hero overcomes the band's leaders, with the aid of a charming heroine, who wins the reward of a happy ending. The playwright himself, as Capt. Drummond, gives a performance on a par with his well-remembered and popular impersonation of Raffles.

"A Bill of Divorcement."

Unusual interest has been excited by Miss Clemence Dane's play, "A Bill of Divorcement," which is running at St. Martin's Theater. We are in the year 1932, the year in which was passed the bill embodying the recommendations of the majority report of the Royal Commission on Divorce. It is Christmas day, and the little household of which Margaret Fairfield is the gracious chatelaine are keeping festival.

Presently enters Gray Meredith, a forceful, domineering man, who is to marry Margaret before the week has passed. A bolt flashes from the blue in the shape of a telephone call. It brings the news that Hilary, Margaret's first husband, declared 15 years previously to be an incurable lunatic, has recovered his reason and escaped from the asylum where he was confined. The man himself quickly appears, eager to take his wife to his arms and start life again with the woman he adores.

Such is the situation with which the play opens. For Hilary Margaret has no feeling save pity; but he works on her emotions until at last she consents to sacrifice Gray's happiness and her own to a sense of duty. To the entreaties of her lover, to the fact that the law has given her her freedom, she turns a deaf ear. Gray reviles her harshly. "You have committed the unforgiveable sin," he exclaims. "You have denied not alone me and yourself, but the spirit of life." Thus he leaves the despairing woman to her fate.

But this is counting without the daughter of Hilary and Margaret—a bright, spirited girl of 17, full of life and ideas, advanced even for the progressive days of 1932. She is engaged to marry; but by a process of cross-examination, rather frank for so young a girl, she elicits the information from the family physician that the taint of her father's madness, which has not touched herself, is likely to reappear in her children. In horror she repulses her lover, and devotes her life to the care of her father. Won by her sacrifice, Hilary withdraws his pretensions to Margaret, leaving the way open for her happiness with Meredith.

"The Song of Solomon."

The Hon. Sybil Amherst, whose dramatization of the Book of Job met with striking success some time ago, has written theatrical versions of the story of Daniel the Prophet and of "The Song of Solomon," both of which were presented recently by the Norwich Players at "The Old Musick House," which seats about 100. The longer and more important of the pieces is that concerning Daniel, rearranged with reverence and skill. From beginning to end the production was a delight to the eye. Against the simplest possible arrangement of background and scenery, the gorgeous costumes stood out with brilliant effect. The handling, in an tiny space, of a cast of nearly 30 performers, was a triumph of stage management.

It is one of the rules of the Norwich Players that the actors remain strictly anonymous. The playing of the two chief parts—Daniel and Nebuchadnezzer the King—was exceedingly good. Music adapted from ancient Hebrew melodies embellished the lines.

In the shorter piece, "The Song of Solomon," the text of that glorious love-poem has been divided among a number of characters, so as to tell the story of a Shulamite shepherdess carried off to King Solomon's court. She is forever dreaming of her lost shepherd lover, till the King, in anger, has her branded as a slave and casts her off. This idea was carried through with the same sense of beauty and the same reverence as in "Daniel," but without the same success. There is no drama inherent in "The Song of Songs."

The triple bill of Shaw plays just inaugurated at the little Hampstead Repertory Theater, the Everyman, is chiefly of interest because in it "The Showing-Up of Blanco Posnet" is included for its first really public performances in England. It has been produced privately several times, but not until now have you been able to pay your money and walk to see it. Nobody will ever be able to invent a better description for it than the author's sub-title, "A

Hardwood Floors

WITH lumber prices now on a normal basis, hardwood floors are within easy reach of home owners. No other permanent interior finish so adds to the beauty and comfort of the home. They take the place of large rugs and carpets and cost much less.

The desirability of hardwood flooring is emphasized in "for sale" and "for rent" advertisements of homes having them. They are viewed as important assets greatly enhancing values. The housewife always seeks a home having them. She knows they are permanent, clean and cut down housework immensely. Their mirror-like surface gives the home a certain air of refinement. Hardwood floors reduce noise to a minimum and stand hard usage with the least mar.

An Inexpensive Home Improvement

As an illustration of the low cost of hardwood flooring today, you may order from any local lumber dealer sufficient oak flooring to cover a room 10 by 14 feet at a cost ranging between $12 and $14. This estimate is based on varying quotations from members of the St. Louis Lumber Trade Exchange on select grade, plain sawed, Red Oak flooring of 3/8-inch thickness by 2-inch width.

The peak cost of 1920 was approximately 170 per cent higher than this cost today. In other words, the example given would have cost during the peak period of 1920 the sum of $34.

Adequate hardwood flooring for a complete five-room bungalow, 32x26 feet, excluding the kitchen, would today approximate only $65.

¶ Visit the "Own Your Home" Exposition at the Coliseum, April 25 to 30. You may be the fortunate one to win the Dependable Lumber for a six-room home. Complimentary tickets may be had on request from this Exchange or any of its members.

To Whiten and Clear the Skin

Muddy or sallow complexions, or skins that are marred by freckles or blemishes, should be cleared and whitened in a very short time by using the following:

Mix some glycerine and zintone and dissolve in water. You will find the result to be a beautiful white cream, and by its liberal use a tremendous improvement will be noted in the complexion within a few days. The ingredients may be obtained in any drug store.

You Who Have So Often Wished for Something That Really Would Take Away the Wrinkles.

Just learn what a difference there can be between a cream freshly made at home and one that has been standing for months on a druggist's shelf.

The skin can be brought back to its original plumpness and vigor by the following formula. An astonishing result is the quick disappearance of wrinkles, little and big, crows' feet and lines of age. It is simple and can be prepared in a few moments by adding to half a pint of water one tablespoonful of glycerine and two ounces of eptol, obtained from your druggist. This takes years from your appearance and is always sure and positive in its work if you will apply it liberally, every day.

To Have the Arm Pits Soft and Free from Hair.

You can be sure that there is but one sensible way to remove hairs from the arm pits, and, in fact, from any part of the body. It is foolish to "burn" them off, injuring and spotting the skin. Just moisten the hairs with sulfo solution. This will actually dissolve away the hairs completely, and leave the skin superbly soft and smooth. It will not irritate the most delicate skin.

Sulfo solution may be obtained at nearly any drug store.

For Freckled, Rough or Muddy Complexions

The freckling, discoloring or roughening to which delicate skins are subject after exposure to wind or sun, often appearing in early spring, may readily be gotten rid of. Ordinary mercolized wax, spread lightly over the face before retiring and removed in the morning with soap and water, completely peels off the disfigured skin. Get an ounce of the wax at any druggist's. There's no more effective way of banishing freckles or other cutaneous defects. Little skin particles come off each day, so the process doesn't even temporarily mar the complexion, and one soon acquires a brand-new, spotless, girlishly beautiful face.

Wrinkles caused by weather, worry or illness are best treated by a simple solution of powdered saxolite, one ounce, dissolved in one-half pint witch hazel. Bathing the face in this produces a truly marvelous transformation.

Sermon in Melodrama." The other two plays are "The Dark Lady of the Sonnets" and "How He Lied to Her Husband."

At the Kingsway Theater is being presented Gilbert Frankau's play, "The Heart of a Child," which is adapted from his mother's popular novel of the same title. On the first night there was an emphatic demand for the author. His failure to respond was explained by the producer, who stated that he was charged to say, in the event of a favorable verdict being returned, that Frankau would regard the fact solely as a tribute to the memory of his gifted mother.

American Actress in "Three."

Alexandra Carlisle, the American actress, is receiving warm praise for her acting of Stella in W. P. Lipscomb's "Three," at the Comedy Theater. The other two characters are Paul and Bill. The latter is one of those downright men who, when they get engaged to anybody, like to kiss her, and are even coarse-fibered enough to look forward to having children after marriage. Paul is of the type who want the kissing to begin at once, leaving the engagement, if any, to follow later. Stella is a perfectly "nice" young woman, but just human.

Under the stress of various situations, Stella wavers from one suitor to the other, until finally, having just announced her intention of becoming an old maid, she finds herself in Bill's arms. That silent but astute person—who has returned from the states with a fortune to offset his American accent—produces a special license and marches the heroine off, determined to get her married before her mind changes again.

Nine Have Served 32 Years or Longer and Average Service Is 31 Years—First Time Such Award Has Been Made by National Board.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK.—Young women attracted to the vocation of missionary by the news that her Presbyterian missionary training developed in Miss Alice M. Robinson the characteristics that are making her a good Congressman from Oklahoma, will be especially interested in the careers of 15 Presbyterian missionaries who have served actively in the American mission field for a total of 464 years, an average of nearly 31 years each.

Recognizing their faithful service, the Presbyterian Woman's Board of Home Missions has presented to each of the 15 a gold service emblem. This emblem reproduces the seal of the Presbyterian Woman's Board in blue enamel and is inscribed with the year in which the missionary began her service, the year of the award, the name of the missionary and the number of years of service. This is the first time such an award for service has been presented by this board.

Among the 15 women so honored, nine have served 32 years or more each. The record for the longest service is held by Miss Elizabeth W. Craig of Taos, N. M., who has been actively at work for Presbyterian missions a total of 37 years. Miss Craig began her work with the Mexicans of the Southwest and has remained steadfast through all her years of service at this one mission station. She is held in high esteem by all who know her work and is greatly beloved in the mission field.

Two Served 34 Years Each.

Close second honors are held by Miss Florence Stephenson and Miss Mollie Clements, each of whom has served 34 years. Miss Stephenson is principal emeritus of the Asheville Home School, Asheville, N. C., operated by the Presbyterian Woman's Board of Home Missions, and has done remarkable work in the development of that institution. She is popularly termed by members and associates of the Woman's Board as "the dean of our forces."

Important special work has recently been assigned to Miss Stephenson and she is now at the Sheldon Jackson School, operated by the Presbyterian Woman's Board of Home Missions at Sitka, Alaska, where she is giving instruction in social hygiene. Because of her familiarity with schoolgirl problems and mission conditions, plans are being made to have Miss Stephenson visit all the boarding schools under the Presbyterian Woman's Board during the next two years, specializing in conducting courses in social hygiene.

Miss Mollie Clements has spent the greater part of her 34 years working alone, chiefly among the Mexicans of the Southwest. She is stationed at the San Juan School, Mogote, Colo., For many years she has been the only American in the plaza where she is now working.

Honors for third place are equally shared by four women, each of whom has served 33 years. These are Miss Esther Gibson of Hydaburg, Alaska; Miss Melissa Montgomery of the Laura Sunderland School, Concord, N. C.; Miss Josie Curtis of Gunnison, Utah, and Mrs. Cynthia D. King of Wolf Point, Mont. Miss Curtis has radiated strong Christian influence through isolated communities in Utah.

Principal of Girls' School.

Indians in Montana have been the chief beneficiaries of Miss King's work, and at Wolf Point, where she has labored for so many years, an Indian school has been developed. As principal of the Laura Sunderland School Miss Montgomery has a record of noteworthy achievement. This school is situated in a section where there are many mills and she has proved herself a mother to hundreds of mill girls, aiding in the development of the best elements of womanhood. Miss Esther Gibson, long known as "Alaska's beloved nurse," has devoted her life to Alaska.

Two candidates are tied for fourth honors, with a record of 32 years each. They are Hiss Ella C. Herron, Dorland-Bell School, Hot Springs, N. C., and Miss Alice Blake of Trementina, N. M. Miss Herron has served in several fields. As teacher or matron she has exerted a strong influence, especially among the boys of "The Willows." The greater part of the service of Miss Blake has been rendered among the plaza people of New Mexico, to whom she has brought visions of better living and higher ideals.

Miss M. Frances Robe of the Menaul School, Albuquerque, N. M., has for 29 years been an active missionary among the Indians and Mexicans, doing much practical and constructive work in their development.

Work in Porto Rico.

Four women missionaries have served 28 years apiece. As superintendent of the Presbyterian Hospital at San Juan, Porto Rico, Miss Jennie Ordway has done a great work among the people of that island. Superintending the work of the Dorland-Bell School, Hot Springs, N. C., and at The Willows, Miss Lucy M. Shafer has developed three institutions to a high standard. Miss Elizabeth B. Williams of The Farm School, Asheville, N. C., has likewise devoted 28 years as missionary and teacher to the moulding of the lives of the natives. The result of the work of these women is shown in the character of those who go forth into life activities from under their ministrations. The influence of Miss Alice M. Bryan, who has worked for the Woman's Board 28 years, is felt far beyond the nominal limits of a matron's jurisdiction. She is at the Laura Sunderland School, Concord, N. C.

Another matron who has faithfully served the Presbyterian Board is Miss Anna May Sheets, for 26 years engaged in Indian and Mexican work. She is matron at the Menaul School, Albuquerque, N. M.

"BIG SISTERS" SEEK MEMBERS

Organization Gives Counsel to Girls in Need of Friends.

The Big Sister organization is conducting a campaign among the women of St. Louis for 3500 members. Two thousand letters have been sent out and a group of speakers has been organized to appear before women's organizations.

The organization co-operates with the Juvenile Court and all agencies dealing with girls. Many girls who have not been delinquent, but who are lonely and in need of a friend are given counsel and advice by Big Sisters. The organization has one paid worker but the work has grown to such an extent that at least one more must be employed. The last call for funds was made in November, 1919.

From the Man Who Puts His Name on the Tire to the Man Who Puts the Tire on the Car

In the fall and winter just past, the strength and soundness of American business institutions were put to unprecedented test.

Concerns that rode safely and steadily forward, as the commercial barometer dropped, earned a new respect and confidence.

Of these, Firestone is a notable example. It would be hypocritical to deprecate our own pride in Firestone's record or to minimize our gratification in Firestone's present position in the industry.

Such honest satisfaction is only natural. We see today the fulfilling of what Firestone men have worked for.

Firestone's position stands clearly defined in the mind of the tire-using public.

Most Miles per Dollar—the established Firestone standard—is understood and accepted now as never before.

The future is bright for the Firestone dealer because he has earned the car owner's trust.

He has a product of exceptional quality. Back of him is an organization solidly built, possessing adequate resources, long experience and an enviable record for fair dealing.

From the man who puts his name on the tire to the man who puts the tire on your car the whole Firestone organization is equipped and ready to serve the fast multiplying army of Firestone users.

APPENDICITIS

Appendicitis attacks at any moment even persons seemingly in good health. Usually, however, it is preceded by stomach trouble or constipation. Many people have a bowel movement every day, but it is not a COMPLETE movement, and much old, stale matter stays in the system to ferment and cause trouble. Often there is only a small passage in the center of the bowels, while the sides are covered with old, hard matter, which sticks to the bowels and often poisons the system for months, making you feel tired all the time and "half-sick." Even if your bowels move slightly each day, that is not enough. There must be an occasional THOROUGH, complete cleansing to bring out all the accumulated, poisonous waste matter.

Appendicitis is an intestinal infection spreading to the appendix, and it can be guarded against in the same manner in which you guard against the spread of throat infection (sore throat). When you have sore throat, you can often prevent further trouble by using an antiseptic wash or gargle to destroy the germs, and a laxative to carry off the poisons from the body. Very similar treatment is necessary to guard against appendicitis. But instead of an antiseptic wash for the throat, an INTESTINAL antiseptic is necessary and a COMPLETE drainage of the bowel system.

INTESTINAL ANTISEPTIC

There is now offered to the public a preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a COMPLETE system cleaner. This preparation, known as ADLER-I-KA, acts as follows:

It tends to destroy or remove harmful germs and colon bacilli in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here.

It is the most COMPLETE system cleaner ever offered to the public, acting on BOTH upper and lower bowel and bringing out foul matter which poisoned the system for months and which nothing else can dislodge. It brings out all gases, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart and other vital organs. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter ADLER-I-KA draws from the alimentary canal—matter you never thought was in your system. Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much MORE foul matter is brought out which was poisoning your system. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, gas on the stomach and sick headaches, one spoonful ADLER-I-KA ALWAYS brings relief. ADLER-I-KA is a constant surprise to people who have used only ordinary stomach and bowel medicines and the various oils and waters, on account of its rapid, pleasant and COMPLETE action.

REPORTS FROM PHYSICIANS

"I have used Adler-i-ka in my practice and have found nothing to excel it." (Signed Dr. W. A. Line.

"I have found nothing in my 50 years practice to excel Adler-i-ka." (Signed) Dr. James Weaver.

"I use Adler-i-ka in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose." (Signed) Dr. F. M. Prettyman.

"After taking Adler-i-ka feel better than for 20 years. Haven't language to express the AWFUL IMPURITIES eliminated from my system." (Signed) J. E. Puckett.

"Thanks to Adler-i-ka I can sleep all night now, something I could not do for years." (Signed) Cora E. Noblett.

Adler-i-ka is sold by leading druggists everywhere. In St. Louis by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., 7th and Washington; Johnson Bros. Drug Co., 7th and St. Charles, and other druggists.

SPINSTER, 123 YEARS OLD, DOESN'T LIKE MEN OR CATS

Polish Maiden Thinks Longevity Due to Not Being Pestered With Husband.

WARSAW, April 23.—Poland claims the oldest spinster in Central Europe. She is Miss Anna Dobek living in Chocholow, who recently celebrated her 123d birthday. Miss Dobek is still quite active, physically and mentally, and does some housework each day.

She also has a sense of humor, and to her acquaintances attributes her longevity to the fact that she has never been bothered by having a man about the house. Miss Dobek doesn't like cats, either.

CHINESE JADE PIECES ON DISPLAY AT MUSEUM

Works Are Examples of Skill of Carvers of Period 1736 to 1795.

The extraordinary skill of the old Chinese jade carvers is well exemplified in four remarkable pieces recently acquired by the City Art Museum and now on display in the jade gallery. Two of the pieces obtained are a pendant and a snuff bottle, carved and signed by Ohsing, the most distinguished of the lapidaries of the reign of the Emperor Ch'ien Lung (1736-1795), a period remarkable for the skill of its craftsmen and designers in jade, porcelains, silks and other materials. The pendant is only 1¾ inches long and the snuff bottle about 2½ inches tall, but both are carved with a skill and breadth which entitles them to rank as important works of art.

The pendant is carved on the front with the figures of an old man and a child and on the back with a dragon pursing the sacred jewel of the law among the clouds. The original stone from which the piece was fashioned was composed of a central layer of translucent jade with an outer layer of dark brown on one side and of light brown on the other. All the colored portions of the stone have been cut away except that forming the decorations, which stand out, cameo fashion, upon a ground of clear jade, the human figures on the front being in dark brown and the dragon on the reverse in a light tone of the same color.

Colors Used Cleverly.

A similar and even more striking use is made of the colored layers of the piece of jade from which the snuff box was carved. The design upon the latter piece represents Dogs of Fo, the guardians of Buddhist shrines, disporting with the sacred ball, while a man wearing a pointed turban looks on. The animals are in various tones of brown, against a creamy jade ground. By skillfully varying the amount of the colored layer which was removed, the carver has been able to make some of the "dogs" dark in tone and others light and to differentiate the colors of such details as the eyes of the animals and the face of the man. To fully appreciate the skill and patience of the old Chinese carver, one should consider not only the remarkably small size of these pieces but also the fact that jade is one of the toughest and most difficult stones to work.

Another interesting specimen of jade purchased at the same time is a scepter used by a priest of the Han period (206 B. C.-220 A. D.) It is in the shape of a flat obelisk around which is coiled a dragon holding the sacred jewel, carved in high relief. The material is an opaque, gray green, clouded and streaked jade. Each time an ancient priest waved this scepter from right to left he was thought to receive a message from heaven. A fourth recent accession to the jade collection appears to be a sort of astronomical instrument, possibly an astrolabe. It is in clear white jade, with a "dry" surface and has a face marked off at regular intervals with Chinese characters. It is also ascribed to the Han period, though probably somewhat later.

T'ang Dynasty Pieces.

Another important accession to the Chinese department is a pair of large glass jars with covers, ascribed to the T'ang dynasty (618-906 A. D.). They are of graceful form with slightly fluted sides and their surface is now a frosted, iridescent tone.

A second example by the distinguished American painter, Frank Duveneck (1848-1919), has been recently purchased by the museum. This last accession is a landscape called "The Bridges, Florence," and illustrates well the versatility of Duveneck's brush, as it is totally different in conception and execution from the "Study Head" purchased by the museum a few months ago. The latter is boldly modeled with a brush full of paint and apparently without previous drawing, but "The Bridges" was painted in a carefully studied manner, every detail being accurately drawn and the outlines filled in with broad, thin washes of pigment. In the foreground are a number of fishing boats, floating placidly upon the surface of a stream, probably the Arno. As the stream recedes, it is spanned by bridge after bridge, rising in gracefully sweeping arches. On the further side are the picturesque towers and walls of Florence, gleaming in the sunlight which pervades the composition.

Why don't you arrange for a demonstration from April 25 to 30?

The Thorobred
More Style—More Worth

The debut of the Thorobred first sharply drew the line among open cars. The sport motif never found more inspired expression. For all of the keen distinction of the Thorobred, every contributing element is in extreme good taste.

Most exceptional is the low fuel consumption, because for economical power the Lexi-gasifier and Moore Multiple Exhaust System have yet to be successfully imitated.

For these and many more vital features of greater worth the Lexington plan of ten allied factories is responsible. Only by personal inspection can you gain a full sense of how much more the Thorobred offers you. Come in today.

WAR MOTHERS AND FATHERS

After visiting our beautifully kept National Cemeteries in France, a war mother said: "There is not one cross out of line; not one blade of grass too long." This care will continue as long as our Nation exists.

And the reverence of the French people! Where can we equal that, here at home? French men passing by these hallowed spots raise their hats; and on Sundays and holidays French families pass through the narrow paths with deep interest and respect.

Have you read Owen Wister's letter to the American Legion concerning the removal of our heroic dead? "They have been dragged from the soil their sacrifice made sacred and where, as an honored and cared for company, they lay in peace, their graves tended, their memory historic and precious to France."

Suresnes, opposite Paris — Belleau Wood—Romagne en Argonne—and Flanders Field, at Boni—are the resting places of Heroes.

Will you deprive your son of the honor of lying in that sacred ground?

Write to the War Department before it is too late. Tell them not to break the ranks of this quiet army that can know no defeat.

With sincere sympathy,

A WAR MOTHER AND FATHER.

REO SPEED WAGON
TRADE MARK REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

This Reo Speed Wagon Knows No Rival, No Peer

More attempts have been made to copy this Speed Wagon than any other motor vehicle ever built.

That isn't a mere statement, it is a fact known to everyone in the automobile industry.

Some have produced trucks that, so far as outward appearance—and even mechanical specifications—went, were such good imitations they'd fool any but the most experienced.

But—if we are to judge by the short-lived success of all of them—they were able to copy the Speed Wagon only in outward appearance.

For in performance—carrying capacity and durability—the Reo stands out above all others today.

And each passing month adds to that eminence

This you may depend upon—only a motor truck that is Reo designed and built in the Reo shops, can guarantee you the same service and satisfaction—the same low price and low upkeep—as the Reo Speed Wagon.

We avoid the use of superlatives as much as possible in our advertisements—but there is one Best in every line.

Among motor trucks that distinction belongs to this Speed Wagon—and so far is not successfully disputed.

When you select a Reo Speed Wagon you are sure. Why experiment then with copies or imitations or substitutes if you can get the original?

For, you know—"If it isn't a Reo it isn't a Speed Wagon."

DETROIT PLANS DRAMA SEASON, THEN MUSIC

Longer Engagements for Members of Symphony Orchestra Intended by New Arrangement.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, April 23.—A six week's season of classic drama, to precede the opening of the regular music season this fall, is a novel plan suggested to the directors of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra by Robert de Bruce, manager, in order to meet the problem of affording longer engagements to the members of the orchestra. The symphony season here is 32 weeks, and it is becoming increasingly difficult to hold the musicians in view of the competition of movie houses, which are able to offer contracts for 52 weeks in the year.

Only first-class plays would be presented, and the orchestra would be called upon to supply incidental music. For instance, a "Falstaff Trilogy" has been suggested, to consist of the first and second parts of Shakespeare's "Henry IV" and "The Merry Wipves of Windsor," the three plays to be given on successive nights. Admiral accompanying music could be arranged from Nicolai's "Merry Wives of Windsor" and Verdi's "Falstaff." Several Shakespearean plays might be produced in this manner, notably, "Henry VIII."

The casts would be composed of Detroit players, with professionals imported for the principal roles. An estimate of the cost of the drama season at Orchestra Hall has been made, and the sum is said to be so modest as to bear out the possibility of popular-priced tickets.

In addition, De Bruce has recommended a six weeks' season of grand opera to follow the close of the symphony season, next spring. This with the drama project, would extend the employment of members of the orchestra to 44 weeks out of the year. Here, also, Detroit singers would be engaged, with profession-

School Concerts Replace Tours.

The drama and grand opera seasons would replace the 12 weeks of popular nightly concerts which the orchestra gave last summer, and which have had to be abandoned because the Arena Gardens, where they were given, have been dismantled. Other important changes have been announced, among them a reduction of the orchestra's personnel from 99 to about 86, in the interest of economy. But funds will be on hand for the employment of extra musicians from time to time, as the scores may require.

Moreover, the Detroit orchestra has decided to relinquish its touring expeditions in large part. No outside engagement will be accepted, according to the manager, unless something more than railroad fare is assured. Cities which wish to hear the orchestra will be required to pledge an adequate guarantee fund.

Instead of out-of-town visits, the orchestra will undertake a campaign of intensive cultivation in its own city, by means of neighborhood concerts in the various public schools, serving as community centers. Tickets, at a maximum figure of 50 cents, will be sold only to school children and their parents. Thus, it is hoped, the orchestra will be able to build up a following that should grow larger every year. It has been estimated that, at present, only about 5000 persons in Detroit's population of nearly a million are reached by the Symphony Orchestra.

Echo of St. Louis Contest.

An interesting story is going the rounds concerning the recent contest for the conductorship of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. Ossip Gabrilowitsch, conductor of the Detroit Orchestra, was asked by the St. Louis management, it is related, to recommend three men for the post. He made out a list, including Rudolph Ganz, who eventually obtained the appointment, but not including the name of Victor Kolar, assistant conductor of the Detroit Orchestra.

Thereupon, the story continues, the musicians of the orchestra assembled and signed a memorial to the directors of the St. Louis orchestra, stating that they would like to recommend Kolar. He does virtually all of the rehearsing here and conducts about every fourth concert.

Value—that's why men buy Buick Cars. Realization of Buick's sound standard of value rather than price—recognition of performance as opposed to claims and pretense—these make Buick the logical, practical purchase.

Cut the Cost of Salesmen's Travel

THOUSANDS of salesmen are driving Overland cars to reduce the cost of travel and increase the results of travel.

In addition to a long list of great national organizations who supply their salesmen with Overland cars, there are hundreds and thousands of individual salesmen who own and operate their own Overland cars.

Overland is so light and yet so strong, so economical and yet so comfortable, that salesmen can cover more towns, see more customers, and use more time profitably, by driving it. Overland lasts a long time and costs very little.

"Cure Your Rupture Like I Cured Mine"

Old Sea Captain Cured His Own Rupture After Doctors Said "Operate or Death."

His Remedy and Book Sent Free

Captain Collings sailed the seas for many years; then he sustained a bad double rupture that soon forced him to not only remain ashore, but kept him bedridden for years. He tried doctor after doctor and truss after truss. No results! Finally, he was assured that he must either submit to a dangerous and abhorrent operation or die. He did neither! He cured himself instead.

"Fellow Men and Women, You Don't Have To Be Cut Up, and You Don't Have To Be Tortured By Trusses."

Captain Collings made a study of himself, of his condition—and at last he was rewarded by the finding of the method that so quickly made him a well, strong, vigorous and happy man.

Anyone can use the same method! It's simple, easy, safe and inexpensive. Every ruptured person in the world should have the Captain Collings book telling all about how he cured himself, and how anyone may follow the same treatment in their own home without any trouble. The book and medicine are FREE. They will be sent prepaid to any rupture sufferer who will fill out the below coupon. But send it right away—now—before you put down this paper.

HIGHWAY TO CONNECT 12 NATIONAL PARKS

6000-Mile Circle Route Embraces All Western Scenic Wonders.

Sleeping under the stars one night in a tent pitched in a free municipal camp and resting the next in a comfortable hotel, in the Rockies or Sierras, is one of many inducements extended to those who travel over the National Park-to-Park Highway this summer. There are fully 100 municipal camps scattered along the 6000-mile highway that connects the 12 national parks of the West, so that the road tourist, if he so desires, may spend three months in the open making the journey.

The circle highway, traversing 11 states, has a direct connection with transcontinental highways, and its promoters look upon the National Old Trails road and the Roosevelt National Highway as the scenic belts of a recreation wheel that drives road tourists westward.

The only available count of tourists by states in the national parks in 1920 was in Yelowstone, where 906 Missourians were registered in hotels, and 893 others came there by 256 private automobiles.

Defining a rough-circular course, the highway also touches Rocky Mountain and Mesa Verde, where prehistoric cliff dwellers originated the apartment house idea about 1000 years ago; passes through the petrified forest in Arizona to reach Grand Canyon; touches Zion in Utah and Grant, Sequoia, Yosemite and Lassen, with its active volcano, in California, and continues to Crater, Rainier and Glacier parks. Winter wraps used in crossing the Rockies or the Sierras in the middle of July are substituted for the temporary enjoyment of a bathing suit at the Pacific coast beaches.

Gus Holms, secretary of the National Park-to-Park Highway Association, with general offices in Denver, is preparing to issue a road guide for tourists which will be furnished free, upon request, to any address.

APPERSON TO HOLD OPENING THIS WEEK

The formal opening of the new Apperson St. Louis Motors Co. showrooms at 3333 Locust street, has been announced for all the coming week, beginning the 25th and closing the 30th.

The new company has been doing business two weeks, but the opening has been delayed until all the different models of the Apperson car have been received.

It is the object of the new organization to give service to every old and every new Apperson owner. A substantial and seasonal motor car personnel has been selected to take care of the public.

St. Louis is familiar with the Apperson Eight. In design it is two simple four-cylinder motors merged into one unit at the base. This design gives the eight-cylinder flexibility and the gasoline economy of a four-cylinder motor.

A HOME-MADE BATTERY FILLER

A handy contrivance for use in filling storage batteries may easily be fashioned by the car owner. It consists of an ordinary milk bottle provided with a stopper to keep dust out and tubes to pour through and admit air while pouring. A two-hole rubber stopper is procured, and into one of the holes is inserted a glass tube as long as the bottle is high. This serves as the air vent. Into the other hole is put a three-inch piece of glass tube, with one end projecting enough to permit a short length of rubber hose being placed over it. The filler is then complete, and it will be found in use that economy both in time and distilled water is effected.—In April Motor.

FOR OILING SPRINGS.

A simple means of keeping car springs supplied with lubricant may be devised from a small copper tube and part of a roll of electrician's tape. Bend an elbow in one end of a copper tube eight or ten inches long, and flatten the rest of the tube so that it will fit snugly against the side of the spring. Drill holes in the pipe at short intervals and then tape it securely to the spring. Thereafter the leaves may be kept lubricated by pouring oil periodically into the tube. The device has the objection, however, that the tape will wear from spring flexon and must be renewed occasionally.—In April Motor.

LEXINGTON DEALERS HOLD THOROUGHBRED WEEK

"Throughout the country, during the week of April 25, dealers and distributors of the Lexington Motor Co. will celebratte what the company has termed Thoroughbred Week. Our company will hold open house during this week," says C. C. Conrad, Lexington dealer in St. Louis.

"Thoroughbred Week is more than a sales campaign, notwithstanding that during this period every salesman associated with the Lexington will make a drive to sell the sport model of the Minute Man Six line—the Thoroughbred.

"We hope here to make it the occasion of a sort of reunion of old friends and an opportunity to make new ones for Lexington.

"Thoroughbred Week is really an appeal to the average person's sporting blood—to his love of an automobile that qualifies as well as does the blue-blooded horse to the title of 'thoroughbred.'

"The dictionary says that 'a thoroughbred is bred from the purest stock, hence is high-spirited, courageous and elegantly formed.' The Lexington thoroughbred meets, we feel, every requirement of the living thoroughbred."

NEW DISTRIBUTOR FOR U. S. L. BATTERIES

A new distributor for U. S. L. batteries to be known as the Mound City Battery and Equipment Co. will open Monday at 1520 Locust street. The organizers of the new company are Jacob Lieberstein who is engaged in the retail drug business in St. Louis and Joseph Felsen of East St. Louis. L. C. Sunkel, formerly with the U. S. L. battery factory has been appointed sales manager.

The company will carry a complete line of service station equipment, supplies and ignition parts and will give service on electrical equipment. According to Lieberstein sub dealers and service stations are being formed throughout the city. The U. S. L. battery is a product of the United States Light and Heat Corporation of Niagara Falls, N. Y. The Mound City Battery & Equipment Co. will be distributors for Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois.

COVER THE SPARE TIRE

Why spoil the pleasure of a motor trip by setting off on a trip without a spare time? With a view to economy many drivers are carrying no spares today, but it is a form of economy that does not pay. A spare tire of good quality is one of the absolute essentials for a car—it is the tire you depend on to bring you home.

The spare ought to be covered to protect it from the effects of sunlight and heat, says the United States Tire Co. Sunlight has a bad effect on rubber even in the coldest weather, for it produces a "cracking" or "checking" on the surface which rapidly extends to the interior, causing deterioration. Heat has an even more destructive effect. Spares sometimes are carried uncovered near the exhaust. This is poor practice if the heat strikes an uncovered tire directly.

A hand-operated tool has been invented for truing up automobile crankshafts.

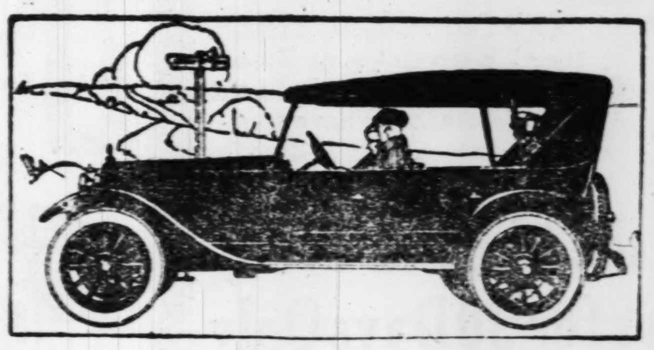
Grant Six



Power—

The Grant Six has it—power that takes you over the long grade or the steep hill at 35 or 40 miles per hour, yet power so flexible and smooth that you can change from 5 miles an hour to a 50-mile-an-hour dash in ten or twelve seconds.

Beauty—

The Grant Six is most decidedly stylish and fine looking, an aristocrat among medium-priced motor cars.

Comfort—

You'll find the improved Grant an exceptionally easy riding car, due to the 94 inches of springs (front and rear).

Ease of handling—

The Grant turns in a 39-foot circle. It is very easy on corner turns. The 23-inch gear shift lever and the emergency brake are placed so you don't have to stretch to reach them. When you start the car it glides away silently and smoothly—and you rarely shift gears.

Economy—

While the Grant has all the power and speed you'll need or care for, it is easy on your pocket-book. Owners are averaging 20 miles or better on a gallon of gas—700 miles on a gallon of oil—8,000 to 10,000 miles on tires.

Cord tires and snubbers are standard equipment on all cars

OLDFIELD TO BE HERE ON TOUR TO COAST

To Barney Oldfield, noted veteran of the speedway, a mere Pullman as a means of cross-country traveling has no appeal whatsoever. After several months on the Coast he is heading east at the wheel of his Marmon Speedster, the car which has been his constant companion since he drove the pace-making lap at the 1920 500-mile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

The Southern route has been chosen by Oldfield, who has announced that his itinerary will carry him through Phoenix, Tucson, Douglas, El Paso, Dallas, Oklahoma City, Wichita, Kansas City, St. Louis and Indianapolis and Akron, his destination. This is not Barney's first extended trip in his speedster, for it has been his means of transportation not only to the Coast, but on countless side trips of considerable length while there. This is the first time, however, that he has made a direct trip across the Continent, with a minimum of stops, and he reports that thus far everything has gone along in an exceptionally smooth manner.

PROPOSED LAW TO CUT SPEED TO 18 MILES

With "blue laws" occupying the attention of the country, radical motor legislation has crept into legislative discussions in some quarters. One of the most stringent measures proposed has been referred to a committee of the Illinois State body, and, although even its proponents admit there is little chance of passage automobile men and motor car owners may take it as an indication of "how the wind is blowing."

The unusual Illinois auto "blue law" was suggested by Representative Crudden of Chicago, who seeks to limit the speed of all motor vehicles to 18 miles an hour by means of an automatic governor such as now control the postoffice mail trucks of the Windy City.

"No regard is shown for the inevitable traffic congestion certain to occur where all vehicles travel at the same speer," says E. A. Hatfield, local Oakland Motor Car representative. "Picture for yourself the sight of Michigan avenue, in Chicago, with its thousands and thousands of machines all rolling along at 18 miles an hour. A car driving at the maximum rate, high on the crown of a boulevard, would retard all machines behind.

"Of course, we all smile at the prospect of such a law and its effects. But the mere fact that such a measure can find a sponsor and even a small number of supporters seems to indicate that there is now forming a sentiment that may, if permitted encouragement, grow into a commanding force.

"A minute's thought will give any motorist the solution of this problem. It can be expressed in one phrase, which the Oakland Motor Car Co. has spread throughout the land through its great dealer organization: 'Drive Politely.'"

Firestone Renews Essay Contest

Similar to the essay contest held last year, H. S. Firestone is offering a four-year scholarship, including expenses, to the high school student writing the best essay on a subject pertaining to good roads. The contest will be held under the auspices of the Highway Transport Committee this year, instead of the Ship by Truck Bureau, under which it was held in 1920. The rules are virtually the same, however, all high school pupils are eligible to compete, essays must be not more than 500 words in length, and must be in the hands of the local committees not later than May 31.

REALTY REVIVAL DEVELOPING SOME IMPORTANT DEALS

Contracts Closed During Week for High Class Tract in West End, Involving Large Investment.

TAX EXEMPTION LAW HAS DESIRED EFFECT

Large Volume of Capital Being Diverted Into Real Estate Channels Following Its Enactment.

By Berry Moore.

The real estate revival is developing gratifyingly. Negotiations are under way for many large holdings, in numerous instances carrying extensive building plans, both of a residential and of a business nature.

Contracts were closed during the week for a large, high class tract in the West End, calling for an investment of several hundred thousand dollars for the land alone, while negotiations were practically concluded for a deal attended with big building plans, to be launched in uptown St. Louis, involving several millions of dollars. These deals will be brought to a focus within the next two or three weeks. They contemplate both hotels and amusement places.

The whole atmosphere is clarifying, with money in better supply, and with rates at lower levels than heretofore. The enactment of the law exempting mortgages and deeds of trust from taxation is having the desired effect in that it is diverting large volumes of capital into real estate channels which were at a low monetary stage with the former tax handicap, according to Fred G. Zeibig, of Cornet & Zeibig, wh,o together with C. H. McMillan, vice president of the Mercantile Trust Co., Tom W. Bennett, president of the Mortgage TrustCo., and J. H. Farish of J. H. Farish & Co., were the chief sponsers and workers for the passage of the mortgage tax recording bill, which has become a law with the Governor's signature.

Apartments in Demand.

Apartments continue to interest capitalists out for big revenue-producing holdings. Sales of buildings of this character are giving the general volume of transactions round proportions. The number of buildings of this type being required for both investment and speculative purposes is surpassing all former statistics.

This is ascribed to the highly lucrative rentals such buildings are yielding, together with the fact that values are regarded as stabilized for a long time henceforth at prevailing prices, with construction virtually suspended, as a result of the high cost of material and labor.

At least this is the opinion of W. R. Cady, the new sales manager of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., who yesterday announced the sale of the Parkdale apartments at 5330 Pershing avenue to J. S. Cummings, who made the purchase as an investment.

The demand for houses is healthy, according to Albert T. Terry, but it is harder to get buyers and sellers together than heretofore, especially in instances in which high-class holdings are ocncerned.

The Home and Housing Association during the week filed warranty deeds for a dozen of the houses which it has sold recently. Its sales during the last month have averaged more than one a day. The solution of the renting problem is "Own Your Own Home," according to Cunliff. The association is selling houses on terms lower than they would actually rent for, so the success of the plan thus is assured, Cunliff declares.

Shortage of 18,000 Houses.

The building situation shows scarcely any signs of recovery so far, Cuniff states. Less than 135 building permits for residences have been issued thus far this year, and with a shortage of houses, estimated at 18,000, it is a very easy matter to figure out that under present conditions, construetion will not soon catch up with the demand, he points out.

Out of 160 houses the Home and Housing Association built it has only about 25 or 30 left, with the demand increasing daily.

REAL ESTATE BOWLING LEAGUE BANQUET TO BE SATURDAY NIGHT

The Real Estate Bowling League banquet will be held Saturday at 7 p. m., at the American Annex. The Entertainment Committee promises a special cabaret which it expects to give extra finish to the entertainment. S. L. Wimer, Alderman from the Twenty-seventh Ward, is president of the league. Mayor Kiel, State Auditor Hackman and President Hannauer of the Real Estate Exchange, are among the speakers.

MANY BUILDING PROJECTS HALTED BY HIGH COSTS

ULMAN CONTRACTS FOR BIXBY BLOCK

Site for Hotel and Two Apartments to Cost $950,000, and Buildings to Entail $3,500,000 Outlay.

Plans have been evolved for many apartments, several of them on a vast scale, but in the majority of cases construction is held to be not practicable owing to the advanced cost of materials and high wage scales. These conditions, coupled with prospective laws curtailing the rights of property owners, have resulted in the collapse of plans for numerous apartments, as well as for flats, according to real estate authorities.

The Menteer Realty Co. has for several months had complete plans for a ten-story apartment building of the efficiency type, the half block on the east side of King's highway, between Laclede avenue and Forest Park boulevard having been taken under option as a site for it. This project was halted, however, by abnormal constructive costs, and the option was permitted to lapse. The seeming probability of legislation inimical to real estate interests also served to dampen the ardor of these prospective builders. Eventual carrying through of the Menteer project is contingent wholly upon a moderation of building costs.

The foregoing is only one of numerous instances in which building plans of this character have been placed in abeyance as a result of the towering cost of construction.

Sumptuous Apartments Planned.

Menteer's plans and specifications provide for a 200-room efficiency apartment, sumptuously finished and appointed, and provided with every labor-saving convenience. The building, with courts, as planned, would have a 15-foot mansard, which would have the effect of accentuating its height. The King's highway facade, as shown in Menteer's plans, are of very attractive design.

The site is owned by the King's Highway Apartment Co., of which Erastus Wells is president. It has a frontage on King's highway of 375 feet, more or less, by a depth on Laclede avenue and on Forest Park boulevard of 156 feet. It faces Forest Park, which gives it decided attraction as a site for a large-scale building of the character stated.

The Menteer Realty Co. constructed and owned the Yorkleigh Apartments, on West Pine boulevard just east of King's highway, which were recently sold, and other notable buildings, of similar character in the West End.

Bixby Block Improvement.

Plans for improvement of the Bixby block, King's highway and Lindell boulevard, with a hotel and two apartment buildings, are practically complete. Chase Ulman, it is underderstood, has entered into contract with W. K. Bixby for the purchase of the block extending from Lindell boulevard to Maryland avenue, and from King's highway to York avenue, the latter forming the east boundary of the site, 440x500 feet, for $950,000.

The hotel, to be of eight stories, will be the most extensive of the three buildings to be erected. It has been designed with a large court and will comprise 460 commodious rooms in addition to banquet room and roof garden, running the gamut of buildings of this character. It will have an extensive frontage on both King's highway and Lindell boulevard. Its cost, exclusive of that of the site, is estimated at $3,500,000. The apartment buildings, each comprising eight stories, will be on the Lindell boulevard frontage, east of that reserved for the hotel, one occupying the York avenue corner of the block.

The King's highway and Maryland avenue part of the block will serve as a sunkeh garden, until some commensurate improvement has been conceived for it.

Plans for the building have been made by Preston J. Bradshaw, who designed the Branscome Apartments, on Pershing avenue west of Union boulevard, built and owned by Ulman, which were financed by S. W. Straus & Co. of New York and Chicago.

Large Warehouse Leased.

The John B. Krieger Real Estate Co. has leased to the Missouri Paper Stock Co. one of the buildings formerly owned by the Whitman Agricultural Co. at 6900 South Broadway. This property is served by a switch from the Missouri Pacific Railroad. It contains more than 40,000 square feet floor space.

BARGAIN LOT SALES AT THE MANOR ON TODAY

Low Prices and Easy Terms Offered by Prettyman—No Restriction on Property.

Harry E. Prettyman will launch a big lot sale today in the Manor, in Northwest St. Louis. Lots are being offered in this addition as low as $200, which may be paid in installments.

There are no restrictions in the Manor, the lots thus being available for either temporary or permanent homes and offering an opportunity to escape the high rentals being imposed throughout the city.

As agent for the Janet Realty Co., composed of wealthy men, Prettyman also has on the bargain counter at the Manor bungalows ranging in price from $1200 up.

This addition has all city conveniences, including churches and schools, and is attractively situated for homes on a small scale. The property is reached by the northbound Bellefontaine car line and the Union avenue line in connection with the St. Louis & Jennings Railway, running direct to the grounds.

Prettyman is doing a flourishing business at Virginia Park, where he has started construction of 50 model bungalows, which are being offered on attractive terms, with a view to expediting the sale of the lots. Virginia Park is available for sites for homes for persons working in the great northwest industrial district. The bungalows at Virginia Park are being offered at attractive prices and on very liberal terms, as are also the lots in this addition.

PARKDALE APARTMENTS SOLD BY TRUST CO.

A feature of the week's transfers in investment property was the sale of the Parkdale Apartments by the Mississippi Valley Trust Co.

The sale was made for the account of the Brown Paper Box Co. to J. S. Cummings.

The Mississippi Valley Trust Co. also sold a modern brick residence at 4368 Washington avenue to Mrs. Julia B. Walker. Its large and attractive lot is one of the features of this property, fronting 60 feet on Washington avenue by a depth of 243 feet to alley. The house is of modern construction and contains 10 rooms, with full conveniences. Sale was made for the account of Mrs. Leland and Boggs for a consideration of $8270.

The concern will conduct a general real estate and loan business, including a department of architectural designing and construction, directed by Sheehan.

BUILDING COST INQUIRY OPENED BY 10TH WARDERS

Improvement Association's Invitations to Material Manufacturers and Dealers Are Ignored.

PRICE OF KOENIG'S BRICKS DISPUTED

Brother of City Counselor Says Announcement of Reduction Was Misleading, but Manufacturer Says It Wasn't.

The Tenth Ward Improvement Association, whiich has undertaken an inquiry into building material prices in St. Louis, Friday night held, at the city hall, its first meeting, to which it had invited manufacturers and dealers in 16 various kinds of materials that enter into residence construction. None appeared.

There were in attendance, however, a group of master bricklayers, who declared they were looking for some of the cheap brick which they had read was on the market. They were referring to an announcement on April 4 of Henry C. Koenig, president of the Missouri Pressed Brick and Improvement Co., Osage street and Marine avenue, that his company had reduced the price of pressed facing brick 50 per cent to $12 a thousand, which was about the pre-war price.

Fred Daues, a brick contractor, brother of the City Counselor, stated that he had gone to the Koenig company yard, where he had found only 215,000 brick on hand, and no manufacturing operation in progress. He said that the price of $12 he found to be the price at the yard, and that Koenig was demanding $7 a thousand for delivery, whereas the quotations of other brick companies who now are asking approximately $20 a thousand for the same brick were delivered prices. "Koenig is fooling the public with his announced price," Daues declared.

Fred Dauer, another brick contractor, said that he had gone to Koenig for some of the cheap brick and that Koenig wouldn't make him a definite price. "Koenig is effectively hurting rather than helping the situation," he declared. "Persons who have been rather contemplating construction now are hesitating in the belief that the bottom is about to drop out of the brick market."

Koenig Explains Situation.

Koenig was not at the meeting. It was announced that he was ill. He said to the Post-Dispatch over the telephone yesterday that his price of $12 a thousand was a bona-fide price. "It is true," he said, "that we now have on hand only about 250,000 brick, because we have not been burning due to the lack of demand. However, my plant now is operating with 60 men and we will very soon have 300,000 additional brick to market at the announced price. That price is delivered in a zone we have established as territory to which we can deliver at that price.

"Beyond the zone, we are compelled to charge extra for delivery. However, to declare that we are demanding $7 a thousand for delivery is absurd. One wagon commonly takes 3000 brick at a load and makes three or four trips a day. According to Daues, we then would be demanding about $75 a day for each delivery outfit. That is manifestly not true."

Koenig said that his plant had a capacity of from 10 to 15 million brick a year and that it was the present intention to operate the plant at capacity.

Henry Laubach, another brick contractor, said that brick recently had some down from $24 to $20 a thousand on the price lists of other brick companies. David Eitzmann, a painter, said that the price of turpentine and oil recently had declined from a peak price of $2.10 to 75 cents.

Reports Wage Reduction.

R. M. Gillespie, president of the Mason Contractors' Benevolent & Protective Association, the organization of master bricklayers, declared that he recently had returned from a visit to Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland and had learned that a reduction in wages of bricklayers from $1.25 to 90 cents was to be effective Monday in Cleveland, that Detroit was moving to bring down wages and that similar action had been determined in Chicago. "St. Louis is the only city which is not doing something in this line," he said. "The contractors and material men are not sufficiently well-organized here They should get together and decide upon what wages could be paid in the building trade, issue an ultimatum and stick to it."

Referring to the wages paid to bricklayers, he said, they deserved more than others in the building trades because their employment was so limited by weather conditions that the maximum a bricklayer could make in a year at the present wage was $1900 to $2100 while plumbers under the same general conditions in the building industry could make $2700 a year. "Some just scale should be figured out and enforced," he said.

D. Seeger, another bricklayer contractor, charged that there was profiteering in sand. He said that he had gone to the river and observed the mechanical process of extracting sand. He said that the machinery took out between 60 and 75 wagons loads in 30 minutes. He said that dealers now charge $1.60 for a 35-foot load.

C. F. Ahrens declared that in 1914 the sand entering a small bungalow cost $100 and that now the sand for the same size bungalow costs $300. He said that the practice recently adopted of selling sand by weight instead of by the foot was "one of the biggest things put over on the contractor." He declared that a wagon whose capacity was 6500 pounds of dry sand had delivered wet sand to him billed as 7150 pounds.

It was indicated that the association would hold other hearings.

Aldermen Invite Information in Housing Inquiry

ALDERMAN LUKE E. HART, chairman of the Committee on Legislation of the Board of Aldermen, yesterday issued the following appeal to the public for information that will help the committee in its investigation of the rent and housing situation:

"The Legislative Committee of the Board of Aldermen is about to begin an investigation of the housing conditions in St. Louis, with a view to adopting such measures as will relieve what is believed to be an abnormal and unhealthy condition, which is greatly prejudicing the public interest and the rights of citizens.

"The sessions will begin with a meeting in the Board of Aldermen chamber in the City Hall, Monday evening, April 25, at 8 o'clock. The committee wants the help and co-operation of every person having a knowledge of any facts which will tend to assist us in this investigation. Many of these facts are known only to individuals, and our committee cannot learn of them unless public-spirited citizens will volunteer to give us this information.

"Therefore, we invite all those having information which will tend to aid us in arriving at the best method of solving this critical problem, to attend the meeting on Monday night. Those who cannot be present at this meeting should communicate with the committee at the Board of Aldermen chamber, City Hall, at the earliest possible moment."

REAL ESTATE MEN TO AID IN RENT INQUIRY

Aldermanic Investigating Committee Accepts Offer of Co-operation by Real Estate Exchange Committee.

Representatives of the aldermanic Rent Inquiry Committee held a conference yesterday with representatives of the Real Estate Exchange Committee, appointed to co-operate in the rent investigation, following which it was announced that the services of the exchange's committee had been officially accepted by the Aldermanic Committee.

The exchange's committee will attend the Aldermanic Committee's first hearing on the housing and rental situation, to be held at 8 p. m. tomorrow in the chambers of the Board of Aldermen in the City Hall, it was announced.

The members of the Exchange Committee are: James P. Blake, president of the John S. Blake & Bros. Real Estate Co., chairman; Major James L. Barngrove of the Barngrove & Specht Real Estate Co.; Frederick G. Zeibig, of the Cornet & Zeibig Realty Co.; R. King Kaufman, vice president of the Mercantile Trust Co.; William E. Caulfield of the Caulfield & Lewis Realty Co., and O. J. McCawley of the Hildenbrandt & Noble Realty Co.

It was announced yesterday that a sub-committee had been appointed to gather data on the increased cost of maintenance of rental property and the increase in rental charges. The subcommittee comprises 30 members of the Real Estate Exchange who handle large rental businesses.

Each member of the committee is to go over his books and prepare data showing the cost of maintenance in 1915 as compared with the cost now and also showing the percentage of increase in rents of the various pieces of property he has under his management. All this data will be compiled into one large report of the situation, and not only will be for the use of the general committee in its investigation, but will be submitted to the aldermanic committee. Members of the exchange's committee declare the report will give all the information that members of the aldermanic committee could obtain by an inspection of the books or various realty companies themselves.

The subcommittee will hold a meeting at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow at the offices of the Real Estate Exchange.

Chairman Blake of the exchange committee said yesterday he believed a citizens' rent commission should be appointed in St. Louis to hear complaints. Philadelphia had followed this plan, he said, and all complaints were passed on and in most cases acted on to the satisfaction of everyone concerned, without either state or municipal legislation. Blake said he believed the commission should comprise two representative tenants, two members of the Real Estate Exchange, on a business man and one city official.

Blake said he also intended to recommend to the exchange's committee that a subcommmittee be appointed to hear any individual complaints of rent profiteering.

Dickmann also reports the sale of 2620-22 Geyer avenue, a four-family flat for Mrs. A. Mattmean to Anton Zollar, and at 46608 Magnolia place, bungalow home of R. B. Kirsch to Dr. Henry Schoole.

REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE BOARD NAMES OFFICERS

John W. Gibson, as First Vice-President, in Line for Next Chief Executive.

At a meeting of the directors, the following officers were selected to serve the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange the ensuing year: John W. Gibson, first vice president; James L. Barngrove, second vice president; James P. Blake, treasurer, and O. J. McCawley, secretary, Joseph W. Hannauer having been re-elected president. As first vice president Gibson is direct in order for the presidency. W. W. Kay was installed executive secretary.

Hannauer, as did W. A. Giraldin, has the distinction of serving two consecutive terms as president.

The directors are James L. Barngrove, Barney F. Dickmann, O. J. McCawley, James M. Rohan and Richard C. Spackler, all re-elected, and William E. Caufield, who was elected to fill the vacancy created by A. R. Schollmeyer, who declined to become a candidate for re-election.

Prior to the balloting a luncheon was served to the members.

The exchange has appointed a committee to co-operate with the committee of the Board of Aldermen to inquire into rental profiteering. This committee is composed of James L. Barngrove, James P. Blake, William E. Caufield, R. King Kauffman, O. J. McCawley and Fred G. Zeibig, Blake being chairman. It will serve only in an advisory capacity on such matters as the Aldermen may desire information touching technical questions.

In the event defense of the increased rentals may be found necessary as a result of the hearing, it will be submitted by a second committee, composed of 20 or more members, who will submit facts and figures in support of the increases. It is explained that the exchange recognizes that there may be some excessive rental charges, but believes that in ninety per cent or more of the instances the present rentals are just.

The exchange will have a booth at the "Own Your Home" Exposition opening tomorrow at the Coliseum. The committee, composed of George Kempland, chairman, Barney F. Dickmann and D. I. Zucker, has aranged to have a rest room for realtors and their guests.

CITY REAL ESTATE FOR SALE

Happy Days in Maryland Terrace

Midst Flowers and Sunshine

The babies, the wife, the tired, nervous business man, just from the strain of the heated, throbbing, congested city—find real contentment and pleasure in their Maryland Terrace home with its casement windows and French doors, opening out onto beautiful terraces and yards.

Conveniently located, joining Washington University campus, Maryland Terrace is the educational and social center of St. Louis.

No smoke, no soot, away from the heat, the noise and congestion of the city. Here you are out in the fresh air and sunshine.

You can watch the babies grow just as a flower grows when you give it light and air.

Each home has a real yard, the lots are 190 to 219 feet deep. Maryland Terrace homes do not crowd the walks—they set back 62 feet from wide drives.

Not Expensive to Live in Maryland Terrace

Your home, having these wonderful surroundings, costs no more to build here than elsewhere. We require good architectural lines. No two homes alike. We encourage both the brick and the stucco. We don't want too many square lines—nor the drab effect caused by too many bricks.

Two unusual Maryland Terrace Homes for sale, just being completed.
IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT: A Maryland Terrace owner has just authorized us to sell his eight-room, two baths home, with garage, located on Westmoreland drive. He is purchasing 130 feet in Maryland Terrace on which to build a larger home. See it today.

Come to Maryland Terrace Today. Learn of the Special Prices We Are Making

Buy a home—or secure a good homesite. Take advantage of the unusually low special prices at which these lots can now be had. Terms if desired. Build now or build later. Protect your family by securing your deep lot homesites in Maryland Terrace.

Drive to Pennsylvania avenue (western boundary of the campus). Maryland Terrace extends west on both Maryland and Westmoreland drives. The University car comes to our front door.

Washington University Building Sites

Across from Washington University, in that beautiful restricted residential section, are a few 50-foot lots that would furnish a place, in most pleasing surroundings for a new home.

These lots can be had on either Kingsbury, Pershing, Waterman or Melville avenues.

Building prices are dropping and as a consequence, vacant real estate is steadily advancing and these lots to be had now at from $60 to $80 a foot, will soon go higher.

May we suggest that you give this matter your immediate attention in order that we can save you money.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

As we have no information bureau, it is impossible to answer queries by mail or telephone. Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

N. D.—The song you have composed might not prove successful, in which case you would lose your money.

J. W.—Get in touch with some kennel club or breeders' association in order to have the pedigree of your dog registered.

TYLER, TEX.—We cannot print the words of copyrighted songs in this column. Order the music with words through any music publishing house.

VIOLET RAY.—To obtain a copyright send two copies of your story, together with a money order for $1, to the Copyright Office, Library of Congress, Washington, D. C.

THANKS.—The ordinary form of writing the name of a street is to capitalize as, "Washington Avenue," but it is newspaper custom not to do so, as, "Washington avenue."

STAUNTON, ILL.—The statuary to which you refer, "Evolutionary Unfoldment," is from the chisel of Hersch Zitter, a young sculptor of New York. The picture is copyrighted by the Keystone View Co., Inc., 142 West Twenty-third street, New York City, N. Y. You may be able to secure a copy through this company.

E. M. B.—The highest point in St. Louis is near the west end of city block 4055, north of Arsenal, east of January and south of Southwest avenues, on a site formerly occupied by the Female Hospital, now Manchester Park, opposite from the poorhouse. This spot is 213 feet above the city datum and 617¾ feet above the gulf sea level.

EX-SOLDIER.—Apply for your victory medal immediately at the Recruiting Station in the Old Custom House, Third and Olive streets.

EDWARDSVILLE.—1. The sun is nearer the earth on Jan. 1 than on July 1 by 3,236,000 miles. Yet it is warmer in summer than in winter because, the sun being north of the equator in summer, the days are longer in summer than in winter and the heat accumulates. In winter the nights are longer than the days and the heat is radiated into space. 2. The sun is a mere trifle closer to the northern hemisphere in summer than to the southern hemisphere because the earth is a globe and the sun being north of the equator in summer, the northern hemisphere comes a little more directly under the sun. 3. The length of the day is governed by the rising and the setting of the sun. The sun makes the day.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(Prepared by a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

TROUBLESOME.—Get a lawyer to file a petition in the Circuit Court to change your name.

E. C. R.—The wife can prosecute for desertion and also file a cross-bill and ask for alimony. You can sue the plumber and after you get a judgment you can levy on his tools.

EL PASO, TEX.—In selling a business, patent right, etc., you would pay a Government tax on the difference between the cost and the sale price, or, in other words, pay a tax on your profit.

R. D.—The wife can notify her husband of her suit for divorce, by publication and he probably would not see the notice. If she knows his address it would be better to send him a copy of the petition.

ABUM LAWYER.—No knowledge of the law is necessary to become a notary public, but you must be able to give bond and get the endorsement of two reputable men, and then petition the Governor to appoint you.

O. P. O.—If the cochroaches and mice were bad enough to constitute a nuisance, and the landlord knew about them when he rented to you and concealed the facts from you, you might break the lease.

GASSED.—Write to the Secretary of State, Springfield, Ill., for a copy of the Workmen's Compensation law, and to the Industrial Board at Springfield for blanks on which to make your claim and for any other inofrmation you may desire.

F. W. F.—It would be better to pay your rent in advance, if that will satisfy your landlord. Any action in the matter would depend upon whether a jury believed your tally as to the number of bushels of coal or that of the dealer.

AN OLD SUBSCRIBER.—You have been misinformed, as it is not a fact that under the blue sky law of Missouri, if an oil company is absorbed or taken over by another oil company, all dissatisfied stockholders are bought out dollar for dollar.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

(Answers prepared by a physician of authority. Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given. Questions that cannot be publicly discussed, if showing evidences of sincerity, will be answered when accompanied by stamped envelope.)

KIND SIR.—A bunion must be treated by relief of pressure and friction. This is afforded by devices which protect the part or by specially made shoes. Aggravated cases are sometimes operated upon surgically.

DAILY READER.—Your question is not clear. A piece of bone may be removed from the shaft of the bone without any shortening of the limb, but if a cross section of the bone were removed there would be shortening.

YOUNG WIDOW.—Your marrying again following such an operation would not be unwise excepting from the standpoint of expecting to bear children, and of course this would not be possible. First, however, the prospective husband should be advised of conditions.

A. B. W.—When diabetes is once thoroughly established in early life, before 25 years of age, recovery is rarely possible. Even then, however, treatment if instituted early may do much. When the disease appears after middle life, in fat persons, or those disposed to gout, and is early recognized and promptly treated, it is usually easily controlled, although it is hardly ever absolutely cured. Even those apparently cured should keep a watch upon themselves and at intervals have the urine examined. So long as a patient has no sugar in the urine he is practically as well as if he had never had the disease. The outlook in spare, nervous, hard-working people under 40 years of age is bad, but even here with the hearty co-operation of the patient much may be done. There is no disease, perhaps, concerning which so much is accurately known and at the same time so little is known of the pathology. It is not in reality a kidney disease, although so considered by the laity. It is a nervous disturbance and can be produced by irritation applied to certain portions of the brain and other parts of the nervous system. Irritation and extirpation of the pancreas will be followed by evidence of sugar in the urine. Any agency, direct or reflected, capable of influencing disturbed activity of the pancreas may cause diabetes. It is evident that it is impossible to explain all cases of diabetes from any one standpoint to the exclusion of another. An abdominal operation might cause it, particularly if in such operation there was disturbance of the cell activity of the pancreas.

In loving memory of my darling baby, Vernon, and dear husband, William Koenighamer, who died April 19 and 25, 1920:
In lonely graves they are sleeping
As the shadows around fall,
And our lonely hearts are weeping,

Do not ask us if we miss them;
Oh, there is such a vacant place;
Oft we think we hear their footsteps
Or see their smiling faces.
Sadly missed by his LOVING WIFE AND CHILD.

IN MEMORIAM

Loving, darling mother, true and kind,

But in our hearts she lingers still;
For all of us she did her best;
May God grant her eternal rest.

A loving father, true and kind;

In loving memory of our dear father, John Byrne, who departed from this life April 23, 1920.
Just one year ago today
Since our dear father passed away.
We saw him suffer, heard his sighs,
With aching heart and weeping eyes.
We saw him sinking hour by hour,
Yet could not stay death's awful power.
But now he calmly sleeps at last,
All pains, all aches, all suffering past.
Sadly missed by HIS CHILDREN.

In sweet remembrance of our dear son and brother, Edwin Herris, who departed this life five years ago, April 16, 1916:

Since from earth you have passed away;
Sad our hearts but sweet the memory
As we think of you each day.
Sadly missed by
PARENTS, SISTER AND RELATIVES. (c)

MAKING "hay" while the "sun shines" often causes a "sunstroke" again trying to make too much profit often causes a "failure." We are satisfied with $5 profit on a suit. We're out of the "high rent district. The "crash in high prices" is here. Your dollar now buys more than 100 cents here. We can save you 40 to 60 per cent here; $15, $18, $20 and $25 will buy you a spring suit here. "We are with you" for 10 years; have led the way fighting for low prices, assisting thousands to "help keep up that prosperous appearance," which "means everything today." We have saved thousands of dollars for the clothes-buying public. "What the Drummers' Sample Clothes Shop means to you." These fine garments are made by the manufacturers for display or modeling purposes for traveling salesmen; they are made much better than the regular goods; after they show them off we buy them at a big discount; we give you the benefit of our immense buying capacity; this policy enables us to save you money. All we ask you is to "go shopping around" first and come here last, and we will certainly get your "dough." "Buy more, pay less." Vandeventer, Market, Sarah, Manchester, Chouteau and all other lines transfer to our door. We again announce our "Trade-In Sale" Department. We will make you a liberal allowance on your old clothes for new ones. "Abrams." "The Place to Buy Clothes." 926 S. Vandeventer av., near Chouteau av. (c)

SAVE THE CHICKS by feeding "P. D. B." Pure Dried Buttermilk, the greatest chick developer known to modern science; prevents white diarrhoea in chicks, regulates digestion and assures rapid growth. "P. D. B." is pure, fresh, creamy buttermilk, just as it comes from the churn; nothing added, nothing taken out except the water; 93 pounds of water being withdrawn from 100 pounds of liquid buttermilk. Not only is the all-important lactic acid retained, but all the food and energy-giving elements of buttermilk as well. Prof. T. D. Quisenberry, dean of the American Poultry School, and one of the world's foremost poultry authorities, says: "P. D. B." in my opinion is the best animal protein for baby chicks, growing stock and laying hens." Look for the package with the red circle, containing the "P. D. B." trade mark, the big generous 5-pound package, enough to feed a big flock for some time; only a small per cent of this rich, concentrated food is required to balance the ration. It is a real feeding economy. Be sure to get the original sealed package. Accept no substitute. The "P. D. B." in the red circle guarantees that you are getting pure dried buttermilk—no adulteration, no fiber, no filler of any kind. Above, the gun carriages bearing the bodies of four soldiers who fell in France are shown proceeding north on Twelfth street before turning into Locust for the march westward to Moolah Temple. Paris

YOU are sure to feel an irritating impatience with yourself when, in a group gathered for an evening of social gaiety, you find that your beauty is completely overshadowed. One or two women usually dominate the situation and become the center of attraction—the rest form the background.

Naturally you resent being part of the unnoticed group—but why are you not one of the few who stand out? Why not cultivate and intensify your individual charms—as the Parisian woman does—so that you will appear as a distinct type by yourself?

Bring out your individuality

The secret of the Parisian woman's renowned charm and fascination is merely that she emphasizes her own individuality—instead of imitating the beauty of others. She intensifies her own coloring and facial charms.

She studies herself. In selecting the shade and texture of her rouge and poudre—even for the occasional dabs on the shiny nose from her compacte—she exerts the utmost care to see that these blend perfectly with her complexion.

Those artistic touches of color that she gives herself—before she ventures into any social gathering, whether a dinner or dance or concert, where she is eager to maintain her beauty in the group—must so harmonize with her general coloring that they are unobtrusive—yet they must brighten her face—throw into relief the brilliant color of her hair and eyes, so that she stands out as a distinct type.

It is only natural that the study of skin colorings and skin textures has reached its zenith in the century-famed ateliers of Dorin of Paris—in the heart of France. There, poudres and rouges, of exquisite softness and refinement, have been perfected for the many types of brunettes and blondes—for the "indefinite" type (the brune-blonde)—for the Titian beauty.

Study your own coloring

As an aid in selecting the tints that will emphasize your particular kind of beauty, we have prepared a booklet, "What Is Your Coloring?" It defines the various types of beauty and recommends harmonizing combinations of poudre and rouge of each type.

These poudres and rouges are imported from Paris and sold throughout America—in the better drug and department stores in handy-sized compactes (originated by Dorin) for all sizes of vanity cases and your dressing table.

There are 10 distinctive rouges and 8 shades of poudres, each supplied in 6 sizes from the large bureau size (3 in.) to the smallest vanity size (¾ in.). Also a complete line of facial preparations such as eyebrow crayons, lip pomades, etc.

For 25c in stamps or coin, our booklet, together with two miniature compactes (La Dorine Poudre and Dorin's Rouge), will be mailed you. Tell us the color of your eyes, hair and skin, so that we can select the exact shades for you.

Or send 10c in coin and you will receive the booklet with two Dorin packets, one of poudre and one of rouge, en poudre (loose powder form). Remember to send description of your coloring.

Highest food authorities say that Karo is one of the greatest of energy foods

Mothers of large families should know these facts about this economical and nourishing food

EVERY mother knows that a growing family needs much nourishing food. Boys and girls need energy for their school-work and their play. Every member of the family must be kept in the best of condition.

One of the greatest of all energy-producing foods is Karo. One reason is that it contains a large proportion of the true digested sugar—Dextrose, the great energy food.

An interesting question—what is Dextrose?

You cannot live long without Dextrose. Most of the food you eat—such as bread, starchy vegetables and all forms of sugar—has to be changed into Dextrose before your system can use it as energy food.

So Karo may almost be said to be a predigested food. These are scientific facts, supported by the very highest medical and food authorities. Send for the free booklet mentioned below and read the facts.

Also, Karo is one of the most economical foods you could give the family. For it can be used for so many purposes.

Karo takes the place of high-priced preserves. It is perfectly delicious on pancakes, hot biscuits or as a "spread" for bread.

You can use it for sweetening all kinds of cake and pastry. It makes a palate-tickling dessert with stewed prunes, or stewed fruit.

And tempting taffy, fudge, caramels and all kinds of pure home-made candy—the kind that every one in the family enjoys.

Is it any wonder the sale of Karo last year was over two hundred million cans?

Your Protection

Do not be deceived by cans containing syrup that might look like Karo. The name "Karo" is on every can of original Karo—look for it, and be assured of full weight cans and highest quality.

FREE A booklet every parent should read. Tells all about the wonderful food value of Karo; explains the meaning of Dextrose and why children thrive on it. Sent free with the beautifully illustrated Corn Products Cook Book of sixty-four pages. Write Corn Products Refining Company, Argo, Illinois.

BLUE Karo

The standard table syrup. Also for cooking, baking and candy-making. Light brown color, delicious flavor—a heavy-bodied syrup.

RED Karo

The Ideal Syrup for every use—for cooking, baking, candy-making and preserving. Because of its honey-like appearance many prefer it as a spread for cakes, biscuits, breads.

GREEN Karo

Flavored with highest grade real maple sugar. Very moderate in price—absolutely pure. The makers of Karo are the world's largest users of the highest grade maple sugar—over a thousand tons used annually.

Two lovely Cheney Fabrics—Satin Panne, on which a dull gray disc forms the background for a dash of bright colour, and plain Crêpe Chenette—achieve an approved originality in this evening gown.

SMARTNESS REQUIRES DISCRIMINATION

SMARTNESS is much less a matter of style than of good taste. Milady may fashion her frock after the manner of the ancient Greek, with graceful flow of line and drapery, or she may prefer the youthfully piquant model that exploits a crisp bouffancy, and Dame Fashion will smile approval, so long as every detail be discriminately chosen and exquisitely executed. And since the first evidence of discriminating taste lies in the choice of material, the smartest of frocks are of Cheney Silks.

Stores with a reputation for fine merchandise will be quite sure to sell Cheney Silks, either by the yard or in garments ready to wear.

The almost universal tendency to constipation

Too many still fail to realize the seriousness of this condition

SO many of us are subject to constipation that doctors speak of it as an "almost universal tendency." Comparatively few have complete elimination of waste matter without the help of cathartics.

The problem is so important that a well known medical journal recently offered a prize for the best essay on constipation. Twelve of these essays reprinted in a booklet carry a message of deep significance to us all.

"Probably one of the most frequent causes of constipation is the indiscriminate use of cathartics," says the doctor who wrote the prize essay, and many of the writers emphasize the harm that is caused by cathartics which at best never remove the cause of the trouble but bring only temporary relief.

For years there has been pressing need for some simple food that would in a natural way help restore normal conditions, and keep the body clear of accumulating waste matter. And now scientists have discovered it in the familiar little cake of yeast.

First came the dramatic discovery that yeast in itself is a wonderful food, rich in the mysterious water-soluble vitamine. Then it was found that this familiar food brought remarkable results in constipation. Fleischmann's Yeast was tested for this purpose. In leading medical institutions, chronic cases, some even of years' duration, responded.

Being a food Fleischmann's Yeast is by its very nature better suited to the stomach and intestines than drugs, coarse substances or oils—the ordinary laxatives. And it cannot form a habit. Eat 1 to 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast every day. Eat it regularly over a period of time. It will gradually do away with the need for laxatives.

Some ask: "Won't yeast, when eaten, have the same effect as in raising bread?" No; it is assimilated just like any other familiar food. (Only one precaution: if you are troubled with gas dissolve the yeast first in boiling water.) Place a standing order with your grocer for Fleischmann's Yeast.

To secure booklet giving many interesting facts about this new discovery in regard to yeast, address THE FLEISCHMANN COMPANY, Dept 126-E, 701 Washington St., New York, N. Y.

A food, not a laxative

In cases of constipation remember that yeast is a corrective food, not a laxative. It should be taken over a period of time, from two weeks to a month, in order to restore normal habits. Do not discontinue the customary cathartic abruptly but reduce it gradually.

To help the body eliminate daily waste and restore normal conditions, eat 1 to 3 cakes a day.

Martha raised a trunk lid and displayed neat piles of fresh muslin underthings.

Madeleine twitched and twisted until Lois, who was driving, lost her patience.

"What is the matter? You act as though you had St. Vitus' dance."

"I have something worse," replied the exasperated Madeleine, "I have on a union suit which won't stay closed. I'm sure," she continued, whimsically, "nothing noble or heroic was ever done in ill-fitting underwear. I'll wager Joan of Arc would never have led the French in this union suit."

"Why not use some care in selecting your underwear?" Lois asked her. "Vanity Fair has a union suit with a patented closing called the 'sure-lap.' I always wear them and you never see me twitching about."

"When this petticoat isn't hanging an inch below my dress, it's playfully winding itself around me or riding up," fretted Marion.

Rene turned astonished eyes upon her. "You really don't mean you wear petticoats!" She might have been accusing Marion of a ring through her nose and a wampum frock.

"Oh, I know you all wear bloomers," replied Marion, "but I like something more frilly."

"Behold then," and Rene raised her skirt, "the Vanity Fair Pettibocker. It's just what its name implies—a petticoat and knicker combined. It can't ride up or twist because it's bifurcated, and you adjust it to any skirt length you wish."

The Cracked Rug

THE time came 'round again to have the rugs beaten, and I sent for John Joblots, the handy-man. After finishing the parlor rug he folded it wrong-side-out and laid it one side, where the boys found it after school. Here was a fine place to play!

"Heavens!" I cried, when John brought it in. "It's split clear across!"

The boys, together with three years of beatings, had finished it.

Of course it was quite a loss; to replace it now meant double the outlay. For the first time Tom and I figured out the expense of such crude ways of cleaning.

"John costs us about sixteen dollars a year," said Tom, "and the woman who sweeps and dusts gets around a hundred and seventy-five."

Then we estimated the dust damage to hangings, curtains and walls; and allowed something for wear-and-tear to lace and sash curtains through frequent washing. Altogether, the cost was around $240. a year.

"And on top of that our best rug is ruined!" I said.

The sequel is simple. We bought a Premier, primarily because we had heard such a lot about it, secondly because of the demonstration of what its marvelous revolving rubber-fingered brush could accomplish. Now we save its costs every year several times over.

The Premier Vacuum Cleaner is the one with the revolving rubber-fingered brush, which is famous for its enormous appetite for threads, hair, paper, pins and litter. Dusty, dirty rugs especially appeal to it. The damage to rugs by constant beating far offsets the cost of the Premier and it keeps the rugs, furniture and hangings clean all the time.

WEBSTER-MAN'S MAN

by PETER B. KYNE

CHAPTER I.

WHEN John Stuart Webster, mining engineer and kicker-up-of-dust on distant trails, flagged the S. P., L. A. & S. L. Limited at a blistered board station in Death Valley, California, he had definitely resolved to do certain things. To begin, he would invade the dining car at the first call to dinner and order approximately $20 worth of ham and eggs, which provender is, as all who know will certify, the pinnacle of epicurean delight to an old sour-dough coming out of the wilderness with a healthy bank roll and a healthier appetite; for even as the hydrophobic dog avoids water, so does the adventurer of the Webster type avoid the weird concoctions of high-priced French chefs until he has first satisfied that void which yawns to receive ham and eggs.

Following the ham and eggs, Mr. Webster planned to saturate himself from soul to vermiform appendix with nicotine, which he purposed obtaining from tobacco with nicotine in it. It was a week since he had smoked anything, and months since he had tasted anything with an odor even remotely like tobacco, for the August temperature in Death Valley is no respecter of moisture in any man or his tobacco. By reason of the fact that he had not always dwelt in Death Valley, however, John Stuart Webster knew the dining car steward would have in the ice chest some wonderful cigars, wonderfully preserved.

Webster realized that, having sampled civilization thus far, his debauch would be at an end until he reached Salt Lake City—unless, indeed, he should find aboard the train something fit to read or somebody worth talking to. Upon arrival in Salt Lake City, however, his spree would really begin. Immediately upon leaving the train he would proceed to a clothing shop and purchase a $25 ready-to-wear suit, together with the appurtenances thereunto pertaining or in any wise belonging. These habiliments he would wear just long enough to shop in respectably and without attracting the attention of the passing throng; and when, later, his tailormades" and sundry other finery should be delivered, he would send the store clothes to one Ubehebe Henry, a prospector down in the Mojave country, who would appreciate them and wear them when he came to town in the fall to get drunk.

Having arranged for the delivery of his temporary attire at the best hotel in town, Webster designed chartering a taxicab and proceeding forthwith to that hotel, where he would engage a sunny room with a bath, fill the bathtub, climb blithely in and soak for two hours at least, for it was nearly eight months since he had had a regular bath and he purposed making the most of his opportunity. His long-drawn ablutions at length over, he would don a silken dressing gown and slippers, order up a barber, and proceed to part with enough hair and whiskers to upholster an automobile; and upon the completion of his tonsorial adventures he would encase his person in a suit of mauve-colored silk pajamas, climb into bed and stay there for 48 hours, merely waking long enough to take another bath, order up periodical consignments of ham and eggs and, incidentally, make certain that a friendly sidewinder or chuck-walla hadn't crawled under the blankets with him.

So much for John Stuart Webster's plans. Now for the gentleman himself. No one—not even the Pullman porter, shrewd judge of mankind that he was—could have discerned in the chrysalis that flagged the Limited the butterfly of fashion that was to be. As the ebony George raised the vestibule platform, opened the car door and looked out, he had no confidence in the lean, sun-baked big man standing by the train. Plainly the fellow was not a first-class passenger but a wandering prospector, for he was dog-dirty, a ruin of rags and hairy as a tarantula. The only clean thing about him was a heavy-calibered automatic pistol of the army type, swinging at his hip.

"Day coach an' tourist up in front," the knight of the whiskbroom announced in disapproving tones and started to close down the platform.

"So I perceived," John Stuart Webster replied blandly. "I also observed that you failed to employ the title sir when addressing a white man. Put that platform back and hop out here with your little stool, you saddle-colored son of sen-

CHAPTER ONE.

I GAINED an unfavorable impression of Clemenceau. Instead of consulting me as to the proper method of procedure he would put questions abruptly. When the erudite and cultivated delegate from Senegambia asked for permission to object he would cry out, harshly:

"Whatd'ye mean, object? Get out, or I'll sic' the dog on you!"

Then he would thunder, "Adopte!" and it would be all over.

Furthermore, I didn't like the manner in which he turned to me when he felt a draft on the back of his neck and shouted:

"Ferme' la porte!"

It occurred to me that adding the customary "s'il vous plait" would have been more suave. Yet he always omitted it.

He is, I concede, a strong and brilliant man. Yet I would have admired him more if he hadn't ordered the room cleared whenever the conference got to a confidential stage. I really should have liked to have attended at least one of the important sessions.

CHAPTER TWO.

I gained an unfavorable impression of Lloyd George. His language was never diplomatic. He never referred, in all the proceedings I was permitted to witness, to a spade as a metallic instrument employed by a menial exemplar of manual dexterity for the removal of superflous alluvium. He always insisted on calling it a spade, which I hold, is gauche in the extreme.

Besides, he was forever making speeches, instead of submitting memoranda and agenda and discussing them in a modulated voice. It is needless to say I dislike speeches. They are never made in the diplomatic set.

Although I waited at the Crillon day after day for an opportunity to set him right on these matters, he never gave me this opportunity by calling on me. He was forever going to England to keep from getting overthrown by the opposition, which, of course, was vulgar self-seeking at a time when none of us should have thought of ourselves.

Meeting him one day in the Rue de la Paix, I asked him if I might attend a council of the Big Five that was to be held in the Palais de Glace that evening. He said: "No!" It was then, I think, that I first gained my unfavorable impression of him.

CHAPTER THREE.

I also gained, I am sorry to record in these pages, an unfavorable opinion of Mr. Wilson.

I had already gained several unfavorable impressions of him on occasions when I had felt it incumbent on me (for reasons unnecessary to state here) to recall interviews I had given to the press.

But I had forgiven him. And not until we got to Paris did the impression I have spoken of become permanent.

Mr. Wilson, unfortunately, suffered, immediately upon our arrival in Paris, a mental lapse which caused him to forget that I also was in the same city and engaged on the same mission.

The manner of the footman at the Murat Palace, when I called, might, of course, have been his own private manner, but I suspected that it was inspired. At all events, he usually stood in front of the door, with both arms stretched out to the jambs, as one who should say:

"Thou shalt not pass."

I didn't want to pass. I merely had come to get a few agenda, but it seemed an unbecoming way to treat a high commissioner.

Also, I could have been of great assistance at the conference. I am sure of that, if I could have dropped in informally now and then and told the boys what to do.

I may have been misinformed by a reporter who told me that when he asked where Mr. Dancing was stopping Mr. Wilson looked at him blankly and inquired:

"What Dancing?"

Still, it rankled.

I do not mean in these papers, of course, to cast any discredit on anybody. But you all know what happened.

And perhaps when I tell you that I didn't know anything about what was going on except what I read in the French papers, you will understand why it was what (in the language of the streets) is called, I understand, "a terrible bust."

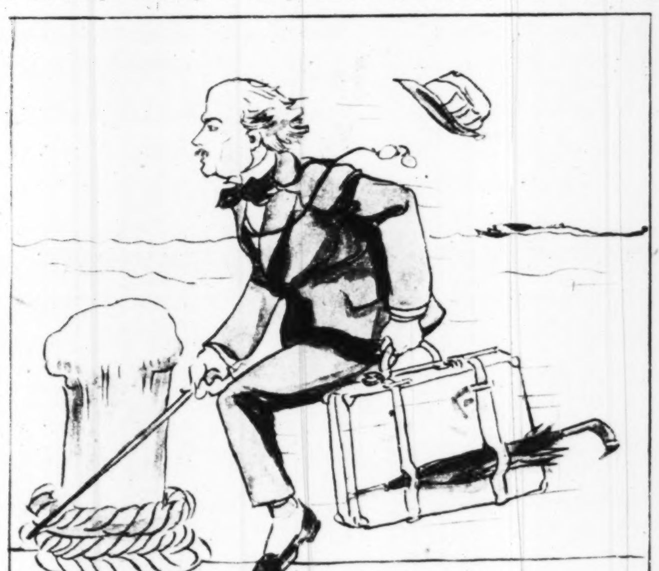
"Whatd'ye mean, object? Get out, or I'll sic' the dog on you!"



He was forever going to England to keep from getting overthrown.

The $20,000 Romance of a Two-Penny Postage Stamp

Uncanceled specimen of an 1847 Mauritius issue brings record price at auction in Paris and the fact that it was wrongfully inscribed by the unskilled engraver who made the plates lends it additional value in the eyes of collectors :: ::

A SINGLE, uncanceled postage stamp was recently sold in Paris for approximately $20,000. And one of the curious features about the deal is the fact that although the stamp is not one of the rarest in existence, it is probably the most valuable extant.

That this particular stamp was mistakenly printed with "post office" instead of "post paid" along the side, lends it additional value in the eyes of collectors.

The stamp was issued in 1847 for the British colony on the Island of Mauritius and 12 are known to exist still out of the original issue of 500. It is of twopence denomination and the issue was an attempt at a local series of stamps when Sir Rowland Hill was Postmaster-General of Great Britain. Sir Rowland Hill was responsible for the adhesive postage stamp being introduced into his country and the Governor of Mauritius asked permission to print a series for his own island.

Singularly enough, after 500 of the 1 penny and the same number of the 2 penny denomination were run off, the issue dropped completely from sight. There was little use to which they could be put on the island and the 2-penny stamps were practically all used by Lady Gomm, wife of the Governor of Mauritius, when she sent out invitations to a ball.

Of the few that left the country, none fell into the hands of collectors at the time. Then, in 1865, just 18 years after the stamps had been issued, a philatelist in England found one of each denomination in an amateur stamp collection belonging to a lady living at Bordeaux.

This revived memories of the "lost series" and a search was commenced for specimens. Only 12 stamps out of the entire thousands were discovered, however. One, that had never been used, was found 16 years ago, in a long-forgotten schoolboy collection of a resident of Hampstead. It was a perfect specimen and when it was put up for auction the Berlin Postal Museum sent a representative to attempt its purchase. It was finally knocked down for approximately $7250 to the then Prince of Wales, who is now George V of England. It was the highest price paid up to that time for a stamp.

The price paid at the Paris sale, which is almost three times the sum given for a similar stamp, throws an interesting light upon the tremendous increase in value of such rarities.

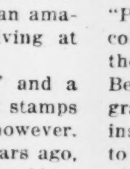
What makes this particular stamp of such value is the fact that all the known specimens are now in the hands of wealthy connoisseurs, who have no intention of selling them. This makes bidding active for any that get on the market. The dozen specimens of the same variety are all known to collectors and all efforts to purchase them proved of no avail until this recent auction put a perfect example of the series on the market.

So far as the stamp itself is concerned, it cannot be called a work of art. Skilled engravers were scarce on the island of Mauritius in 1847 and a watchmaker, Louis Bernard, was called upon by the Governor to engrave the plates, when permission was granted for the issue.

Bernard labored, moreover, under the disadvantage of an imperfect knowledge of the English language and, as he himself remarked, had never attempted a likeness in his life, either on paper or metal. It is not to be wondered at, therefore, that this picture of Queen Victoria is not especially flattering.

Moreover, the early stamps bore the inscription "Post Paid," to indicate that postage was not to be collected from the recipient of a letter, as had been the custom prior to the advent of adhesive stamps. Bernard, with his faulty knowledge of English, engraved the words "post office" on the side of the stamp instead of "post paid." New plates accordingly had to be constructed, but it is evident that the likeness of the Queen was not improved in the second edition.

However, the stamps were brightly colored and were the first of the sort issued on the island. As has been stated, Lady Gomm used up most of the stamps that had been printed with the words "post office" upon them in sending out her invitations. These stamps probably never left the island.



This difference in the value of such an article, caused by the wording thereon, is well brought out in Walter Scott's work, "The Antiquary," although the scene of that novel was pitched at a time more than 100 years ago. Scott describes how the antiquary had a huge collection of books, of no special value to the naked eye, but each distinguished by some characteristic which made them especially valuable to a collector. One would have an imperfect title page that had been corrected, another would be the first of a special edition and so on.

These peculiarities, extending to stamps, make them valuable. Sometimes a certain flaw in coins gives them the same value in the eyes of collectors. The 1803 American dollar is regarded as one of the most valuable coins in this country, from a numismatic standpoint, and a certain issue of dimes and 1-cent pieces are also of value because a limited number were run off with some slight irregularity in the design.

The Mauritius stamp was one of the first series ever issued in any British colony and this lends an added distinction to it, in the eyes of collectors. Several other stamps are known of which but a single specimen exists.

Flammarion Argues That the Soul Exists

Famous French astronomer declares man is "an atom borne on an atom through boundless space," but cites evidence to prove that he has spirit independent of the body—Asserts that some human beings have "seen without eyes," that the will can be projected to a distance without words or signs, and that presentiments cannot be explained on materialistic basis

-o- -o- -o- -o- -o- -o-

CAMILLE FLAMMARION, the famous astronomer, now in his eightieth year, has written three books with the purpose of proving, by scientific evidence, the immortality of the soul. The first volume of the trilogy, entitled "Death and Its Mystery," has just been published in an English translation (Century). The others, which are to follow quickly, will be called "At the Moment of Death" and "After Death." The works are based on investigations which, according to the author, have extended over half a century.

As an astronomer, M. Flammarion is aware that, in a physical sense, "man is an atom borne on an atom across the boundless space of the Milky Way." But, he asks, "is man as insignificant in soul as he is in body?—does everything in us die?—shall we never see again those whom we have loved and who have gone before us into the great beyond?"

Before proving that the soul is immortal, it is necessary to prove that the soul exists; and it is to this purpose that the first volume is mostly dedicated. The evidence adduced consists of a prodigal supply of instances—strange, thrilling, supernatural. The eminent scientist is fully convinced of the authenticity of these cases, of which he declares that they "are as certain as astronomical, meteorological, physical, geological and anthropological observations."

One of the author's methods of establishing the existence of the soul is an attempt to show that psychical phenomena may occur without the intervention of the senses. One chapter is dedicated to the thesis that "it is possible to see without eyes, by an inner mental sense." Under this head comes a case said to have been reported by Thomas A. Edison.

To the American inventor's laboratory came a man named Reese, of whose powers he had heard much. Edison caused a Norwegian workman to go into another room and write on a piece of paper the maiden name of his mother, her place of birth and several other items. The Norwegian returned, with the paper folded in his closed hands. "Reese told us the exact contents," Edison is quoted as saying.

He was busied at the time with the development of an alkaline electric battery, and, going into another building, wrote these words: "Is there anything better than hydroxid of nickel for an alkaline battery?" Then, Edison continues, "I took up another problem and gave all my attention to solving it, so as to throw Reese off the scent if he should try to read in my mind what I had written. I went back into the room where I had left him, and the moment I entered he said: 'No, there is nothing better than hydroxid of nickel for an alkaline battery.'" These, in Flammarion's belief, were phenomena of vision without the use of the eyes.

Another case cited by the author is that of a blind person, a nun at the village of Saint-Laurent-sur-Sevres, who could see, read, draw and paint. In the presence of witnesses, the nun is said to have painted a bunch of roses. Opaque cardboard was placed between her eyes and the paper, but the brush continued to move with the same regularity. The only mistake she made was to paint one rosebud blue.

A case with exciting possibilities is that of a French woman who, while hypnotized, was asked to name the winning number in the lottery. After a painful struggle, she announced that she saw the number 89. Flammarion assures us that 89 did actually appear in the next drawing—the chance of its emerging being 2,555,189 against 1.

Instances are also alleged in which events which have not yet occurred are seen; this is termed "the sight of future events." A friend of the author, Princess Emma Carolath, is the heroine of the following marvel: She dreamed of entering, in a strange castle, an octagonal cabinet hung in red damask. Over the head of the bed hung a picture of Christ, crowned with roses by an angel, and beneath it were verses by Schiller, which the Princess read.

Two years later she went on a visit to a castle in the depths of Hungary. "I stopped, trembling," she relates, when she entered the apartment set aside for her; it was the octagonal cabinet, hung in red damask, with the picture of Christ crowned with roses, and with the identical verses of Schiller."

A Frenchman named Saurel is credited with a similar experience. In 1911 he dreamed that he found himself in a countryside, unknown to him, with a large building surrounded by high walls, and a pretty brook running through the meadows. Saurel was a civilian, but in the dream he saw himself as an officer, giving orders to a camp of soldiers in a curious pale-blue uniform such as he had never seen, and wearing helmets of a strange shape.

Eight years later, towards the end of the war, Saurel had become a Lieutenant of infantry, and one morning received orders to camp with his battalion under the walls of a chateau, 200 meters distant. On arriving, Saurel saw the exact scene of his dream reproduced—it was the same building, with walls, and with soldiers grouped about it as in the vision. The Lieutenant was so certain of the identity of the two scenes that he told his men they would find a brook on the other side of the building—which they did.

Presentiments are phenomena for which, according to the author, a materialist psychology can give no explanation. He tells of a Mme. Constans, wife of a Minister of the Interior, who fell ill of diphtheria. A physician ordered that her throat be painted with muriatic acid. When this was about to be done, the patient, though very feeble, refused to let it go on, crying that "they were going to kill her." The physician finally examined the contents of the vial, and discovered that, through a druggist's error, it was sulphuric instead of muriatic acid.

A certain Thomas Garrison, said to live in the Ozarks in Missouri, is quoted as saying that all at once he was mastered by an overwhelming desire to see his mother, who was living 20 miles away. He rushed to catch a train, but missed it, and set out on foot, reaching his mother's home at 3 a. m. His sister opened the door, and told him that their mother was asleep in bed. They went to her room and found that she had died several hours before.

A gentleman living in Constantinople is said to have awakened with a start during the night of July 29, 1900, and to have exclaimed to his wife: "They have killed the King of Italy!" When morning came, all the flags were at half-mast, for King Humbert had been assassinated during the night.

Another category of super-physical powers is called the projection of the will to a distance, without the use of words or signs. We are told of a peasant at Havre who was accustomed to will that his mother, some miles distant, should do this thing or that. "She understood mentally and obeyed with absolute precision."

Another instance is related in which a physician, standing on the ground below, saw that an insane woman, his patient, was about to hurl herself from a window. He concentrated all his will in a silent command forbidding the act. Four or five times the woman balanced herself for the leap, and then drew back. By that time an attendant arrived and drew her away from the window.

Another incident dates from the Napoleonic wars. A certain Countess Toutschkoff, residing with her husband on their estate at Toula, dreamed three times that her father entered, leading her only son by the hand, and said: "Your happiness is ended, your husband has fallen. He fell at Borodino." She had never heard of Borodino, then a very obscure village, and could not even find it on a map. But three months later Napoleon invaded Russia, and one morning her father came to her hotel in Petrograd, leading her son by the hand as in the dream, and said: "He has fallen; he has fallen at Borodino." Count Toutschkoff had been killed in the bloody battle which made famous the name of the little hamlet.

Mrs. Ella Cooper of Philadelphia is said to have dreamed twice in one night during August, 1919, that she saw her son, William Cooper, crushed by a trolley car in New York. She was so alarmed by the repetition of the dream that she caught a train for New York. She took a Thirty-fourth street car, and as it was crossing Seventh avenue, saw a crowd about a man who had been run over by a trolley car. It was her son.

One Capt. MacGown is quoted as relating that, chancing to be in Brooklyn with his two sons, he promised to take them to the theater, and even bought three seats. On the morning of the appointed day, an inner voice began repeating insistingly: "Don't go to the theater; take your sons back to school." The narrator fought against the warning all day, but it became so peremptory that an hour before the performance he told the youths that they were going to New York instead of the theater. They did so. That night the theater was entirely destroyed by fire and 305 persons perished.

A former Archbishop of Bordeaux is cited as authority for a story concerning a young priest who, while sound asleep, with his eyes closed, was in the habit of rising and writing sermons. When he had finished a page, he read it over aloud from one end to the other (if we call "reading" this action which was done without the eyes); and if something displeased him he cut it out and wrote in the correction above, with much good sense.

Having written in one place "this divine infant," he thought, on reading it over, that he had better use the word "adorable" instead of "divine." So he scratched out the latter word and wrote the former exactly above it. But now he noticed that the word "ce" ("this") could not go with "adorable;" therefore he cleverly added a "t" to the preceding letters, so that one read "cet adorable enfant" ("this adorable child").

Flammarion censures vigorously what he considers the purblindness of some scientists towards such evidence as is brought forward in these and many other anecdotes, and cites another story in which Edison's name occurs.

"On March 11, 1878," he relates, "that day of hilarious memory, I was present at the meeting of the Academy of Sciences when the physicist Du Moncel presented Edison's phonograph to the learned assembly. The apparatus began to recite docilely the sentences registered on its record.

"Then we saw a scientist of ripe age, his mind saturated with the traditions of classical culture, revolt nobly against the audacity of the innovator; we saw him hurl himself upon Edison's representative and seize him by the throat, crying out: 'Wretch! We are not going to let ourselves be duped by a ventriloquist!'

"This member of the institute was Monsieur Bouillaud. Six months later, at a similar meeting, he declared that after mature examination he was convinced there was nothing to it but ventriloquism, adding: 'We cannot admit that a vile metal can replace the noble apparatus of human phonation.'"

On a Wagon Tour Through the Ozark Hills

Tillyannie and the Gobbler Hunter decide to wear their best clothes and find that many disadvantages attach to being mistaken for plutocrats—Loquacious visitor, who expresses disbelief in signs, tells them of various pet superstitions.

Third Installment

By ALICE CURTICE MOYER-WING

"THE next day was Wednesday and we started into it dressed fit to kill. I was a-wearin my fried shirt and one of them collars that you wash with a wet rag and make it new ever' day. I had on my stri-ped britches and pan-nermaw hat, and Tillyannie, she wore her silk stockin's that our son's wife sent her fer Christmas. Pure silk. Fust time she ever wore 'em. Been a-savin' 'em fer special occasions, as it were. Which we 'lowed this was one.

"We set up in the front seat all trigged up and wondered to each other what the people we met was a-sayin' about us.

"Long about noon, Tillyannie, she 'lowed it was about buttermilk time. We drunk a heap of buttermilk on the road. Seemed like all the farmers was a-churnin'. They jist ain't nothin', I reckon, that hits the spot in warm weather like a drink of good, cold buttermilk that's been hung down in the well er jist fresh from the springhouse. But that was a day that we didn't have none. The woman looked at Tillyannie's silk stockin's and axed her $2 a gallon fer it.

"'I aim to treat ever'body alike,' she says, 'and make the price accordin' to their means,' she says, 'and I calc'late that anybody a-wearin' silk stockin's these here days ort to pay $2 a gallon fer buttermilk,' she says.

"We was kinder quiet fer a spell, as we druv along, sort of meditatin', as it were, but after a while Tillyannie, she 'lowed that I ort to git shaved twice a week when travelin', especially when travelin' dressed up, as it were.

"'It's shore got its drawbacks, ain't it?' I says, a-lookin' at her silk stockin's. 'That's the way it goes, I reckon, to be rich,' I says. 'But about this here shavin', honey, I'd like to obleege you the best in the world. Nothin' would please me better than to shave ever' day when out a-travelin', if only I jist had my razor!' I says. And Tillyannie, she busted out a-laughin'.

"'It wasn't nothin' but the cookies that was left behind,' she says. 'I slipped your razor out when I seen you had found where I hid it.'

"'Gen-tull-men,' I says. 'But what if I was to lose the lookin' glass, honey? Things is lost a heap of times,' I says, 'when a person is away frum home.'

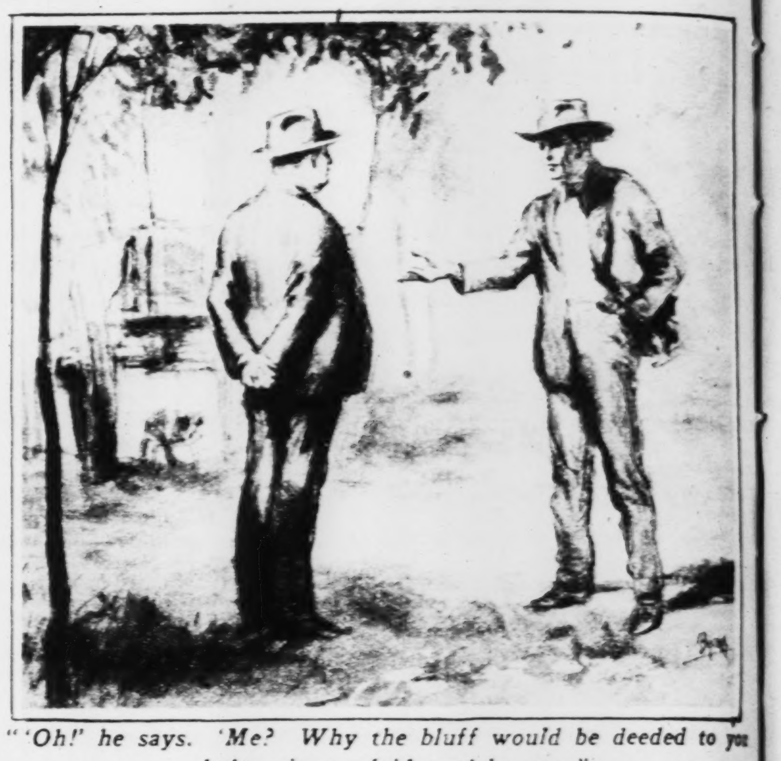
"'William,' says Tillyannie, lookin' off at the hills, 'when the wild Injuns lived here, they didn't have no lookin' glasses, nuther, but they had these Ozark streams fer to look in to see how to shave by and to do up their hair. The water is still here, William,' she says.

"I 'lowed maybe the Indians wasn't pestered to death with sich things as razors, but I knowed I was treed and didn't say nothin' more about it. That is, nothin' out loud. And that night we had a visitor. 'Howdy, stranger,' he says, and sets hisself down by our fire, like as if he'd knowed us all his life. Saw us a-passin' his house, he said, and 'lowed that he hoped we would decide to stay with 'em, as it were. That they needed public-sperrited people like he knowed we was to help develop the country. He talked about purty nigh ever'thing they was to talk about, I reckon, and jist as I thought he'd stayed long enough, he broke out in a new place with a lot of stuff about han'ts and sich. Said he didn't believe they was no sich things as ha'nts, but that they shore was one a-livin' in a old house on his farm down by the spring, where a man was killed in the Civil War.

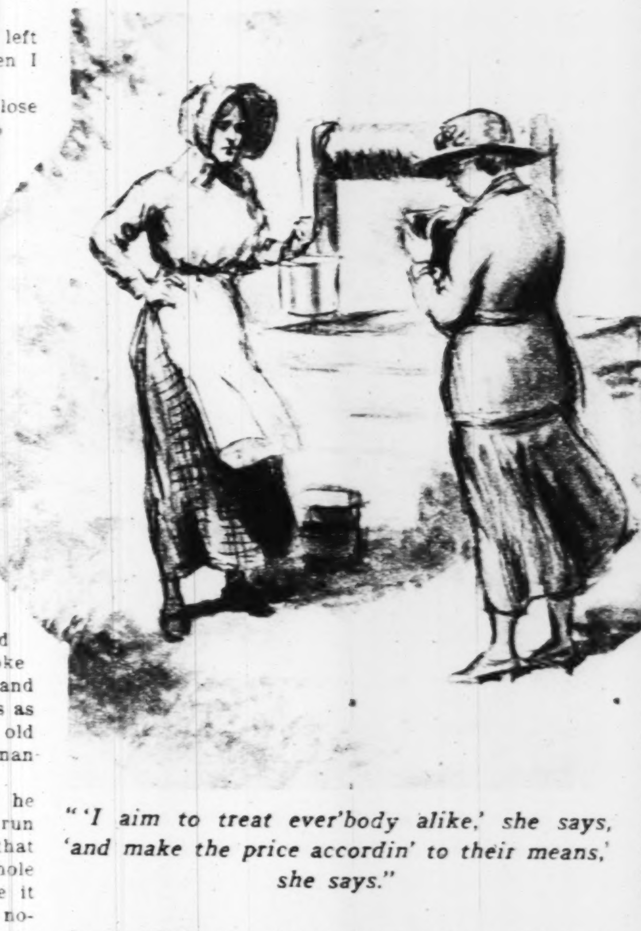
"'And I shore don't believe in signs, nuther,' he says, 'but purty nigh ever' ye'r I git the kids to run around the house three times in the fust snow that falls, and they shore don't have no cold feet that whole winter. And I don't let 'em kill lizards, because it makes the cows give sp'ilt milk. And I've always noticed that if you kill hawgs in the new of the moon, the meat won't shrink up jist to nothin' when you fry it, and that if you kill 'em when the moon is a-wanin', the meat will jist go plumb to nothin' but grease. And Mary Jane, she won't plant nothin' in her garden 'cept the moon is jist right. She plants things in the light of the moon that grows above ground, like termaters, and things in the dark of it that grows under the ground, like pertaters. I tell her that I plant my stuff in the ground, not in the moon—he! he! he!' That's the way he laughed: 'He! he! he!'

"'I don't believe in sich things,' he says, 'but I purty nigh always plant corn in the light of the moon. And I always plant my po-turnips on the tenth day of August, because, unless it jist happens not to, it purty nigh always rains on the eleventh. And speakin' of corn, did you ever notice that if you burn the cobs of popcorn when you're a-shellin' it, that it won't pop? No, sir. Nary a pop. It'll jist plumb burn up ever' time.

"'And when we happen to have a little snow in May, which ain't often,' he says, 'Mary Jane and the kids always puts a pile of it in the chimbley corner to melt, and they shore ain't no fleas around our house that whole summer. And we don't never buy a broom in May at our house,' he says. 'Course, they ain't nothin' in it and it ain't so, but they say that a broom bought in May will sweep all the good luck out of your house fer a whole year, but I beat a feller oncet at a hoss trade about the wust I ever did, right after I had bought a broom on the fust day of May, thinkin' it was still A-prile, but I reckon it was so close that it didn't make no differ'nce. And I've noticed that it's plumb bad luck to open a umbrell or to bring a hoe in the house er to walk under a ladder that is a-leanin' up aginst somethin'. And when Mary Jane has to go back fer somethin' that she's fergot, she always sets down and counts three fer to take the bad luck away. And when she's a-wearin' shoes, like in winter, she wouldn't walk across the floor with one shoe off fer no money. It's shore bad luck to do sich a thing. And I've noticed that when I keep a thing fer seven year, I purty nigh always have a use fer it, and sometimes before the seven year is up.



"'Oh!' he says. 'Me? Why the bluff would be deeded to you before it was laid out,' he says."



"'I aim to treat ever'body alike,' she says, 'and make the price accordin' to their means,' she says."

"'We didn't make but a few molasses last year,' he says, without stoppin' to ketch his breath, 'but they was the best ones I ever seen. Do you know what we done? Well, sir, we put seven sugar lumps in a bucket and hung 'em in a wild cherry tree close to where we was a-b'ilin' the cane juice, and them molasses is purty nigh sugar, theirselves. The number seven is a mystery number, you know,' he says. 'You can do purty nigh anything with it,' he says. 'And if you'n's has got a cat,' he says, 'you can always tell when they's a-goin' to be a spell of weather. When our old Tabby lays with his back to the fire, Mary Jane, she always puts extry kivver on the beds. And did you ever notice that if you hear a katydid holler in May that they'll be a big frost in September? It's a shore sign. And if I ever git my shirt on wrong side out'ards of a mornin', I don't never change it back fer 24 hours. Somethin' will shore happen if you do. And if you ketch a blacksnake in the spring of the year, and tie a knot in his tail, you shore won't fergit nothin' that summer. Sorter like tyin' a string around your finger to keep frum fergittin', only more so,' he says.

"But I wasn't on any sich intimate terms as them with blacksnakes. Besides, he'd wore his welcome out. I got up and stretched and remarked that the fire was a-gittin' low, but he wasn't one of them kind that could take a hint. Besides, he was jist a-gittin' to the p'int.

"'What I railly come fer,' he says, 'was to tell you that I tuck you to be a public-sperrited feller, as it were. One of them kind that would be willin' to do somethin' fer his State,' he says. 'One who would like to go down in history as a great ben'factor, a great founder of a great city,' he says. 'I don't reckon,' he says, 'that none of us is a-wantin' to be like the feller that went down to Jericho and fell among thistles and the weeds sprung up and choked him, like the Bible tells about.

"'Your dawg is a English bulldawg, ain't he?' he ast, changin' the subjeck. 'And he's got a Arrish name, ain't he? Funny, ain't it? He! he! he!' And I tells him that I didn't reckon it was so awful funny. It plumb riles me fer people to git familiar about Happy Hooligan. 'Well,' he says, 'dawgs is all right in their place, but some of 'em is awful ornery and dooless and not much a'count,' he says, and I told him they was some men in the same fix and that I reckoned he better change the subjeck ag'in.

"'Shore,' he says, 'shore. As I was a-sayin', I tuck you to be the kind of a feller that knowed a bargain when he seen it. Bargains,' he 'lowed, 'was jist a-layin' around loose, all about us, but it wasn't jist ever'body that could see 'em, er if they seen 'em, would know what they was.'

"What do you reckon the blame fool was a-drivin' at? Why, he wanted me to lay out a big rocky bluff on his farm and sell it fer garden spots. He'd furnish the land and do the rest and go havers on it, he 'lowed. He knowed a man that had the purtiest city laid out that he ever seen on a map and that it was a heap wuss hill than his'n. And that he made a heap of money, like we would do with the right kind of a feller at the head of it, meanin' me. Said he reckonized me as a great business head the minute he seen me a-passin' along the road. Said ever'body was shore crazy over gardens these days and that they would sell like hot pertaters, especially in the city.

"'But what will the people do when they see what's been sold to 'em?' I asts. 'Although,' I says, 'I don't reckon they would likely come fer a spell after buyin', and by that time I could have 'em all sold and be cl'ared out,' I says, jist to see what the ornery cuss would do.

"'Shore! Shore!' he says. 'He! he! he! I knowed you had a head on you.'

"'But,' I says, kinder skeered like, 'what would they do to you? I shore wouldn't want you to git hurt ner nothin'. And you cain't never tell about people frum the city—what they would do ner nothin'.'

"'Oh!' he says. 'Me? Why the bluff would be deeded to you before it was laid out,' he says.

"Well, sir, he got plumb insultin' when he found out that I wasn't as fur-seein' as he 'lowed I was, and said when he seen me a-travelin' around in a wagon, all fixed up like as if it was Sunday, he jist 'lowed that I was one of them fellers with more money than brains and that a fool and his cash always gits away frum each other easy.

"It was all I could do to keep my right foot frum bustin' loose when I told him to git. It might a-got away frum me in spite of myself if my 'tention hadn't

Charm of Gypsy Life in an Auto Develops Definite Class Known as "Tin Canners"

Summer tourist who journeys in well equipped car with a trailer has humbler counterpart in the nomad of little means who has found that the automobile can provide him with a roof tree as well as with a means of wandering from state to state -o- -o- -o-

GYPSYDOM has assumed a new form in the United States. Not only has the old horse-drawn wagon of the Romany Rye disappeared from our country roads, to make way for the automobile, but an entirely new element has taken up the strolling life, originally favored only by the nomadic tribes of gypsies.

So definite a class has this new element become that a generic term of "tin canners" has been applied in the Southern states. Whether this refers to the alleged habit of the hobo of cooking his meals in tomato cans, or to the amount of canned food consumed by the travelers, or whether it relates to the "tin Lizzies" in which many of the strollers travel, is unknown.

But the fact remains that a large and restless array of persons have found that the auto can furnish them with a roof tree as well as a means of locomotion, and the roadside camp of these characters is now a common sight.

Now that spring has arrived there is a general trek northward. Wanderers who have spent the winter aimlessly roaming around the Southern states are now headed towards the cities of the upper Atlantic coast. Photographs accompanying this article were taken along the southern bank of the Potomac, where a party had halted before crossing from Virginia over into Maryland. The leafless condition of the trees shows the earliness of the season, but the balmy air of the period has encouraged the travelers to come north earlier than their wont.

The old variety of gypsy is well represented among the new voyagers, but many American types are seen as well. The average auto tourist from the big cities, who usually sleeps at hotels selected in advance along his chosen route, has not much in common with the wandering element classified as "tin canners." Neither has the summer camper, who, in well equipped machine and with amply supplied trailer, makes a trip through the rural districts in the summer.

Those known as "canners" are frequently persons from large cities and who, having procured an auto by some means or other, have found that a living, in one way or another, can be made while wandering from place to place. In the present demand for transportation at every summer or winter colony the jitney bus is always sure of a certain amount of patronage. Many "canners" pick up a living around the Chautauquas and resorts of the North during the summer months and then drive South for the winter. That the livery business is popular among them is evidenced by the number of "for hire" signs that can be seen adhering to the cars en route.

Moreover, by very necessity, all the men who follow the roads in autos are skillful at repairing cars. Their work might not come up to the standards demanded in a city garage, but for impromptu remedies they are unsurpassed. The casual tourist, who finds himself broken down on the road, is always sure of help from one of these professionals of the trail when one happens along.

Many who come under the definition of "canners," however, are people of moderate means who have chosen a cheap method of touring. Some of them do not go to the expense of a trailer, but carry a small tent and some folding cots—or else just plain blankets—in the auto. In case of heavy rain, which maroons them in some spot after the roads become quagmires, they contentedly pitch camp and wait for the routes to dry up. Canned food is always carried for such emergencies.

As these people are extremely careful of their tires and travel at a slow rate to economize on rubber, their chief expense is gasoline and oil. Careful use of both enables them to travel as cheaply as they could live at home, and many have taken this method of touring as the most economical fashion of spending the summer. A collapsible camp stove, a few tin utensils and a bucket or two can be stowed away in their car and they can take their time about journeying.

For a person who has traveled only by rail, the extent of this migration by auto from one part of the country to the other can hardly be imagined. A recent trip to the Pacific coast was made from St. Louis by three young women who reside in the West End and who were unaccompanied except by a pet Airedale. They made the entire trip across the mountains and over a stretch of desert to Los Angeles without a single mishap or insult. But, at nearly all times, they were in sight of other cars. There was a steady stream of autos pouring westward at the time, and, had a breakdown occurred, they would only have had to wait by the side of the road for some aid to come up.

Many communities have established regular camping places for such travelers. There is one in Forest Park that is well equipped with water faucets and other conveniences. Some cities have made elaborate preparations for the reception of these transients, hoping to encourage this form of touring among the better element. And the fashion in which summer traveling by car is being adopted by all classes bids fair to soon make the country roads as easy and safe to travel as the thoroughfares of a city.

Gainesville, seat of the State University in Florida, is one of the cities that has a regular "home-coming" festival for former residents and casual visitors. So popular has the auto become as a means of travel to the Southland, that many patrons of the coast and gulf resorts take this method of reaching their favorite beaches each winter.

The smaller towns have also realized the value of the auto tourist both as a patron and as a prospective advertiser. Only recently a description of a tour was published in the Post-Dispatch in which the mottoes adopted by the smaller cities visited were recounted. These mottoes were chosen to boost the various towns.

Naturally, traveling autoists are among the warmest supporters of a good-roads movement. Bowling Green, Ky., was recently completely "motorized" when its traction line went out of existence through lack of patronage because of the number of autos. And the fact that such general traffic as this implies is possible throughout that section speaks well for the road systems recently developed. Kentucky had an excellent foundation for a road system, however, in its network of turnpikes that were provided early in the State's history.

MY FRIEND, THE GORILLA

The only specimen in captivity starts dancing when "interviewer" whistles lively tune, but a selection on harmonica makes him pat himself reflectively—Singing of jungle-town chorus sends him to bed, and he stays there :: :: ::

By CHARLES WELTON.

IN UNDERTAKING an informal yet popular scientific study of the reactions of a young and professionally untrained gorilla, it makes little difference how you begin. There are no guide books on the subject and no rules. You simply foregather with your gorilla and proceed.

Having in my adolescence and after much patient practice acquired the difficult and much-sought-for technique of cupping a harmonica with my hands and opening and closing them rhythmically while playing popular selections, I felt that a few stanzas of the "Mocking Bird," at which I am fair to middling, would go well as a starter.

The gorilla about which I write is the only specimen alive and available for a close up. He is easily the unique feature of the aggregation of unusual exhibits in the department of strange people of one of the big circuses. His nom de cirque is John Daniel. He is 4 years and 3 months old, 4 feet 2 inches tall and by all standards has real anthropological class. His ears are small and finely shaped and set close to the head. His eyes are black and shine with a good substitute for intelligence. His nose is disappointing, for it occupies a too considerable area of his face or map and his supraorbital ridge forms an osseous cliff full grown with shaggy brows. Within the skull cap there seems to be abundant room for a pancake-shaped cerebrum and perhaps a half-measure of cerebellum. He has a mouth full of incisors, bicuspids and several other varieties of teeth of assorted sizes and lengths.

It was early in the morning when I called, and we were the only strange people present. The gorilla was still curled up on his brass bed in the smaller of his two-room apartment, covered with three blankets.

"Sonny," I said, wishing at the outset to cut out all formality, "this here instrument is called a harmonica, or mouth organ. It isn't such a much to look at, but, oh boy! when you hear it mebbe it'll remind you of some of the sounds with which you were familiar when you were at home in the far-away deep forests of the Cameroon. Listen, kid."

At these words, addressed in a tone of familiarity, the gorilla stretched his long arms, yawned, kicked off the covers, sat up, and, hooking one leg over the other knee, looked through the bars and extended his lips and wrinkled his eyes. This, I am informed, constitutes the simian smile. I have seen other folks do it worse.

Anyone who is familiar with the mouth organ knows that there is a wide range of novelty effects which may be introduced by a finished artist. It is possible to fricassee a mocking bird musically. This I did, watching the gorilla the while, and the gorilla watching me also the while.

It would be extravagant to say that he seemed entranced, but quite within the truth to say that he was deeply affected. He slipped out of bed, walked into the adjoining room and sat down, resting the side of his face against the bars, probably the better to get an earful. Not once did he move while I performed. When, with a chirping flourish on the treble keys, I brought the selection to a close, the audience arose, trotted twice around the cage, using all fours on the first lap and the nether limbs on the last, and, returning to his listening post, folded his arms and gently patted the larger muscles thereon.

The best circus authorities on the habits and customs of simians say that when a gorilla strokes or pats the muscles of his upper arms, it may mean either of two things. It may be a manifestation of delight, or a sign language challenge to engage in a rough house with someone in the immediate vicinity. I cannot bring myself to believe that, after so soulful a selection a youngish gorilla would have it in for me, or, to put it another way, want to have it out with me.

Of course, it is manifestly ridiculous to suppose that a gorilla would be interested in a verbal exposition of the income tax law or such things as peak loads, railroad rates, immigration or hootch. I spoke to him earnestly on these several topics, like one citizen to another, but I did not appear to have his rapt attention, probably because he didn't care a rap. He stood erect, rested one elbow against the bars and looked at me intently for a moment and then turned away, passing his very long hand across the back slant of his dome as if aweary. Winding up a one-minute monologue on home brew, without a pause I burst forth into a whistle, the tune being "Margie," giving to it the popular Brooklyn jazz variations. The gorilla immediately reacted to this. He swayed his body from hips to shoulders, swung his arms and began stepping up and down, keeping fairly to the tempo. He seemed to enjoy it. One could imagine him in the Congo bush, hitting the high spots in the social world of the simiad.

After treading a measure he sat down in the corner of the cage and rapped his knuckles on the bars distinctly three times. Hillard, his attendant, repsonding, recognized the signal and drew a cup of water, which the gorilla drank, smacking his lips as he passed the cup back, and rubbing the back of his hand across his moist mouth, a habit not unfamiliar in New York, a year or so back.

Just at this juncture the big cats in the menagerie section in the basement burst into a chorus of roars. The gorilla half closed his eyes, scampered to a far corner and buried his head in his hands. The noise itself was disturbing enough, but from the actions of the gorilla it would appear that it was suggestive of real danger, such as he may have learned to recognize in the bush.

This appeared an appropriate time to try him with a vocal selection, and as a fitting number I did a jungle-town chorus in the nasal twang of certain vaudeville singers. He didn't like it and registered his disapproval by retiring immediately to bed and refusing to get up, even when I told him that I didn't mean anything personal.

Notice John Daniel's ears—the most "human" thing about this rare gorilla.

I was too late to take breakfast with the gorilla, but had I been on time I would have seen him seated in the mess hall packing away selections from the ample menu with apparent relish, but with only that small regard for form noticeable among youngsters generally. With no vest into which to tuck a napkin, and it being physically impossible to tuck it under chin and still operate the jaw, the gorilla, when so directed, knots the damask around his wrist. At the conclusion of the meal, he takes a pile of dishes to the kitchen, balancing a formidable tower of cups and saucers on a base of plates and moving swiftly to the appointed place. His record for breakage is almost clean.

John Daniel has arms almost as long as his body. He is seen here perched on the railing of his bed.

On two occasions the opportunity has offered to try the gorilla out at mud-pie making. He went to it each time, plastering moist mud in mounds and making chimneys in them by downward thrusts of his thumb.

If circus life, which is varied but never dull, the eats, the lack of companionship with his kind, with its consequent loneliness, and the fact that it is impossible to range at will over sections of undeveloped Africa, do not get on his nerves and disturb his constitution and by-laws, and should this spirited young gorilla live to arrive at maturity, he may be expected to stand two yards tall, in his permanently bare feet, and bulk more than a heavyweight. His bicuspids will continue to grow amazingly, fortunately with an outward slant, which will permit him to close his mouth without biting his own head off. His periods of playfulness will grow fewer and he will finally develop a hundred per cent grouch, this being the customary humor of all adult gorillas, whether at home or abroad. They always act as though they had been forbidden to smoke in the dining room or had lost the collar button under the chiffonier.

John T. Benson, apple grower and farmer of Nashua, N. H., and on the side an animal agent, who brought the gorilla to America, and to whom the simian confides anything that he feels to be worth confiding, appeared at the cage just as I was about to depart. The gorilla began to whimper and stretched forth his hand. Benson passed a handkerchief through the bars and the gorilla wept softly into it.

"Have you been singing?" asked Benson.

"Yes," I confessed. "I sang a verse of 'Down in Jungle Town,' thinking to cheer the kid up."

"Well, you made a good job of it. Look at him."

The gorilla was sobbing to beat the band, which at that moment had begun its morning practice in the adjacent arena.

Whitby Abbey to Be Preserved

PLANS are under way by the British Government for preserving the ruins of the famous Whitby Abbey. The work to be done is so extensive and of such a character that it will take five or six years, expert workmen being required. The existing ruins comprise: Parts of the choir, early English architecture; the north transept, early English of a later date, and the richly decorated nave. Located on a commanding heights over the seaport, favorite watering place and market town of Whitby, in the North Riding of Yorkshire, the ruins gain a great dignity from their position.

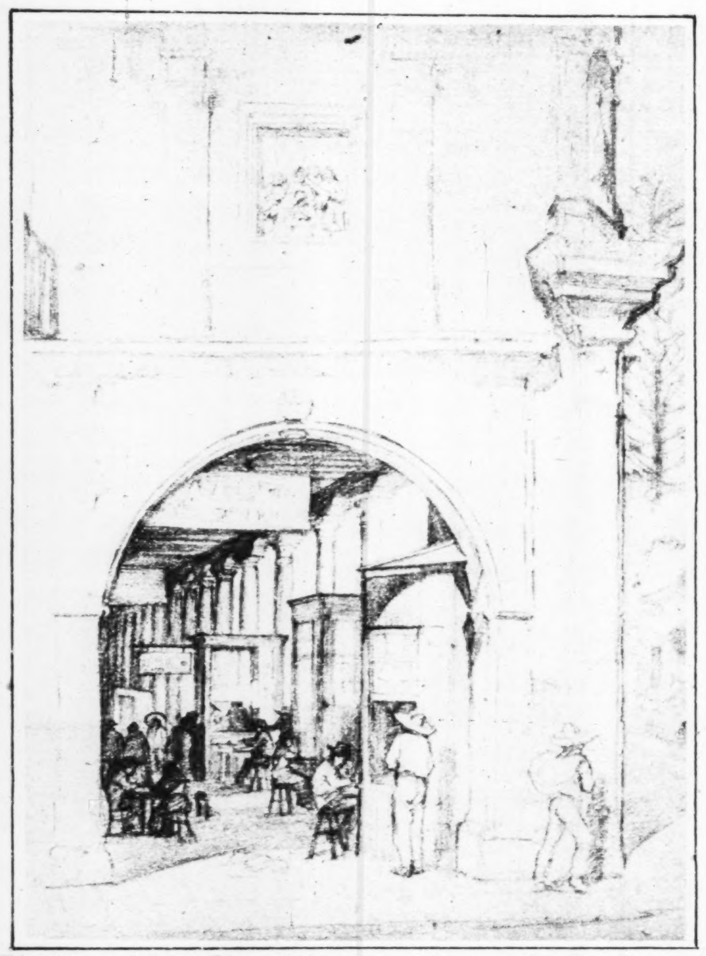
This abbey was a foundation of Oswy, King of Northumbria, in 658, in fulfillment of a vow for a victory over Penda, King of Mercia, according to one account. The noble ruins also are said to be those of a Benedictine abbey founded by Saint Hilda about 657. The two accounts agree that it embraced an establishment for monks and, at first, for nuns of the Benedictine order. The latter, under Hilda, a grandniece of Edwin, a former King of Northumbria, acquired high celebrity. A modern cross in the churchyard at Whitby commemorates St. Caedmon, the Northumbrian poet (about 670), who was a monk at the abbey and died there.

In 867 the abbey was burned by the Danes, who renamed the town Whitby (White-town), its ancient designation being Streoneshalh. In 1078 the abbey was rebuilt by William de Percy, as a monastery for men only. Hence, it is recorded, the nuns of Whitby described by Sir Walter Scott in "Marmion" are a pure fiction. The magnificent ruins now commanding the town, of course, belong to the second abbey. The west side of the nave fell in 1763 and the tower in 1830. On the south side are foundations of cloisters and domestic buildings. Adjoining the abbey is Whitby Hall, built by Sir Francis Cholmley about 1580.

VIGNETTES OF LIFE IN MEXICO

BY A ST. LOUIS ARTIST WHO HAS JUST RETURNED

French styles contrast with squalid poverty in a land of dazzling sunshine, bright colors and picturesque buildings—Interesting glimpses of the real Mexico, given after living there almost a year -:- -:-



The "portals" at City of Mexico, where professional letter writers serve their uneducated patrons. An original sketch.

AFTER living in Mexico for nearly a year with his family, C. K. Gleeson, St. Louis artist, has returned home with a collection of vivid canvases and some entertaining stories of daily life below the Rio Grande.

Imagine a country where many of the people wear sandals (some even made from old auto tires!) and where professional scribes do a thriving business writing letters for people who don't know how. A country where hordes of beggars file through the passenger trains standing at stations; and where wealth is so unequally distributed that, while in the lower class to own a pair of shoes confers social distinction, in the upper class French styles are preferred to all others.

The Gleeson family lived in the town of San Angel, in the Federal district and about seven miles from the City of Mexico. They employed native servants and the two children played with little Mexican neighbors and have come back to this country using a quaint mixture of Spanish and English words.

Gleeson said they all enjoyed their stay in Mexico, but that he came away with one wish ungratified—he wanted to kill an army bugler, not a particular individual, but just any of the men who make the early morning hours hideous in Mexican towns, with their ear-piercing military calls.

"It was the most irritating thing we encountered in Mexico," he said. "Many of the residences have become empty, as a result of the revolutions, and a good many of them are now used by the Government as cuartels, or barracks. Thus the soldiers are scattered all over a town.

"In a small house there may only be room for a dozen soldiers, but that doesn't make any difference about the bugling. Instead of going around and waking up the men individually, each barracks has its bugler, who marches out into the street in front of the cuartel at 5 a. m. to blow his first call, and who sounds various other calls, upon an average of one every hour, until 9 a. m.

"The clear, vibrating bugle notes are the cleanest feature of the army, but after I had been jerked out of a sound sleep every morning at 5 o'clock for several weeks, I wanted to kill a bugler. They insisted upon waking up the whole town, along with the detachments of soldiers."

Gleeson said that one of the puzzling things about the officer class was the diversity of their uniforms.

"They all seemed to have different uniforms," he remarked. "It looked as though they had been permitted to take a book showing all the styles of uniforms in the world, and to select the kind they liked best. Those who can afford to do so wear lots of gold braid. Otherwise, they are partial to the styles of uniforms worn by French officers.

"And this is true of the clothes worn by the wealthy class generally. They prefer French fashions. Indeed, many of them have told me that they like French people the best of all foreigners. The Germans are well liked, too, largely because so many of them marry Mexican women. A rather strange fact is that the upper class do not like the Spaniards, although usually descended from Spanish ancestors.

"The peon class, who comprise about 85 per cent of the population, have no particular preferences among the foreigners, as far as we could see. They are pleasant and obliging to everybody. If there is any unfriendly sentiment toward Americans it must be among the upper classes."

The cost of living is higher in Mexico than it is in this country for the same degree of comfort, said Gleeson.

"Rents are fully as high as they are here," he said. "And most of the articles of clothing, for example, which Americans and other foreigners want are imported. The merchants explain their high prices for imported articles by saying that they have to figure on losing a great deal of their merchandise by thefts en route. The loss by theft is passed on to the consumer, just as though it were part of the original cost to the merchant.

"An inconvenient feature of daily life was the fact that the people don't like paper money. Small change was very scarce, and the peons wouldn't accept paper money, so we had to buy coins for small change, and pay a 15 per cent premium for it. Street car tickets and postage stamps were in common use for small change."

Visitors walking through the residence districts of a Mexican town are apt to see some unusual domestic arrangements, according to Gleeson, and not always in hovels, either, but even in houses where the furnishings, as glimpsed through a door or window, indicate that the family are in comfortable circumstances.

"One evening we passed a large house, and, glancing through the open window, which was right next the sidewalk, saw a large framed picture hanging on the wall, and, perched in a row on top of the frame, half a dozen sleeping chickens. This was in a well-furnished house, remember.

"Another time we saw a handsomely upholstered armchair, with chickens in a row upon the arms. In a great many houses the donkeys and the goats share the living quarters with the family. On the whole, it is a most insanitary country."

For an intimate view of the people, said Gleeson, there is nothing quite equal to the street cars and railroad trains.

"There are first-class and second-class cars, even on the street railways," said Gleeson. "The peons ride in the second-class cars, and pay half fare. But they aren't all the passengers, as a rule. The second-class cars have a little compartment in the rear for freight, and one can hardly think of anything, alive or dead, which is not some time to be seen in that freight compartment.

"To see a pig, goat or donkey riding there is common enough, and nobody seems to object to it or to the other strange articles of freight which are carried on the street cars. Foreigners patronize only the first-class cars.

"On a trip from the City of Mexico to Vera Cruz we had a close-up view of Mexican poverty. When the train stopped at a station a horde of mendicants would file through the cars. There were peddlers, and every conceivable kind of beggar, the halt leading the blind and the ragged flaunting their tatters. These beggars are permitted to walk through the first-class and second-class coaches, but not the Pullmans.

"And when you get off the train there is a perfect mob of cargadores, or porters, waiting for the passengers. They are so insistent they used to remind me of a lot of vultures. They swarm around, waving their arms and calling out, until it is almost like a riot.

"As a rule, you don't need their services, but you hire one or two of them to get rid of the rest. I never saw anything to equal it, in any country of Europe. Then they expect at least half a peso (25 cents) for carrying your bag to a street car, and a peso for going any distance at all."

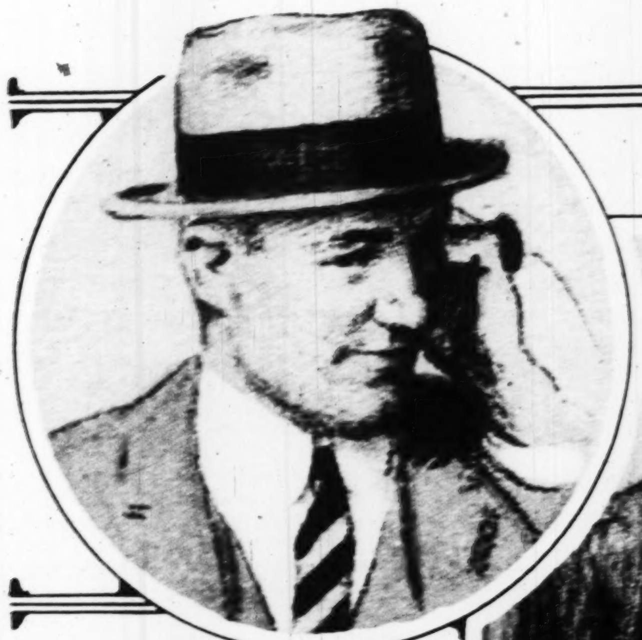
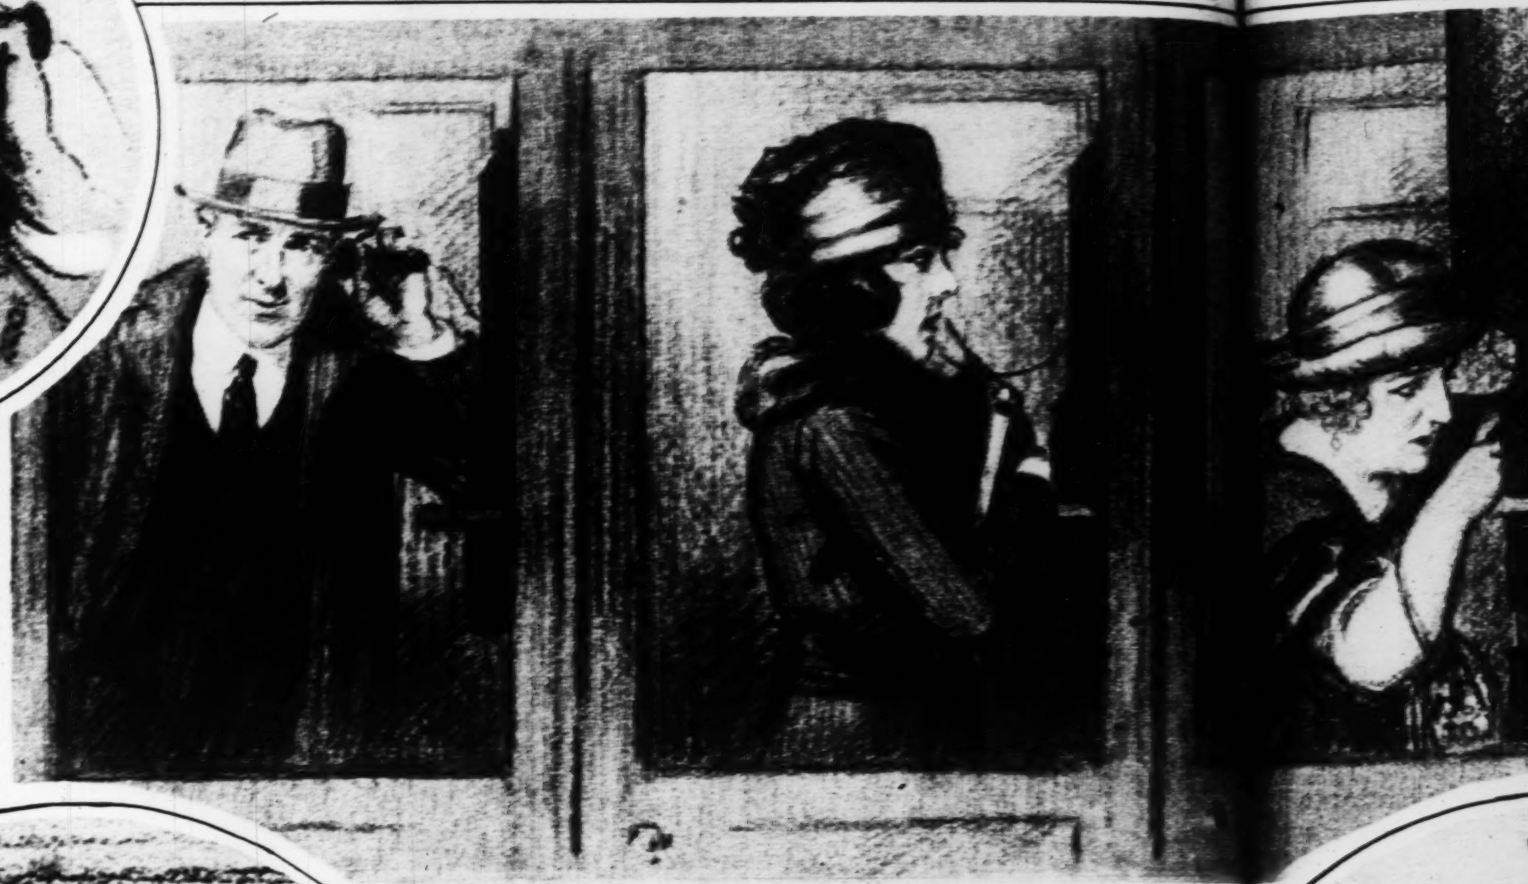
The Drug Store Telephone

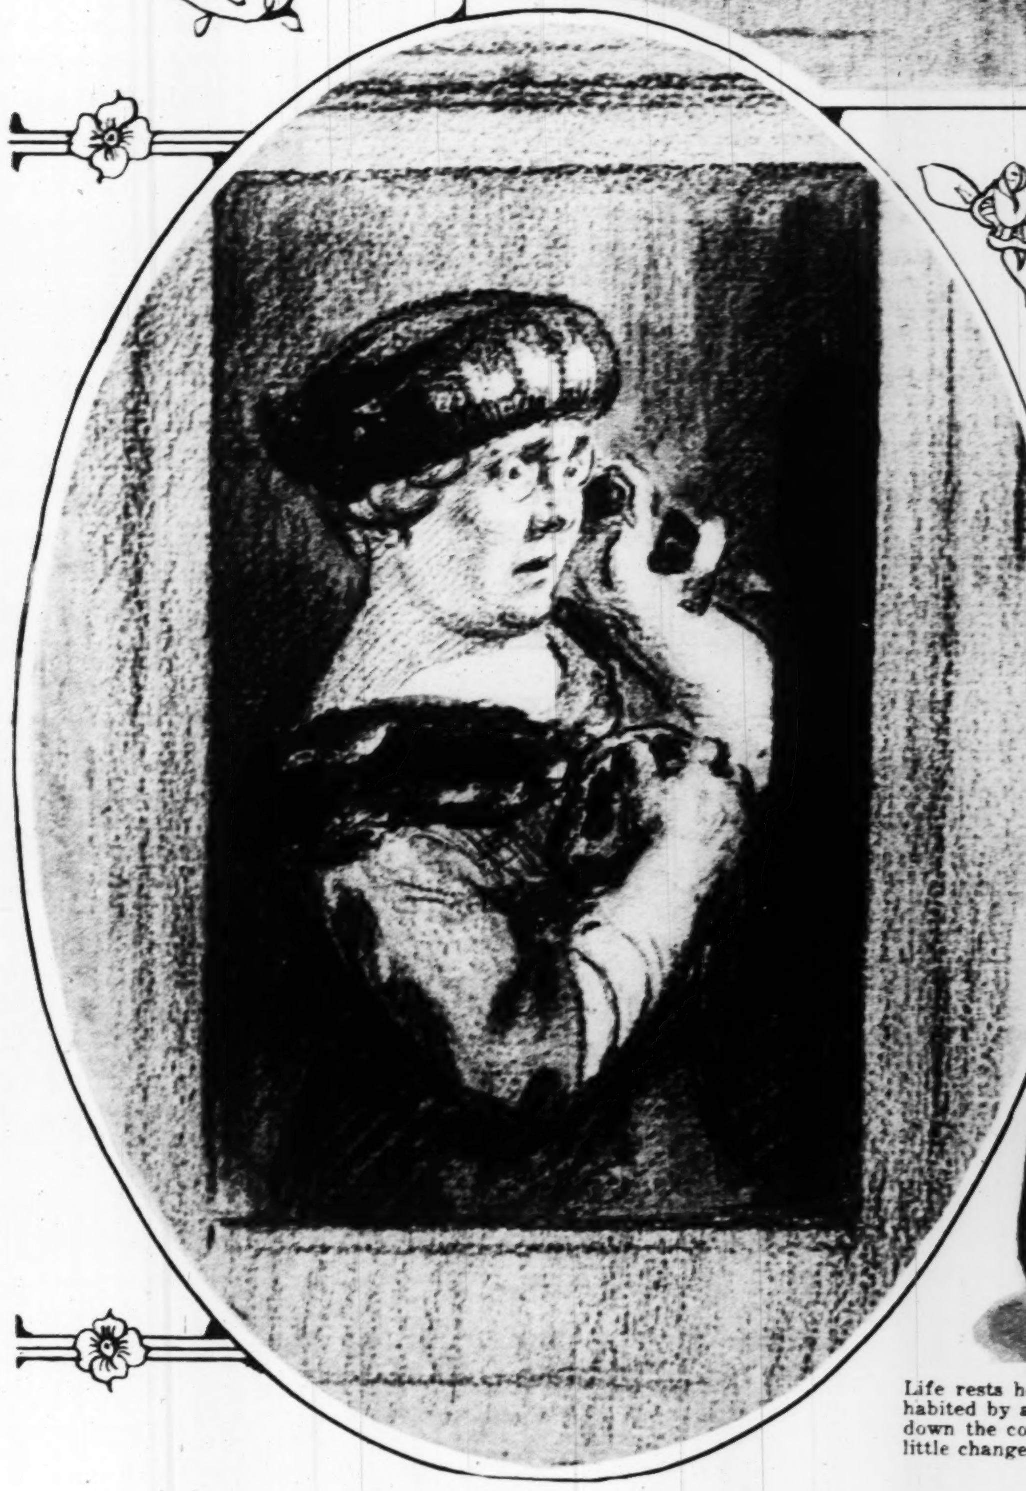
Character Sketches by W. E. HILL.



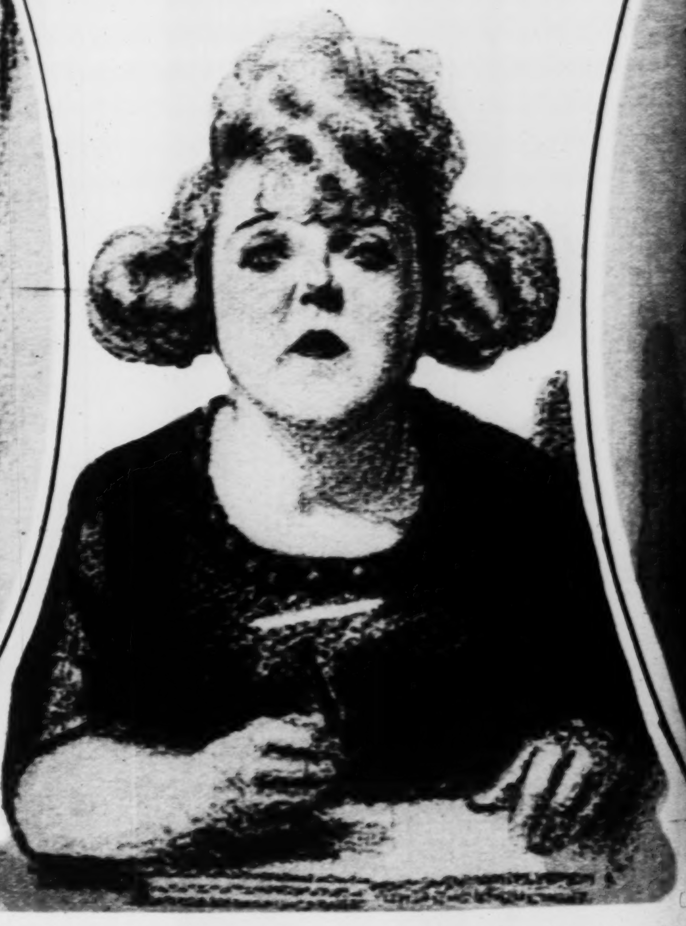
Harold is deep in one of those long telephone discourses with the only girl. One of those comic ones. All about how he couldn't get round Tuesday night because he had a date to hang around with a lamppost.



Three telephones in action. In booth No. 1 Mr. Fulsome in dulcet tones is begging honey to take good care of herself—and to promise not to get in a draught or anything. Any confirmed telephone eavesdropper will understand right away that Mr. Fulsome is paving the way to tell the little wife that he won't be home to dinner to-night. In booth No. 2 young Mrs. Fred Wickey is telling Fred all about the apartment hunting—about how there were only two little teeny-weeny dark bedrooms—and how the rent they asked was perfectly terrible! In booth No. 3 there is an irate female of the species who can't get her nickel back and has taken matters into her own hands.



"Now, listen, Olga, please listen—this is Mrs. Roach talking! Now listen! If Mr. Roach phones before I come in tell him"—Olga, the Swedish jewel on the other end of the wire, is saying: "Yah, Mrs. Roach gone out for day—I give her message. Yah!" Business of Mrs. Roach working receiver up and down. "Oh, operator, has she shut off again? Please get her back!" etc., etc.



Life rests heavily on the shoulders of Miss Kurt, who cashiers in a drug store inhabited by a half dozen thriving telephone booths. No sooner does she get midway down the column of figures than some one thrusts a $5 bill through the cage for a little change, "just so I can get a nickel to phone with!"

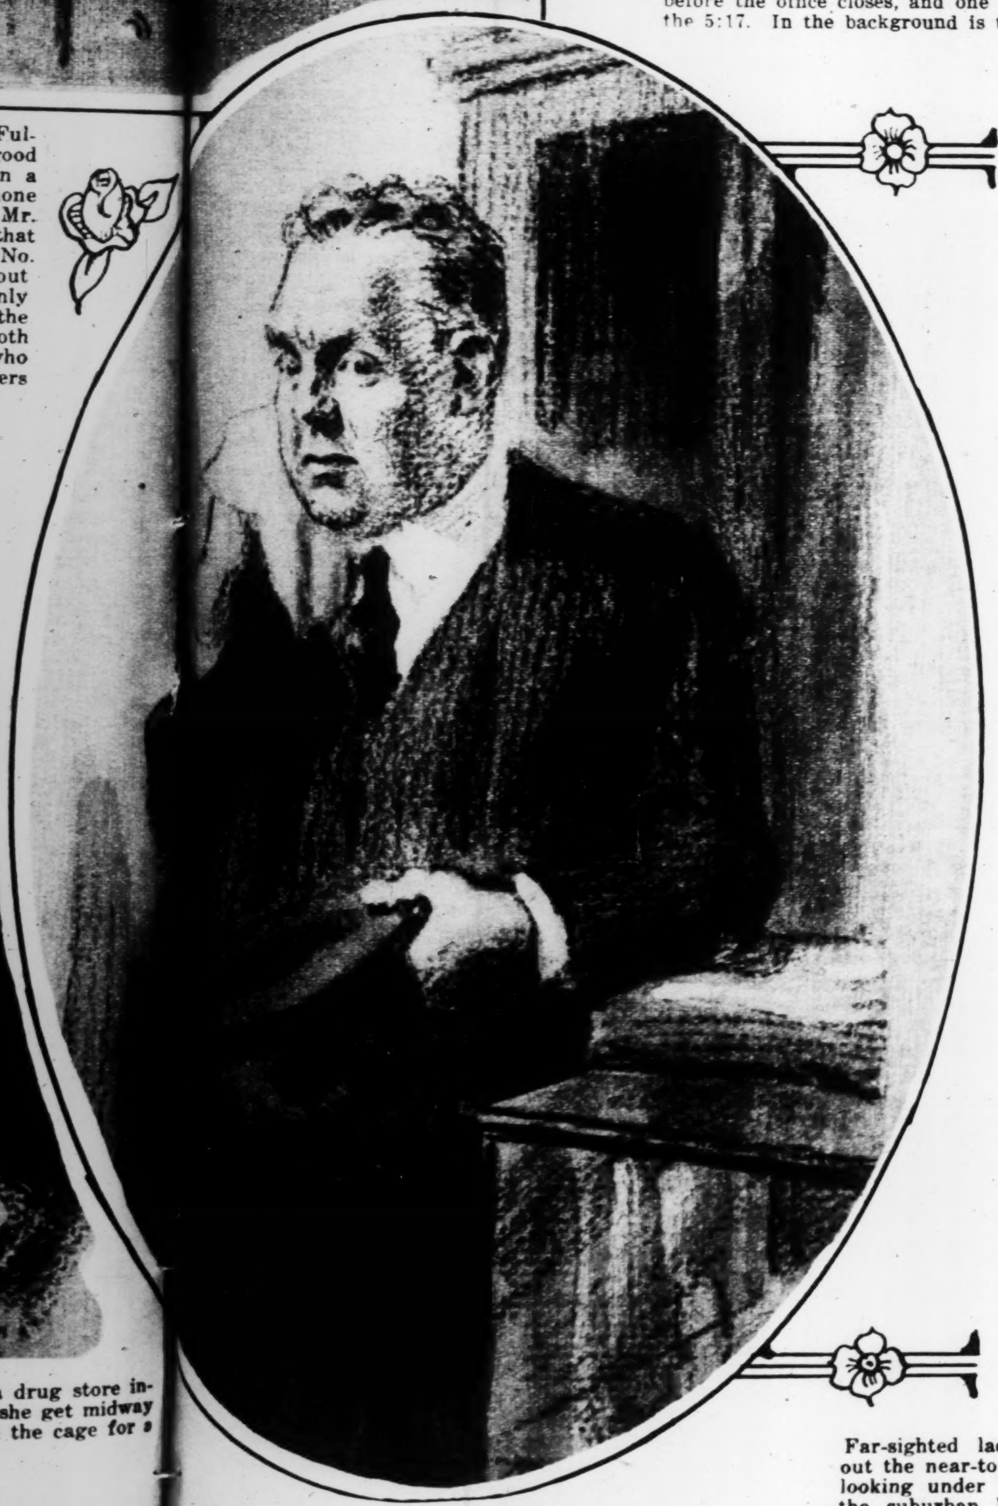
In the background is the lady who waits for her busy wire to be released in the only booth not temporarily "out of order."



Mr. Wiley from out of town has spent fifteen minutes in a very warm booth trying to get some one to go to the theater with him. Mr. W. figures he has lost several pounds in the attempt.

WEBSTER—MAN'S MAN .·.

"Yassah, yassah!" the porter sputtered, and obeyed instantly. Mr. Webster handed him a disreputable looking suitcase and stepped aboard in state, only to be informed by the sleeping car conductor that there wasn't a vacant first-class berth on the train.

"Yes, I know I'm dirty," the late arrival announced cheerfully, "but still, as Bobby Burns once remarked, 'a man's a man for a' that'—and I'm not insanitary. I sloshed around some in Furnace Creek the night before last, and while, of course, I got the top layer off, still, a fellow can't accomplish a great deal without hot water, soap, a good scrubbing brush and a can of lye."

"I'm very sorry," the conductor replied perfunctorily, and endeavored to pass on, but Webster secured a firm grip on his lapel and frustrated the escape.

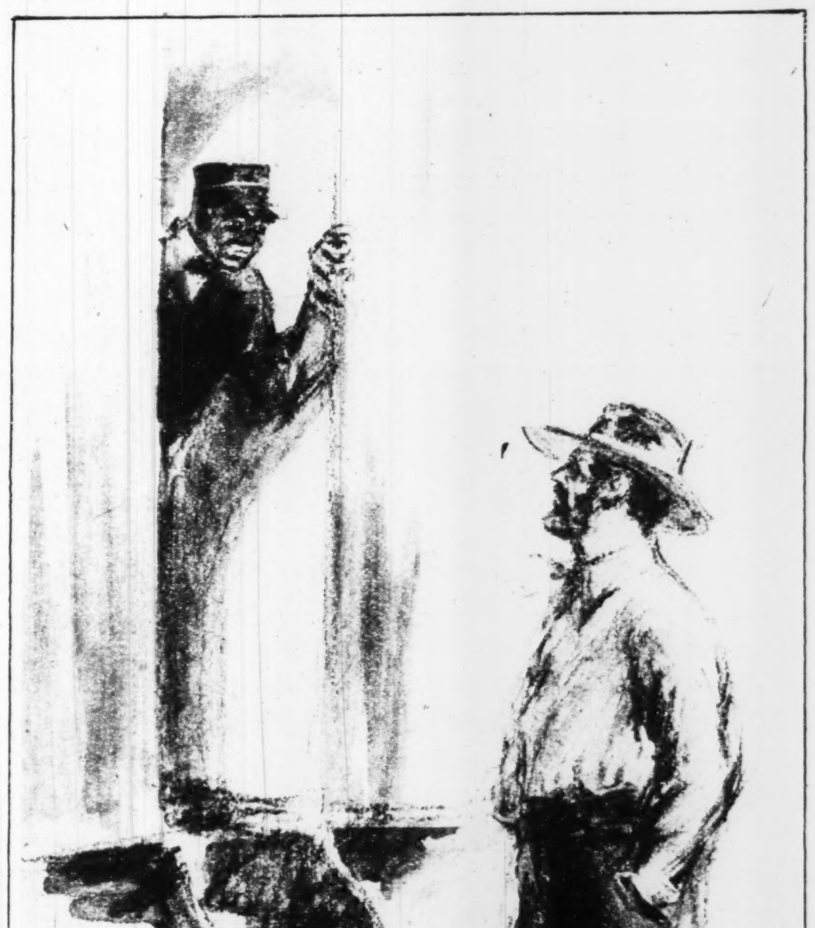
"You're not sorry," the ragged wanderer declared, "not one little bit. You're only apprehensive. However, you needn't be. There is no wild life on me, brother, I assure you. If you can prove it, I'll give you a thousand dollar bill for each and every bit of testimony you can adduce."

"But I tell you the train is full up. You'll have to roost in the day coach or the tourist. I'm very sorry"——

"So am I, for I know what day coaches and tourist cars smell like in the middle of August, because, as the poet says, 'I've been there many a time and oft.' Nevertheless, despite your deep grief, something tells me you're spoofing, so while I must, of necessity, accept your suggestion, said acceptance will be but temporary. In about two hours, young fellow, you're going to make the alarming discovery that you have bats in your belfry." And with a whiskery grin which, under the circumstances, was charming in its absolute freedom from malice, Mr. Webster departed for the day coach.

Two hours later the conductor found him in the aforementioned day coach, engaged in a mild game of poker with a mule skinner, a Chinaman, an aged prospector and a half-breed Indian, and waited until Mr. Webster, on a bob-tailed club flush, bluffed the Chinaman out of a dollar-and-a-half pot.

"Maud, Lily and Kate," Webster murmured, as the Celestial laid down three queens and watched his ragged opponent rake in the pot. "Had I held those three queens and had you made a two-card draw, as I did, only death could have stopped me from seeing what you held! Hello! Here's Little Boy Blue again. All right, son. Blow your horn."



"Day coach an' tourist up in front," the knight of the whiskbroom announced in disapproving tones.

"Are you Mr. John S. Webster?"

"Your assumption that I am that person is so eminently correct that it would be a waste of time for me to dispute it," Webster replied quizzically. "However, just to prove that you're not the only clairvoyant on this train, I'm going to tell you something about yourself. In your pocket you have a telegram; it is from Chicago, where your pay check originates; it is short, sweet and comprehensive, containing an order which you are going to obey. It reads somewhat as follows:

"'My friend, John S. Webster, wires me from Blank that he boarded train at Blank and was refused first-class accommodations because he looked like a hobo. Give him the best you have in stock, if you have to throw somebody off the train to accommodate him. Unless you see your way clear to heed this suggestion your resignation is not only in order, but has already been accepted.' Signed, 'Sweeney.'

"Do I hit the target?"

The conductor nodded. "You win, Mr. Webster," he admitted.

"Occasionally I lose, old-timer. Well?"

"Who the devil is Sweeney?"

John Stuart Webster turned to his cosmopolitan comrades of the national game. "Listen to him," he entreated them. "He has worked for the company, lo, these many years, and he doesn't know who Sweeney is!" He eyed the conductor severely. "Sweeney," he declared, "is the man who is responsible for the whichness of the why-for. Ignorance of the man higher up excuses no sleeping-car conductor, and if your job is gone when you reach Salt Lake, old-timer, don't blame it on me, but rather on your distressing propensity to ask foolish questions. Vamos, amigo, and leave me to my despair. Can't you see I'm happy here?"

"No offense, Mr. Webster, no offense. I can let you have a stateroom"——

"That's trading talk. I'll take it."

The conductor gave him his receipt and led him back to the stateroom in the observation car. At the door Webster handed him a $5 bill. "For you, son," he said, gently, "just to take the sting out of what I'm about to tell you. Now that I possess your receipt and know that 10 men and a boy cannot take it away from me, I'm going to tell you who Sweeney is."

"Who is he?" the conductor queried. Already he suspected he had been outgeneraled.

"Sweeney," said Mr. Webster, "is the chief clerk in one of Chicago's most pretentious hotels and a young man who can find all the angles of a situation without working it out in logarithms. I wired him the details of my predicament; he heard the Macedonian cry and kicked in. Neat, is it not?"

The conductor grinned. "I hate to take your money," he declared.

"Don't. Just at present I'm very flush. Yes, sir, I'm as prosperous as a yearling burro up to his ears in alfalfa, and the only use I have ever found for money is to make other people happy with it, thereby getting some enjoyment out of it myself. Just as soon as I get a little chunk together some smarter man than I takes it away from me again—so the cleaning process might just as well start here. When I'm broke I'll make some more."

"How?"

"By remembering that all a man needs in this world, in order to excel, is about 2 per cent more courage than a jackrabbit; also that an ounce of promotion in a world of boobs is worth a ton of perspiration. Thank you for falling for my bluff."

And having so remarked, Mr. Webster retired to his hard-won sanctuary, where he removed as much alkali and perspiration as he could, carded his long hair and whiskers, manicured his finger nails with a jack knife, changed his shirt, provided five minutes of industry for George with his whiskbroom and brush, and set himself patiently to await the first call to dinner.

The better to hear the dinner call Webster left his stateroom door open, and presently a pink-jowled, well-curried, flashily dressed big man, of about Webster's age, passed in the corridor, going toward the head of the train. An instant later a woman's voice said, very distinctly:

"I do not know you, sir; I do not wish to know you, and it is loathsome of you to persist in addressing me. If you do not stop your annoying attentions, I shall call the conductor."

"Ah! Beauty in distress," John Stuart Webster soliloquized. "I look so much like an Angora goat I might as well butt in." He stepped to the door of his stateroom. A girl stood in the vestibule, confronting the man who had just passed Webster's door. Webster bowed.

"Madame, or madamoiselle, as the case may be," he said, "unlike this other male biped, my sole purpose in presuming to address you is to suggest that there is not the slightest necessity for taking this matter up with the conductor. I am here and very much at your service."

The girl turned—and John Stuart Webster's heart flopped twice in rapid succession, like a trout newly grassed. She was as lovely as a royal flush. Her starry glance began at his miner's boots, traveled up his old, soiled, whipcord trousers, over his light blue chambray shirt and found the man behind the whiskers. She favored him with a quick, curious scrutiny and a grave, sweet smile. "Thank you so much, sir," she answered, and passed down the corridor to the observation car.

"Well, old-timer," Webster greeted the fellow who had been annoying her, "how about you? What do you think we ought to do about this little affair?"

"The sensible thing would be to do—nothing."

"Nothing?"

"Nothing."

"Why?"

"You might start something you couldn't finish."

"That's a dare," Webster declared brightly, "and wasn't it the immortal Huckleberry Finn who remarked that anybody that'd take a dare would suck eggs and steal sheep?" He caressed his beard meditatively. "They say the good Lord made man to His own image and likeness. I take it those were only the specifications for the building complete—the painting and interior decorating, not to mention the furnishings, being let to a sub-contractor." He was silent for a few seconds, appraising his man. "I suppose you commenced operations by moving into her section and asking if she would like to have the window open and enjoy the fresh air. Of course, if she had wanted the window open, she would have called the porter. She rebuffed you, but being a persistent devil, you followed her into the observation car, and in all probability you ogled her at luncheon and ruined her appetite. And just now, when you met her her in this vestibule, you doubtless jostled her, begged her pardon and without waiting to be introduced, asked her to have dinner with you this evening."

"Well?" the fellow echoed belligerently.

"It's all bad form. You shouldn't try to make a mash on a lady. I don't know who she is, of course, but she's not common; she's traveling without a chaperon, I take it, and for the sake of the mother that bore me I always respect and protect a good woman and whale hell out of those who do not."

He reached inside his stateroom and pressed the bell. The porter arrived on the run.

"George," said Mr. Webster, "in a few minutes we're due at Smithville. If my memory serves me aright, we stop five minutes for water and orders."

"Yassah."

"Remain right here and let me off as soon as the train comes to a stop."

When the train slid to a grinding halt and the porter opened the car door, Webster pointed. "Out!" he said. "This is no nice place to pull off a scrap."

"See here, neighbor, I don't want to have any trouble with you"——

"I know it. All the same, you're going to have it—or come with me to that young lady and beg her pardon."

There are some things in this world which the most craven of men will not do—and the vanity of that masher forbade acceptance of Webster's alternative. He preferred to fight, but—he did not purpose being thrashed. He resolved on strategy.

"All right. I'll apologize," he declared, and started forward as if to pass Webster in the vestibule, on his way to the observation car, whither the subject of his annoying attentions had gone. Two steps brought him within striking distance of his enemy, and before Webster could dodge, a sizzling right-handed blow landed on his jaw and set him back on his haunches in the vestibule.

It was almost a knockout—almost, but not quite. As Webster's body struck the floor the big automatic came out of the holster; swinging in a weak circle, it covered the other.

"That was a daisy," Webster mumbled. "If you move before my head clears, I'll put four bullets into you before you reach the corridor."

He waited about a minute; then with the gun he pointed to the car door, and the masher stepped out. Webster handed the porter his gun and followed; two minutes later he returned, dragging his assailant by the collar. Up the steps he jerked the big, battered hulk and tossed it in the corner of the vestibule, just as the girl came through the car, making for the diner up ahead.

Again she favored him with that calm, grave, yet vitally interested gaze, nodded appreciatively, made as if to pass on, changed her mind, and said, very gravely: "You are—a very courtly gentleman, sir."

He bowed. There was nothing else to do, nothing that he could say, under the circumstances; to use his chivalry as a wedge to open an acquaintance never occurred to him—but his whiskers did occur to him. Hastily he backed into his stateroom and closed the door; presently he rose and surveyed himself critically in the small mirror over the washstand.

"No, Johnny," he murmured, "we can't go into the diner now. We're too blamed disreputable. We were bad enough before that big swine hung the shanty on our right eye, but whatever our physical and personal feelings, far be it from us to parade our iridescent orb in public. Besides, one look at that queen is enough to do us for the remainder of our natural life, and a second look, minus a proper introduction, would only drive us into a suicide's grave. That's a fair sample of our luck, Johnny. It rains duck soup—and we're there like a Chinaman—with chopsticks; and on the only day in the history of the human race, here I am with a black eye, a dislocated thumb, four skinned knuckles and a grouch, while otherwise looking like a cross between Rip Van Winkle and a hired man." He sighed, rang for the porter and told him to send a waiter for his order, since he would fain break his fast in the privacy of his stateroom. And when the waiter came for the order, such was Mr. Webster's mental perturbation that ham and eggs were furthest from his thought. He ordered a steak, with French fried potatoes.

CHAPTER II.

JOHN STUART WEBSTER passed a restless night. Sleep came to him in hourly installments, from which he would rouse to ask himself whether it was worth while to continue to go through the motions of living, or alight at the next station, seek a lonely and unfrequented spot and there surrender to outrageous fortune. He had lived every moment of his life; fair fortune and ill had been his portion so often that he had long since ceased to care which took precedence over the other; to quote Mr. Kipling, he had schooled himself to "treat these two impostors both the same"—not a very difficult task, if one be granted a breathing spell between the arrival of each impostor! Hitherto, in Webster's experience, there had always been a decent interval between the two—say a day, a week, a month or more; whereas in the present instance, two minutes had sufficed to make the journey from a heaven of contentment to the dungeons of despair.

It was altogether damnable. In a careless moment, Fate had accorded him a glimpse of the only woman he had ever met and desired to meet again—for Webster was essentially a man's man, and his profession and environment had militated against his opportunities for meeting extraordinary women, and extraordinary women were the only kind that could hope to challenge his serious attention. Had his luck changed there, he might have rested content with his lot—but it hadn't. Fate had gone farther. She had accorded him a signal opportunity for knightly combat, in the service of this extraordinary woman; and in the absence of a formal introduction, what man could desire a finer opportunity for getting acquainted! If only their meeting had but been delayed two weeks, 10 days, a week! Once free of his ugly cocoon of rags and whiskers, the butterfly Webster would not have hesitated one brief instant to inform himself of that young lady's name and address, following his summary disposal of her tormentor. Trusting to the mingled respect and confusion in his manner, and to her own womanly intuition to warn her that no rudeness or brazen familiarity was intended, he would have presented himself before her and addressed her in these words:

"A few minutes ago, Miss, you were gracious enough to accord me the rare pleasure of being of slight service to you. May I presume on that evidence of your generosity and perfect understanding to risk a seeming impertinence by presuming to address you?"

Webster pictured her as bowing, favoring him with that grave yet interested scrutiny and saying: "Certainly, sir." Whereupon he would say:

"It has occurred to me—for, like Bimi, the orang-outang, I have perhaps too much ego in my cosmos—that you might be charitably moved to admit me to the happy circle of those privileged to call you by name. Were there a mutual friend on this train whom I could prevail upon to introduce me formally, I should not be reduced to the necessity of being unconventional. Under the circumstances, however, I am daring enough to presume that this misfortune is not so great that I should permit it to interfere with my respectful desires. Therefore—have I your permission to present myself, with the hope that in so doing I may feel freer to be of additional service to you throughout the remainder of our journey?"

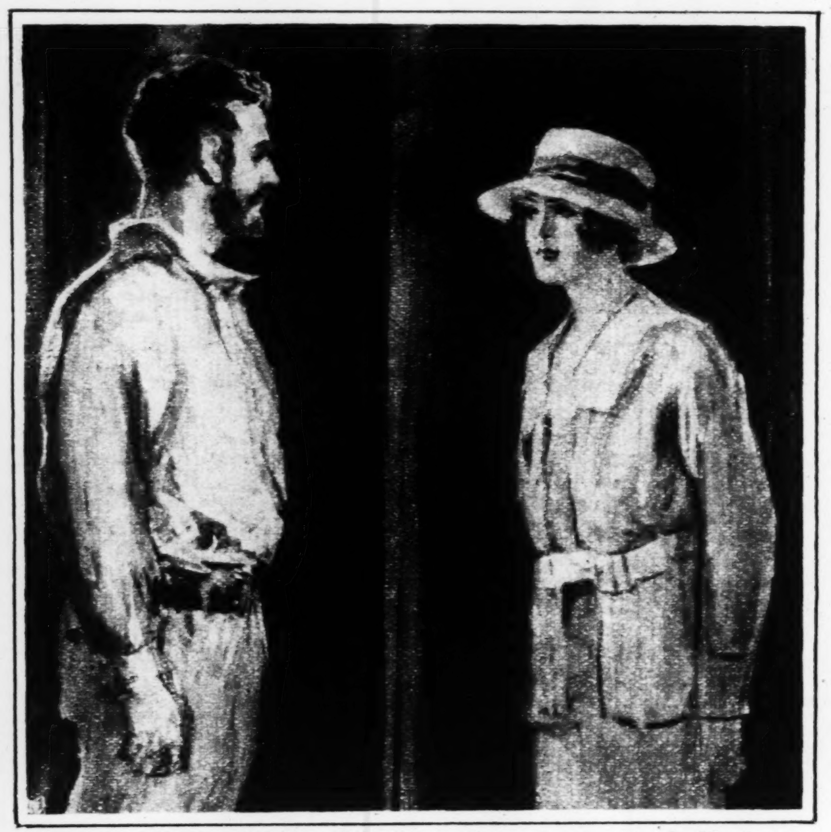
That would be a pretty, a graceful speech—a little ornate, doubtless, but diplomatic in the extreme. Having been accorded permission to introduce himself, he would cease thereafter to be flowery. However, Webster realized that however graceful might be his speech and bearing, should he essay the great adventure in the morning, his appearance would render him ridiculous and presumptuous and perhaps shock and humiliate her; for in all things there is a limit, and John Stuart Webster's right eye constituted a deadline beyond which, as a gentleman, he dared not venture; so with a heavy heart he bowed to the inevitable. Brilliant and mysterious as a meteorite, she flashed once across his horizon and was gone.

In the privacy of his stateroom Webster had ham and eggs for breakfast. He was lighting his second cigar when the porter knocked and entered with an envelope.

"Lady in the observation car asked me to deliver this to you, sah," he announced, importantly.

It was a note, freshly written on the train stationery. Webster read:

"The distressed lady desires to thank the gentleman in stateroom A for his chivalry of yesterday. She quite realizes that the gentleman's offer to relieve her of the annoyance to which she was being subjected was such a direct expression of his nature and code, that to have declined his aid would have been discourteous, despite her distress at the possible outcome. She is delighted to know that her confidence in the ability of her champion has been fully justified by a swift and sweeping victory, but profoundly sorry that in her service the gentleman in stateroom A was so unfortunate as to acquire a red eye with blue trimmings."



Again she favored him with that calm, grave, yet vitally interested gaze.

John Stuart Webster swore his mightiest oath: "By the twelve apostle, Simon Peter, Andrew, James, John, Philip, Bartholomew, Matthew, Thomas, James, Judge and Simon, not omitting Judas Iscariot, the scaly scoundrel who betrayed his Lord and Master!" He searched through an old wallet until he discovered a fairly clean professional card, across the bottom of which he wrote: "Thank you. J. S. W.," and sent it to the no-longer distressed lady.

"The most signal adventure of my life is now over," he soliloquized, and turned to his cigar. "For the sake of my self respect, I had to let her know I'm not a hobo! And now to the task of framing up a scheme for future acquaintance. I must learn her name and destination; so as a preliminary I'll interview the train conductor."

He did, and under the ameliorating influence of a $5 bill the conductor bent a respectful ear to the Websterian message.

"In Car 7," he began, "there is a young lady. I do not know what section she occupies; neither do I know her name and destination. I only know what she looks like."

The conductor nodded. "And you want to ascertain her name and destination?"

"I do."

"Easiest thing in life. There is only one young lady in Car 7. I suppose you mean that queen with the olive complexion, the green suit, and"——

"Hold! Enough."

"All right. I have the unused portion of her transportation to return to her before we hit Salt Lake; her name is on the ticket, and the ticket indicates her destination. I'll make a mental note of both as soon as I've identified her ticket."

"After you've made said mental note," Webster pleaded, "be sure you write it down, so you'll not forget."

A few hours later the conductor came to Webster's stateroom and handed him a card upon which was written:

"Dolores Ruey. From Los Angeles, via San Pedro, Los Angeles & Salt Lake, to Salt Lake City, Denver & Rio Grande to Denver, Burlington to St. Louis, Illinois Central to New Orleans. Stop-over at Denver."

John Stuart Webster studied the name after the conductor withdrew. That's a Spanish name," he soliloquized, "but for all that she's not a parakeet. There's something Gaelic about her features, particularly her eyes. They're brown, with golden flecks in them, and if she had a drop of dark blood in her, they'd be smoky and languid. Also, if she were a Latin she would have referred to my black eye—whereas she referred to a red eye with blue trimmings! Same thing but different! All things considered, I guess I'll take a chance and investigate."

CHAPTER III.

WEBSTER'S dreams of bliss had, with very slight variation, come true as per schedule. In Salt Lake City he abandoned the beefsteak on his damaged eye for two businesslike leeches, which quickly reduced the nocturne effect around his orb, enabling him, the third day, to saunter forth among his fellow men. By the end of the week he was being reincarnated, and so he packed a huge new wardrobe trunk with his latest purchases and journeyed on to Denver. Coincident with his arrivel there, we again take up the thread of our story.

One hour after his trunk arrived the gentleman from Death Valley might have been observed standing before a cheval glass looking long and earnestly at the reflection of his middle-aged person, the while he remarked the fit of his new raiment.

Let us describe these habiliments, alleging as an excuse for dwelling with emphasis upon the subject the fact that John Stuart Webster was all dressed up for the first time in three long, labor-ridden years, and was tremendously glad of it. Hark to this inventory. There were the silken hose and underwear next his well-scrubbed skin; then there was the white pleated linen shirt—a shirt so expensive and exquisite that Mr. Webster longed to go somewhere and shoot a game of billiards, in order that thus he might have an excuse to remove his coat and exhibit that shirt to the gaze of the multitude. His collar irked him slightly, but he had been assured by the clerk who sold it to him that it was strictly in vogue. His gray silk Ascot tie was held in a graceful puff by a scarfpin with a head of perfect crystal prettily shot with virgin gold; his black afternoon coat enveloped his wide shoulders and flanked his powerful neck with the perfection of the epidermis on a goose in the pink of condition; his gray striped trousers broke exactly right over his new "patent leather" shoes. The tout ensemble, as the gentleman himself might have expressed it had he possessed a working knowledge of French (which he did not), was perfect.

He "shot" his cuffs and strutted backward and forward, striving to observe his spinal column over his right shoulder, for he was in a transport of delight as truly juvenile as that on the never-to-be-forgotten day when he had attained to the dignity of his first pair of long trousers. He observed to himself that it was truly remarkable, the metamorphosis nine tailors and a talkative barber can make in an old sour-dough.

Presently, convinced that he was the glass of fashion and the mould of form, Mr. Webster took up a smart lancewood stick and a pair of new gray suede gloves and descended to the lobby of Denver's most exclusive hotel. He paused at the cigar stand long enough to fill his case with three-for-a-half perfectos and permit the young lady in charge to feast her world-weary eyes on his radiant person (which she did, classifying and tabulating him instantly as a millionaire mining man from Nevada). After this he lighted a cigar and stepped forth into Seventeenth street, along which he strolled until he came to a certain building, into the elevator of which he entered and was whisked to the twelfth floor, where he alighted and found himself before a wide portal which bore in gold letters the words:

ENGINEERS' CLUB.

The Engineers' Club was the closest approach to a home that John Stuart Webster had known for 20 years, and so he paused just within the entrance to perform the time-honored ceremonial of home-coming. Over the arched doorway leading to the lounge hung a large bronze gong such as is used in mines, and from the lever of the gong-clapper depended a cord which Webster seized and jerked thrice—thus striking the signal known to all of the mining fraternity—the

BY FRANK CONDON

MAYBE you saw that Los Feliz road race along the edge of the Pacific Ocean a year or so ago, and maybe you didn't, but the chances are you read something about it in your newspaper, no matter where you live. The official records show that it was a wonderful match and pulled off in record time, but thorough as the statistics are, they omit many of the facts. As a matter of cold truth, they tell you nothing about the race at all, and as I happen to be one of the mighty few insiders, I may as well let you know the details.

In that Los Feliz race there were two prominent names and they figured in the headlines and on peoples' tongues for days afterward. The names were Barry Norton and Douglas Snell, and I have known those two boys since the old days in San Francisco.

To get at the thing right, we'll have to hop backward a few years, when I was starting with the oil company which still slips me my monthly bit.

At that time Barry Norton was a youngster, just breaking into the automobile business via the garage route. Doug Snell was a kid, too, and he began in an Oakland machine shop. Once in a while the three of us would get together of an evening and tell each other our ambitions.

That was the start of it. Barry Norton was a round-faced lad, full of fire and confidence, and Doug Snell was a quiet, timid chap, who would rather sit back and listen than tell of his plans. But he was just as full of ambition as Barry, even though he spoke quietly and little.

In the course of time Barry naturally graduated. He went up a step and joined the Truxton Automobile Co., and the first thing he did was to look around for a job and hand it to Doug Snell. The two of them were pals and mighty fond of each other. Both were splendid mechanics and in the hearts of both lurked one consuming ambition—some day to drive the big race cars they saw in the Sunday newspapers.

After they joined the Truxton people they got their first chance to learn about automobiles from behind the wheel, and many a time they were pinched by the outraged Frisco police for too much foot-pressure on the pedal. But they never forgot where they were going, and one Saturday afternoon Barry and Doug breezed into my office with the news.

"Well, I got the job," Barry shouted as he came toward my desk. He had Doug Snell at his elbow and they were both grinning happily.

"What job?" I asked.

"He's going with the Atlantic people," Doug answered proudly. "Ain't it great?"

That was the next step upward, and Barry Norton became a race mechanician. Within a month of the day he came into my office, Douglas Snell was working for the Atlantic Automobile Co., also as mechanician; and in a year Barry was driving a race car. He was recognized as one of America's coming drivers, because he had everything—coolness, strength, endurance and daring.

I often wondered whether Doug Snell would go any further, because I had always felt that his timidity was an obstacle. Of course, you can't be an arrant coward and hold down a mechanician's job, because, when the machine goes over on a slippery curve the mechanician is also there, under the twisted frame; but there is a pile of difference between driving a race machine and sitting in one beside the driver.

During all these months I hopped around the circuit in pursuit of the oil business, and that's how I kept in touch with my two pals. They were both doing well, but Barry was doing better than Doug. It was about as it had always been—Doug Snell was a sort of echo of the more daring and confident Barry. The papers used to print a lot about Barry, but nothing at all concerning Snell, which was as it should be.

All this time one other person figured more or less in the affairs of the two boys, and her name was Virginia Hope, a Frisco girl whom both had known a long time. Barry used to tell me in strict confidence that some day he would marry Virginia, and he also used to tell the same news to Doug Snell, who laughed in his slow, quiet way at the boastful Barry.

"You watch out, kid," Doug used to say, "or I'll grab off Virginia myself. I'm pretty fond of her, you know."

"Yes, you will," Barry would reply. "You got a fine chance with Virginia."

And that's what Doug had all the time—a fine chance, although possibly the only human who knew it was Virginia herself. She was fond of Barry and used to show it, but if she was fond of Doug Snell she didn't show it, which is sometimes a way females have.

In a way it was rivalry between the two youngsters, with Barry blustering and confident, and Doug Snell silent as usual. He never said much about Virginia to either me or Barry, but he thought a lot, and one day we all found out something.

It was during a big meet at Indianapolis a little over two years ago, and Barry had been driving race cars long enough to be mentioned as a "veteran," which meant something over three years. Snell had gone up, more slowly than his brilliant pal, and was also driving for the Atlantic concern, but without the success that had begun to come Barry's way. Some of the racing experts used to speak of Snell, but most of them saw only Barry Norton.

"Norton's got everything," old Jake King once said to me. "The day is coming when he'll be the best driver in this country."

"What about Doug Snell?" I asked, having my own opinion.

"Snell is good, too," Jake answered. "Maybe he'll be a regular race driver and maybe not. Strikes me there's a vein of timidity in him. Not that he ain't brave enough."

"You bet your life he's brave enough," put in one of the group. "You listen to me. Barry Norton is already a star and he's going a long ways farther, but Doug Snell is a better driver than Barry this minute, and he'll prove it. He'll be slower, but he'll get there."

That is the way it was. And to Indianapolis came Virginia Hope, all the way from Frisco, to watch the boys drive in one of the big races. It was her first trip East, and both Doug and Barry made a mighty big fuss over her and showed her all there is to see.

And then came the heap big news. We learned that Douglas and Virginia were engaged to be married.

It hit me in the eye, all right, but what it did to Barry Norton was a crime. I saw him that afternoon and he looked like a man who has been shot. I wanted to say something comforting, but what can you say to a man? Doug Snell walked around with a sort of apologetic look on his face, as though he had done something underhand. He knew he'd hurt Barry and it made him feel miserable, but Virginia was happy enough, and that night, about 11, I wandered into an all-night place in Hill street and the first person I saw was Barry Norton. He was in the middle of a gay gang and he was drinking, which is fine business for a man who is going to drive in a big race next morning.

I looked at him in astonishment and tried to get him to go back to the hotel, but what he said to me will not bear repeating. He was very nasty, and I wanted to paste him one. Then I thought of Doug and Virginia and walked out, very haughty and sore.

I remember that the first race of that particular meet was a 50-mile dash, and both Barry and Doug Snell were in it. Virginia was up in the grand stand at my side during the morning and we saw the start of that 50-mile spin, with 12 cars lined up. What we didn't see was something that happened the first time round, and to this day I have never figured it out to my own satisfaction.

They told me about it afterward—people who had been standing within 40 feet of the spot—and from what they said, I couldn't make up my mind whether Barry Norton deliberately side-swiped Doug Snell or whether he hit him accidentally. I've talked to Barry many times since and sometimes I think he did it deliberately, full of a temporary sort of madness—a sort of combination of revenge and hangover.

Anyway, what happened was this:

Half way round the first time, Snell's car crept up on Barry and tried to pass, and the bystanders say they were both running 70 miles. Snell's front wheels came even with Barry's rear tires and then Barry swerved and hit Snell forward of his wheel, and in another second Snell and his car were going through the fence, and Barry was still on the track, uninjured and unstopped. He went right on as though nothing had happened, and nothing had—to him.

They picked the mass of wreckage off Doug Snell and his mechanician, and when they lifted the two men out Doug was conscious, but badly hurt. They found later that he had a broken collar-bone and both arms were broken. The mechanic fared a little better. Both of them were hurried to the hospital, and the car was turned in for junk.

Virginia heard the news, very white of lip, and then she went over to the hospital.

Barry won that race by about the width of the ocean. I saw part of it, and I marveled at the madhouse style of driving, because Barry was taking chances, any one of which might have ended his affairs. He took the turns at a clip that made you hold your breath, and once he skidded in front of the stands and turned around six times, without tipping over. No wonder he won it. One of the other drivers told me later that nobody but a fool could have beaten Barry that day.

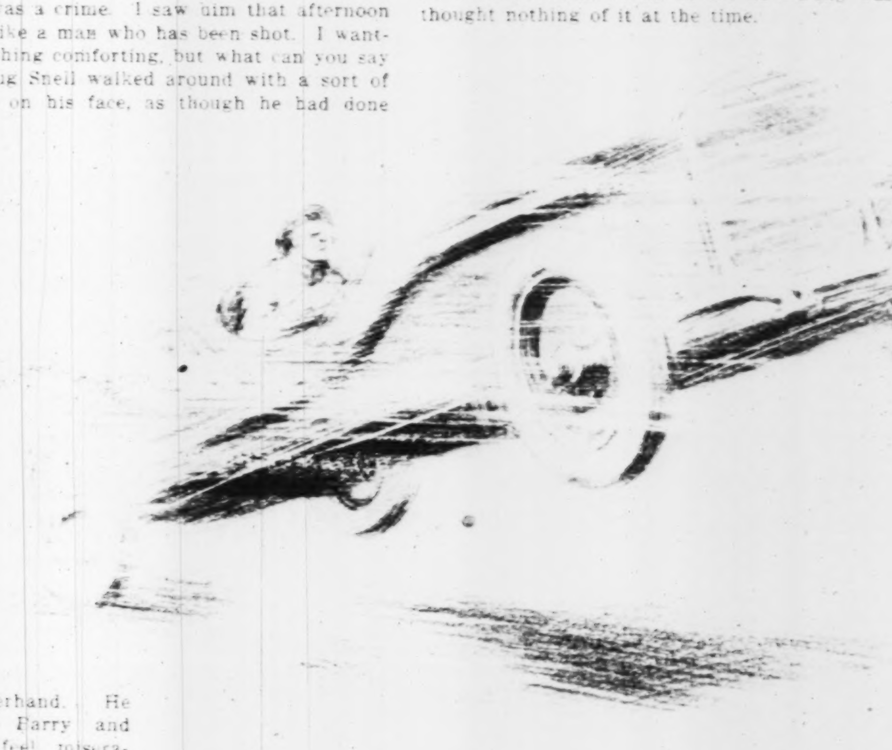
I saw him after the race.

"How's Doug?" he asked me.

"Busted up some, but not in danger of death. Nasty spill."

"Yeah," he answered, and not another word could I get out of him, although I asked him about the details. Nor would he talk to anyone else, although he was questioned. He said merely that he didn't know how it happened, because it happened too quick. But I've always wondered whether——

I remembered afterward that there was a queer look on his face when he asked me how Doug was, but I thought nothing of it at the time.



Three weeks later Snell came out of the hospital, very white and thin and unlike the Snell I had known. I saw him off on a Frisco train and had a few last words in the station.

"Where's Barry?" Snell asked me.

"Entered in the New Orleans races," I answered. "He seemed badly cut up about—about the accident."

"He couldn't help it," Snell said to me. "A thing like that is liable to happen any time."

And he went back to the coast with his bride-to-be, thinking the thing an accident. Maybe it was, too.

Then I lost track of both of them for a period of months, because I went East on my business, and Barry remained in the Middle West, filling engagements, and with ever-increasing fame. They were now headlining him wherever sporting sheets were printed. Whenever you picked up a paper you saw it stated that Barry Norton was king of the racing crowd and was getting better every day.

I met him in St. Louis, where he was driving a new French car for the first time.

"It's a Lavelier," he said to me, enthusiastically, "and she's mine. I'm through with the Atlantic people. From now on Barry Norton drives for himself. Did you ever see a car like that before?"

I looked over his Lavelier, and it was a speedy craft, with a French engine.

"I've had her up to 118 miles an hour," he remarked. "That's good enough, ain't it?"

We talked of other things.

"Heard anything of Doug Snell?" I asked him, because I hadn't myself and I wondered.

"Yes," he said. "Doug's out of it. I went to Frisco to see him. He married Virginia a few months ago. They're living in Oakland, and Doug's picking out a new trade."

"New trade?"

"He's all through driving automobiles," Barry said

"I talked to him for three hours, but he's through—clean through!"

I began to think that over, too. Barry talked a great deal about Snell, and I saw how he felt. I also figured it out myself and it seemed plain. Barry had gone on up to the top and Snell had quit abruptly—stopped the day his car went through the fence.

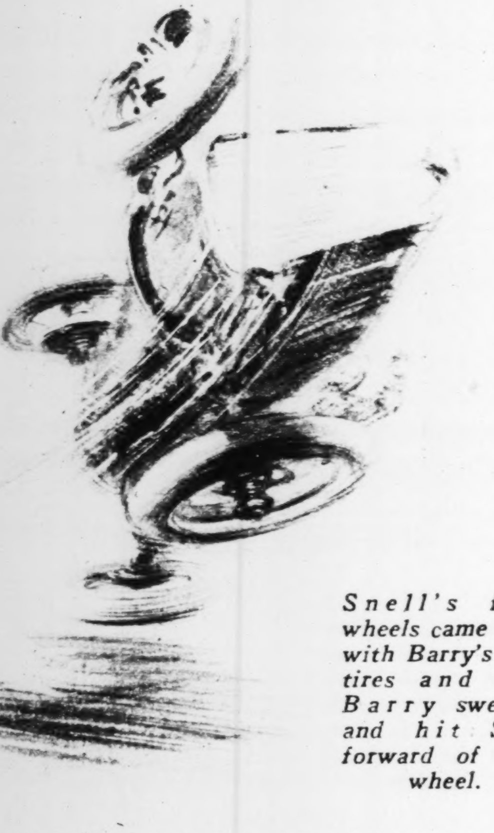
I knew what that meant, because I knew more about Snell than most of his friends. He had wanted success. He used to live only for the day when he would drive in some big race and win it—come down to the finish and listen to the cheers of the crowd. And he never got there.

"What seems to ail him mainly?" I asked Barry.

"His nerve is gone. And let me tell you something," Barry added, looking at me steadily, "there ain't a better driver in America today than Doug Snell. I know, because I know what a good driver is. He's better than me, and don't you forget it."

Then I drifted in to Frisco for a conference with the home office, and among other things I looked up the Douglas Snells. They lived in a little cottage up in the hills, with a garden and some chickens, and when I blew in Doug Snell was wandering around with a hoe. He looked about the same, only thinner, and there was a queer expression on his face that I'd never seen before.

"Well, what's all the good news?" I demanded, after the greetings, and both Virginia and Doug turned in and told me the happenings. While they talked I could see that they were bluffing. They tried to make it appear that everything was fine and dandy, but I knew better. To begin with, Doug wasn't working and hadn't been for months, and I judged from the general appearance of the household that they were cramped for coin.



Snell's front wheels came even with Barry's rear tires and then Barry swerved and hit Snell forward of his wheel.

"If you don't drive," I said after a time, "why not pick up some other job? You can do a lot of things."

"I'm going to get a job soon," Doug laughed, but there wasn't any mirth in it.

"I don't know what's the matter with him," Virginia said to me afterward. "He isn't sick, but he doesn't take any interest in anything. He's had several good offers, outside the automobile line, but he won't even look at them."

When I left, Doug walked down to the gate with me and we shook hands.

"I don't suppose you'll drive again," I said to him.

"I'm through," he answered slowly. "No more of the racing business for mine. Barry's doing well, isn't he? And I'm glad of it, because he deserves to be at the top of the heap. There ain't a better driver in America than Barry Norton." There was a wistful tone in his voice as he spoke.

"Yes, there's one better driver than Barry," I answered, and then I went on into town.

* * * * * * * *

So that was the situation a year ago, just before the Los Feliz road race, which, if you don't know it, was the biggest racing event of the past five years. I knew, and so did Barry, that Barry Norton had killed something in Doug Snell, although his body came out of that wreck alive. Whether it was accidental or not is outside the question, and to this minute I can't decide.

Anyway, the race bugs from all over America began to flock out toward Los Feliz, and the little coast town prepared for its biggest event. The Los Feliz course is the best in the world, and last year's Grand Prize race was 395 miles, some 49 times around the eight-mile course. There were 21 entrants, and the names included all the leading race drivers of America and Europe.

And before that race started the experts agreed upon one thing. They stated in newspaper interviews that if Barry Norton's Lavelier car went through without an accident he couldn't lose the contest. That's what they thought of the Lavelier, with Barry at the wheel, because the dope showed that and nothing else.

Being an oil salesman, naturally I was on the job early. The race kings began to breeze into Los Feliz two weeks before the day of the contest, and from then on the eight-mile course purred all day with tryouts. I talked with officials and came to the conclusion that this race would see one of the biggest gatherings that had ever beheld a cup contest; and that's what happened.

Barry Norton wasted no time. His machine was in grand shape and carried a gas tank as big as a telephone booth, so that if he kept free from tire and engine trouble it wouldn't be necessary to stop for gas. And the way that sucker drove around that eight-mile course in trials! The track is asphalt and smooth as a sheet of glass. Some of the curves are dangerous and were given their regular fearful names, such as "Dead Man's Corner" and "Death Curve."

Of course, the Lavelier wasn't the only powerful car entered. They were all powerful, and four of the French machines had done 110 miles. Only, you can't drive at 110 miles around curves. Most of the drivers were salaried men, but a few owned their machines, like Barry. One of these was a millionaire sport, who gambled with death for the fun of it. His name was Hicks, and the papers said that any man who had a million dollars was a sucker to drive in such a race.

Well, the Grand Prize was to be raced on Wednesday, beginning sharp at noon, and on Monday morning Barry Norton's mechanic, a chap named Kilbane, departed from this life without ceremonials or benefit of clergy. He was spinning round the course in a famous machine made in America, driving for the fun of it, and, not being as good as he should have been, he hit one of the dead men's curves too fast, and his back end decided to go on first; which it did. Kilbane was found beside a tree, dead as a herring, and the expensive car was nothing but a few wires, broken steel shafts and twisted wheels.

That made it necessary for Barry to engage a new mechanician, which wasn't difficult. There were flocks of men to be had. I rode around with Barry a number of times, and am personally qualified to state that he had the speed needed to win that cup or any other. And yet he wasn't quite the same old Barry Norton.

On Tuesday afternoon we were swinging along down toward the grand stand, now nothing but new pine boards, and when we turned into the broad avenue that skirts the sea I held my hand in front of my windlashed face and took a short look at the fence on our right.

"Did you notice that guy on the fence?" I asked Barry, who, of course, had other things to occupy his mind.

"I did not," he said.

"Next time round stop or slow down, or do something so's I can get a better look. There's a thin guy sitting on a fence post with his legs hanging over, and I think it's Doug Snell."

"Doug?"

That was all Barry said, but we tore around once again, doing the eight smooth miles in six easy minutes, and when we breezed in toward the stand Barry stopped his speed machine and we both gazed at the fence. It was Doug Snell, all right. We stopped in front of him, and he climbed down from his perch with a sort of shamefaced grin, as though he'd been caught at something.

"Well, I be damned!" said Barry, slapping Doug on the back as he stood beside the car.

"I thought I'd just come down and give 'em the look-over," Doug explained. "It's a long time since I saw a decent race."

Barry turned to me.

"You go and get out of this car," he commanded. "I want to show Doug what she does to race tracks that get in her way."

I stepped out and handed my goggles to Doug, who took them hesitatingly.

"Get in," Barry ordered, grinning at his old pal. "You ain't afraid of me, are you?"

Doug shook his head uncertainly.

"I haven't been in a machine since"——

"Get in here, will you!" Barry roared. "Or do I get out there and drag you in by the neck?"

Doug smiled and slid in beside Barry; the Lavelier coughed a couple of times and leaped away. I sat on the fence then and watched them tear around for an hour or more, with Doug crouched down in the seat and Barry talking to him.

I didn't learn that day or for many more just what that conversation was about, but I got it eventually and it was mighty interesting.

It seems that Barry was putting up a business proposition to Doug Snell as they whirled around the track. Having lost his mechanician through death, it was needful for the speed king to get another, and he offered the place to Doug Snell.

"No," said Doug at first.

"I wouldn't ask you under ordinary conditions," Barry went on, "but this race isn't an ordinary one. When I start tomorrow at noon, I've got to win. It isn't a case of maybe I'll win. I've just got to, the same as the sun's got to rise; and I'll tell you why, Doug. This Lavelier car is my own, and it's nearly busted me. I've made a lot and I've spent a lot, and, further than that, I'm head over heels in debt. So I've got other people's money and my own on tomorrow's result. I need that $19,500 that goes to the first car, and I need the other thousands which I've wagered on myself."

"You will win," Doug argued, "no matter who's your mechanician."

"I want a man I can depend on, and you're the man," Barry went on. "If anything happens I want it repaired in seconds, and you can do it—you can help me better than any other man on the coast. I wouldn't ask you if it wasn't for the size of the stake."

Well, he argued along that line, and in the end Doug Snell stepped out of the Lavelier as the engaged mechanician to Barry Norton in the Grand Prize; and so it was entered on the official records.

I heard about it and it puzzled me some. I wondered what Virginia Snell would have said had she been there.

"So you're going to be a mechanician?" I said to Doug that night, when the three of us sat at dinner.

"Anybody can be a mechanician," he laughed, but I saw that he was mighty interested in his temporary job. Barry was more silent than usual. I marveled that Doug would agree to travel 49 times around that lightning-fast course, but as I said, it's one thing to ride and it's another to drive.

Then came the morning of the big race, with its 80,000-crowd, multitudes of automobiles, flags, venders of foods and drink, horns, sputtering motor cycles, official cars flying around, and the grim-looking race cars lined up before the big stand. I had a good seat on a front row, and I felt in my bones that there would be a race worth looking at. And it was.

I'm not going to bore you with a detailed account, but it was a bird. Barry's Lavelier was Car 21, and Car 21 got away in last place. When he stepped on his pedal under the starter's gun, 20 of the best racing cars in the world were out in front of him, tearing around the eight-mile streak, and I saw the blue-black end of the Lavelier disappear in a cloud of greasy smoke. When the cars came crashing through on the first round, Barry had already picked up seven of them and was in fourteenth position, and next time round he was third, which shows you something of his speed. He did the first three trips around at 88 and a fraction, which is moving right smartly. And beside him old Doug Snell, with one hand on the handgrip, gazed out through his goggles and seemed to be enjoying himself.

Forty minutes after the start Barry Norton had enveloped his field and was leading by 15 or 20 seconds; and from then on he gradually crept ahead to half a lap, a whole lap, a lap and a half, and there he stayed, secure in the 12-mile lead. Anything faster than he was doing was dangerous to the tires and might bring a fractured engine, but he was keeping at a steady clip of about 87 miles an hour, which was just good enough to hold the second machine, Car 3, 12 miles behind him. As everybody had figured beforehand, the race was Barry's if nothing happened to his machine or himself.

And so the big race went on toward its natural finish, with the long lines of people cheering Barry's blue machine as it sped by with the regularity of clockwork. Some of the cars dropped out with engine trouble, one was wrecked and caught fire, but Barry zipped around, lap after lap, with never a variation—just so fast on the stretches, so fast on the turns; and he had brakes both forward and back, so that he could shoot down into the curves and slow up faster than some of the others.

On his fortieth lap, with the big race well in hand, something happened that made automobile history. Barry began to slow down on a long, level stretch, and Doug Snell looked over at him in surprise. The Lavelier was going as well as usual and there was no apparent reason for the halt.

"What's up?" Doug demanded.

Barry came to a full stop before he answered. Then he took his hands from the big wheel and leaned back.

"I'm through," he said, speaking with an effort. "I can't go any farther."

"Why not?" Doug gasped. "We're winning. We've only got nine more laps and it's in—it's in, man!"

"I know it," Barry answered. "I've been fighting off dizziness for the past hour and it's getting the best of me. I can't drive any farther because I can't see any more. I tell you, I'm through—and, my God! at this stage, with the race won!"

He put his hands up over his eyes, and the little knot of spectators gazed at the two men stupidly. Even while they were sitting there motionless, Car 3 passed them, now but one lap behind, and the driver of Car 3 grinned, because it was the first time the blue streak had paused.

Barry's arms hung limp at his side and his chin rested on the wheel, as though a great weariness filled him. The knot of spectators increased in size, and voices asked what ailed Car 21, and why the two men sat in their seats instead of fixing what was broken.

And then what fate had probably ordered long, long ago, took place. Doug Snell grasped Barry by the shoulder and shook him roughly.

"Pull yourself together!" Doug snorted. "D'ye think we're going to lose this race now—NOW? If you do, signal to hoist! Only those members who had been sojourning in distant parts six months or more were privileged thus to disturb the peace and dignity of the Engineers Club, the same privilege, by the way, carrying with it the obligation of paying for the materials shortly to be hoisted!

Having announced the return of a prodigal, our hero stepped to the door of the lounge and shouted:

"John Stuart Webster, E. M."

The room was empty. Not a single member was present to greet the wanderer and accept of his invitation.

"Home was never like this when I was a boy," he complained to the servant at the telephone exchange. "Times must be pretty good in the mining game in Colorado when everybody has a job that keeps him out of Denver."

The servant rose and essayed a raid on his hat and stick, but Mr. Webster, who was impatient at thus finding himself amidst old scenes, fended him away and said "Shoo fly!" Then he crossed the empty lounge and ascended the stairs leading to the card room, at the entrance of which he paused, leaning on his stick—in unconscious imitation of a Sicilian gentleman posing for his photograph after his first payday in America—swept that room with a wistful eye and sighed because nothing had changed in three long years.

Save for the slight job of kalsomining which Father Time had done on the edges of the close-cropped Websterian mustache, the returned prodigal might have stepped out of the club but yesterday. He would not have taken the short end of a modest bet that even a fresh log had been placed on the fire or that the domino players over against the wall had won or lost a drink or two and then resumed playing—although perchance there were a few more gray hairs in the thickly thatched head of old Neddy Jerome, sitting in his favorite seat by the window and turning the cards in his eternal game of solitaire, in blissful ignorance that John Stuart Webster stood within the portals of home and awaited the fatted calf.

"I'll hypnotize the old pelican into looking up," Webster soliloquized, and forthwith bent a beetling gaze upon the player. For as many as five seconds he strove to demonstrate the superiority of mind over solitaire; then, despairing of success, he struck the upholstery of an adjacent chair a terrific blow with his stick—the effect of which was to cause everybody in the room to start and to conceal Mr. Webster momentarily in a cloud of dust, the while in a bellowing baritone he sang:

"His father was a hard-rock miner;
He comes from my home town"——

"Jack Webster! The devil's own kin!" shouted Neddy Jerome. He swept the cards into a head and waddled across the room to meet this latest assailant of the peace and dignity of the Engineers' Club. "You old, worthless, ornery, no-good son of a lizard! I've never been so glad to see a man that didn't owe me money." He seized Webster's hand in both of his and wrung it affectionately. "Jack," he continued, "I've been combing the whole civilized world for you, for a month, at least. Where the devil have you been?"

John Stuart Webster beamed happily upon his friend. "Well, Neddy, you old stocking-knitter," he replied quizzically, "since that is the case, I'm not surprised at your failure to find me. You've known me long enough to have remembered to confine your search to the uncivilized reaches."

"Well, you're here, at any rate, and I'm happy. Now you'll settle down."

"Hardly, Neddy. I'm young yet, you know—only 40. Still a real live man and not quite ready to degenerate into a card-playing, eat-drink-and-be-merry, die-of-inanition, sink-into-oblivion, and go-to-hell fireplace spirit!" And he prodded Jerome in the short ribs with a tentative thumb that caused the old man to wince. He turned to greet the half-dozen card players, who had looked up at his noisy entrance—deciding that since they were strangers to him they were mere half-baked young whelps but lately graduated from some school of mines—and permitted his friend to drag him downstairs to the deserted lounge, where Jerome paused in the middle of the room and renewed his query:

"Johnny, where have you been?"

"Lead me to a sea, oh, thou of little manners," Webster retorted. "Here, boy! Remove my property and guard it well. I will stay and disport myself." And he suffered himself to be dispossessed of his hat, gloves and stick. "It used to be the custom here," he resumed, addressing Jerome, "that when one of the old guard returned, he was obliged to ask his friends to indicate their poison"——

"Where have you been, I ask?"

"Out in Death Valley, California, trying to pry loose a fortune."

you're wrong. This is the best machine here and it's going to win. Now, get out of there and lemme in behind that wheel!"

Barry looked once at his partner and silently slid under the wheel into the mechanic's seat. Doug crept out, ran around the car and climbed in—in behind the polished wheel, behind the lever and brakes—in where he belonged by rights of his hard training and harder toil. And a second later the still perplexed spectators saw him touch the pedal with his toe and Car 21, the good old Lavelier, grabbed the road in its teeth and hurled it behind.

What nobody saw was a slow, contented, creeping grin that started at one corner of Barry Norton's mouth and crept on up through the oil and ooze and grease until it covered his goggle-protected face.

Well, as the poets say, little more remains to be told about the big Los Feliz road race of last year. With Doug Snell driving and Barry Norton clutching the other seat, the Lavelier jumped along like a scared rabbit, and Car 3, which had momentarily entertained high hopes, wondered what had happened. I watched the Lavelier pass on the forty-first lap, and when I saw who was driving the only reason why I didn't fall out of the grand stand was because it was built wrong for that.

I began to understand, too, why Doug was driving. He passed the stand at about 80 miles, and I clocked him around. He made his first round trip at a general speed of 89 miles, which is pretty good driving, considering the turns. And Car 3 had the shock of its life when the blue 21 passed it on a turn and went on by like a demented thing.

That's the way the big race finished, with Car 21 12 miles to the good and the rest of the field nowhere. Barry and Doug Snell did that 395 miles in 3h. 30m. 40s., which is somewhere close to 86 or 87 miles an hour for the entire distance. And when the winning machine drove up for the last time, it was Doug Snell's shoulders that felt the laurel wreaths and Doug's ears that heard the sweeping cheers. Barry sat back and pretended to be a sick man, and a few people sympathized with him.

I talked with Barry after the race was over, and looked him in the eye.

"Well," I said, "you may have fooled some people, but you didn't fool me, bucko. I heard about your eye illness. Bunk! Pure bunk, wasn't it?"

"A wise guy like you had better keep his mouth shut when he has wise thoughts," Barry grinned. "Or else I'll have to fix it so's you can't open it."

"Has he got it back?" I demanded.

"Has he?" Barry replied. "Have you got eyes? Did you see him go through that 75 miles—and didn't I tell you he was a better man than I am? He's got it back, and he'll never lose it again."

I watched Doug Snell fluttering amid a group of reporters, who were later on going to put him in headlines five inches thick. He was a modest hero, but there was a glint in his eye. He certainly had got "it" back, and "it" meant whatever he had lost at Indianapolis. You can call "it" anything you like.

* * * * * *

That's the real history of the Los Feliz road race, which made a hero out of Doug Snell and a lesser one of Barry. In a way, it was Barry's reparation, and Barry has a nut on him, because he knew what Doug lacked was old Henry P. Confidence, and nothing would give it back to him but the emergency which Barry faked up.

And what's the answer to all this? Who is the best race driver in America today? Who is so acknowledged by the authorities?

Surest thing you know. His name is Douglas Snell of San Francisco, and his steady record of wins puts him high above the others—all the others, except one. The second best race king is a regular guy named Barry Norton.

Now that dermatologists and skin specialists are agreed that the beginning of baldness is the gradual thinning out of the hair and that that is due to a microbe in the scalp, it was not difficult for science to overcome it. So it is now possible to stop thinning out of the hair, falling hair, baldness, gray hair, bald patches, itchy, scaly dandruff and other such afflictions of the hair and scalp. The new method strengthens the hair roots and follicles, makes the scalp healthy and sanitary and puts life, gloss and lustre into the old and growing hair. IT'S A GOOD THING BIRTHDAYS DON'T COME OFTENER

By RING W. LARDNER.

TO THE EDITOR:

Letters has been recd. from hundreds of readers asking how did I celebrate my birthday and why wasn't they something about it in the society col. Well friends so many folks has been getting their name in the society page that didn't belong there that the papers made up their mind to draw the line somewheres so they past a rule to not print nobody's name that is still liveing with their first wife.

But on acct. of the nation wide interest in the subject and to repay in a measure the kindness of my family and friends maybe it would not be out of place for me to publish a report of the occasion which will long be remembered as one of the biggest fiascos in the annuals of N. Y. society.

But first let me take this occasion to publicly thank my family and friends for remembering me and what they done towards giveing me a grand good time as well as the many valuable gifts which I am afraid they could ill afford though perhaps they are better off than a person would think to look at them.

Well in the first place they was a celebration at the home and it was a Sunday and I got up late and come down to breakfast and they was a chair covered with presents from my kiddies who couldn't hardly wait for me to open up so as they could see what they was. Well they was a can of tobacco and a box of stationery both charged to me at the drug store and they was a book that I forget the name of it, but it's a mystery story and the mystery is how it got printed. They was also a sweater from the Mrs. and I may as well explain that we only been married 10 yrs. so she probably ain't hardly had time yet to find out that I all ready got 3 of them.

Well, instead of the regular Sunday dinner of chicken and ice cream and cake we also had a few candles which they made the kiddies blow out as soon as they was lit because you got to be careful of your candles when you live in a place where the electric lights goes out every time the paper says cloudy tomorrow.

But the big party come off at night in N. Y. city. This was give in my honor at some friends of mine and when we entered the apt. all the merry makers was there and the lounge was a litter of presents and first one I opened up was a tie from my boss which didn't have no card to tell who it was from, but I seen him wear it too many times too not know.

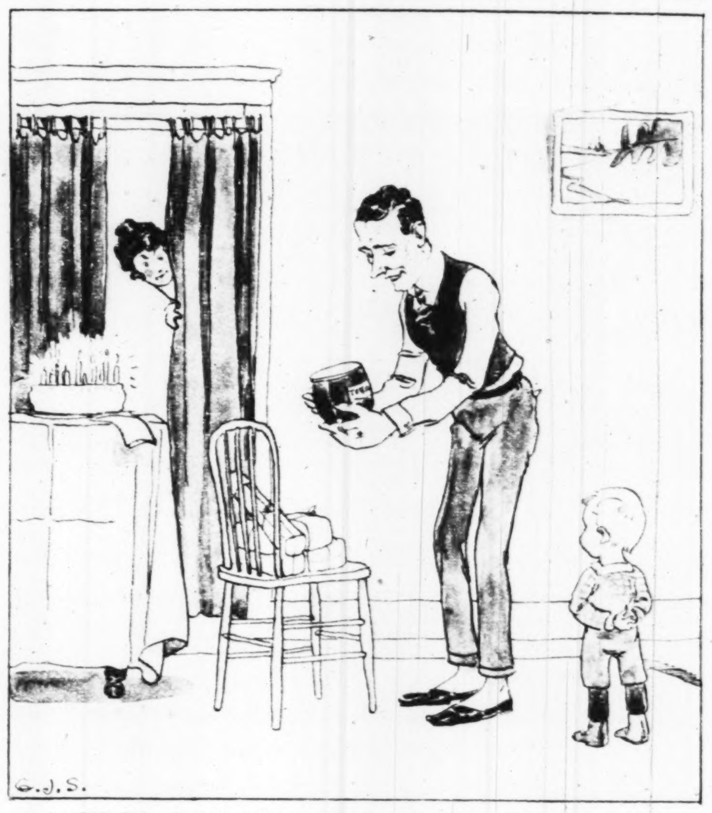
G. Rice and R. Goldberg presented me with some handsome golf accessorys and one of the ones Rube give me was what they call a parachute golf ball with a parachute tied to it, and the directions says its "for practicing driving and all other strokes in a limited area. The parachute prevents the ball from traveling very far." Which I suppose the theory is O. K. but I can get the same results without no parachute.

Mr. Rice give me a split midiron and a golf bag that you can put clubs of any length in it because they's no bottom, and he also give me a dozen golf balls that I washed them up the next day with soap and water and 2 of them turned pretty near white.

Mine hostess give me a kind of a patent lighter that you fill it with kerosene and use it to start a fire in the fireplace instead of kindling wood. Most of these here patents is no good and I ain't tried this one yet, but if it don't work it certainly won't be from lack of experience.

Another of the fair ladies give me a electric flash light to use when they was tire trouble at night or something. And a artist name Preston give me a original drawing that was worth real money which he waited till later in the evening before he took it with a couple of full houses.

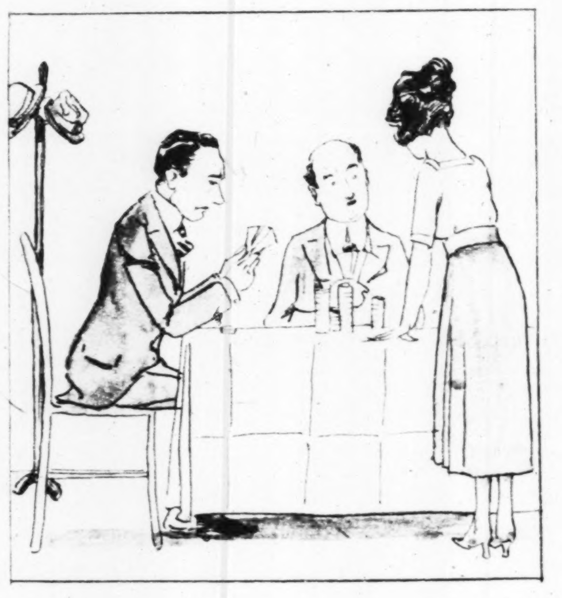
Other gifts was a cigarette holder, pretty near like new and a copy of the golf rules of 1916, which is just as good as any as far as I'm concerned, and all and all when I seen what my friends had spent on me I couldn't hardly help from yawning and felt like I shouldn't ought to take all these gifts a specially the ones from ladies that wasn't my wife, and I got to feeling so miserable over it that I throwed some of them out the flivver window on the way home.



Well! they was a chair covered with presents.

But the costly gifts was just a drop in the bucket along side the 5 course birthday supper which we eat off our laps on acct. of the host and hostess never dreaming when they bought their dining rm. furniture that they would ever live anywheres bigger than Nashville.

The piece of most resistance was a Virginia ham that friends had sent them and the hostess said she had showed it to her butcher and he said it was worth $22, but he was stocked up with ham so we had it and it made 4 courses and the 5th course was individual birthday cakes which I eat one of them but the other guests just tasted theirs and said they would save the rest till their birthday.



When your husband's $15 loser it's time to go home.

After supper they was a choice of minoru or deuces wild and they made me play in the deuces wild because they seen me win once at minoru and they kept the jazz turned on and if a person wasn't interested in their hand they could get up and dance and the only hand I got all evening was 4 deuces and a ace and it came when I and my brother was the only ones not dancing.

Well, the Mrs. finely come up and says it was time to go home, and I knew without counting my chips that I was $15 loser as she is a stickler for the conventions one of which is that when your husband's $15 loser it's time to go home. So everybody says many happy returns and we started home and was all most there when a tire blowed out and the Mrs. says here is a chance to use your new flash light so I got out and pointed it at the tire, but it looked even flatter than without no flash light.

That is how I spent my birthday and I won't have no more of them for pretty near a yr. But I suppose its like makeing a hole in 2 or being a honorary pall bearer and if it happened oftener a person wouldn't enjoy it 1-2 as much.

The Gleeson family spent about two weeks at Cuernavaca, a beautiful old town 50 miles south of the City of Mexico, and once the headquarters of Zapata. It is where the artists go, although as a class they are neglecting a country of marvelous beauty, says Gleeson, and declares that, besides the romantic old buildings and picturesque inhabitants, Mexico has a brighter sun and lighter colors than most other countries. Some day the artists will wake up to the possibilities there, he believes.

Speaking of the peons, Gleeson said it is remarkable what loads they carry on their heads, "anything from a goat to a piano," as he declares. The women frequently are seen carrying a pig in their shawls, which are also commonly used for the transportation of firewood and of infants. Children over 3 years old must pay full fare on the street cars, and the shawl, or rebosa, is frequently used by women who want to avoid paying the fare for children much beyond that age. Gleeson once saw a woman carrying a 10-year-old child in her shawl for that purpose—and she succeeded.

One of the interesting places at the City of Mexico is the second-hand market, or, as it is commonly called, the "thieves' market." According to an old theory, if something is stolen from a resident of the city, all he has to do is to go to the "thieves' market" next day and buy it back. Every imaginable object is for sale there, second-hand, including sets of false teeth.

Gleeson's comment on the native servants is that they are willing and honest, but very ignorant. They must be taught to cook, as all they know is tortillas and frijoles. They would rather work for American than for Mexican families, because they prefer the American food. They are enthusiastic cleaners, when shown how, and wore out the Gleesons' knives by constant scouring.

Besides the paintings, etchings and sketches which Gleeson brought back with him, Mrs. Gleeson did some figures of natives in clay. As Adele E. Schulenburg she has made quite a name for herself in sculpture. Gleeson, while employed by the Missouri Pacific Railway, worked nights for several years at the Brush and Pencil Club and at the St. Louis Art School. Then he won a scholarship at the Art Students' League of New York, and afterwards went to Europe, working his passage on a cattle boat.

It was four and one half years before he returned to this country, and during that time he had visited most of the countries of Europe, with Paris as his "home." He then taught at Central High School for two years and gave instruction in night-school classes.

got tuck up with another visitor that come jist as he was a-leavin'. But he hollers back at us, the ornery cuss: 'Goodnight, sleep tight, and don't let the bedbugs bite! He! he !he!'

"If they's any one thing that Tillyannie brags on herself about, it is because we don't never keep bedbugs in our house, much less would we be a-takin' 'em around with us in a wagon. I reckon he had as few manners as anybody I ever run across. I'm sorry now that I didn't kinder encourage my right boot to he'p him along a little as he was a-leavin'.

"Well, this new visitor, he didn't hem ner haw around over what he come fer. He didn't tell us no long rig-ma-role about ha'nts and things, and he didn't rile me about my dawg. He jist come to the p'int right straight. He said he saw us pass by his house and 'lowed maybe we'd be plumb tickled to he'p 'em buy new seats fer their schoolhouse, seein' that we had plenty of this world's goods, as it were. And he wasn't hardly gone till a couple of women come to call. Plumb nice, they was, and would a-been good-lockin' under ordinary circumstances. But with Tillyannie around they didn't have no show fer looks. But they was plumb nice and told us how their settlemint was a-buildin' a new church and 'lowed we might be awful glad to he'p 'em out, seein' we had more than we needed. Said they seen us a-passin' by their house and——

"Well, they hadn't hardly gone before we heerd a ortomobile a-comin'. But we kivered up the fire right quick and clumb up to bed in the wagon. Soon as the orter was safely passed, as it were, I stuck my head out and give extry instructions to Happy and then we pulled the blanket up tight over our ye'rs.

"'It's awful expensive to be rich, ain't it William?' says Tillyannie, after it seemed like things was settled down quiet fer the night. 'Tomorrer,' she says, 'I reckon we better dress sorter betwixt and between, kinder as if it was jist a common, ordinary week day. Not exactly as if we was a-sproutin' er a-pilin bresh, you know, but kinder, maybe, as if it was Saturday evenin', about 3 o'clock, and we was a-takin some aigs to the store er was expectin' comp'ny, er somethin',' she says.

"'We shore will,' I says. 'Gosh darn that Sam Hodges and his fool advisin' about how you ort to wear your Sunday clo'es when you're a-travelin'. I says. 'Gosh darn him!'"

The Woman Who Wished She Could Play the Piano

And How She Found an Easy Way to Turn Her Wish Into a Fact

A YEAR or so ago this woman didn't know one note from another. Today she plays the piano—entirely by note—better than many who have been playing for years. Here she tells how she learned and why it was so easy. Thousands of others, from school children to men and women 50 to 70, have also learned music in the same easy way. A new method that makes singing or any instrument amazingly simple to master. You can try it on approval and see for yourself—no cost whatever unless you are satisfied.

FROM the time I was a child, I have always had a yearning and longing to play the piano.

Often I have felt that I would gladly give up half of my life if some kind fairy would only turn my wish into a fact. You see I had begun to think I was too old to learn, that only some sort of fairy story magic could give me the ability to play. I was 35 years old—and the mother of a small family—before I knew one note from another.

Until I learned to play, hearing music—especially the piano—always gave me almost as much pain as pleasure. My enjoyment of it was always somewhat soured by envy and regret—envy of those who could entertain and charm with their playing, regret because I myself had to be a mere listener. And I suppose it is that way with everyone who has to be satisfied with hearing music instead of playing it.

Again and again, parties and other social gatherings have been all but spoiled for me. I could enjoy myself until someone suggested music or singing; then I felt "left out"—a lonesome wall flower—a mere looker-on instead of part of the party. I was missing half the fun.

It was often almost as bad when callers came. It is so much easier to entertain people—particularly if you don't know them well—if one can turn to the piano to fill the gaps when conversation lags. But until recently our piano was only a piece of furniture. We bought it three years ago, simply to have it in the house while waiting for our little girls to reach the age for beginning lessons—for I was determined that they should never be denied the full enjoyment of music the way I had been. But as it turned out, I learned to play before my girls did—in fact, I myself am now their teacher.

Thousands Write Like This:

"I am delighted to tell you how I am getting on with my lessons. Everything is so plain. I had been going to a teacher for about two months and could not seem to learn a thing. But how quick I understand your lessons."—Eliza Logan, Philadelphia, Pa.

"I have already earned enough with my mandolin to pay for the instrument and the course of lessons. Have received many compliments upon my playing." — Lester Plettner, Forestville, Wis.

"Our little girl has been elected organist of the Junior Epworth League of M. E. Church, South, after taking your lessons—and at the age of 12 years. That is speaking well for your school."—J. G. Castle, Fulton, Mo.

"Have learned more about music and playing in the four lessons I received from you than I expected to learn in six months."—U. S. Whitman, Washington, D. C.

"I am getting along better than I ever did with a teacher right with me."—Edna Brown, Springfield, Mass.

The way I have suddenly blossomed out in music (almost over night, you might say) has been a big surprise to all who know me, and to myself as well. My friends seem to think it must be that I had a previously undiscovered genius for the piano. But if there was any genius about it it wasn't on my part, but in the lessons I took—a new and simplified method that makes it remarkably easy for anyone to add music or singing to their daily lives. Anyone anywhere can now learn to play any instrument or learn to sing just as easily as I did. All the hard part, all the big expense, all the old difficulties, have been swept away by this simple new method.

I learned entirely by home study—in my spare time—from fascinating Print-and-Picture lessons that make everything so simple and easy that one simply can't go wrong on them. I call it a short-cut way to learn—it is so much simpler, and so entirely different from the old and hard-to-understand methods. I know that I made better and faster progress than I ever could by bothering with a private teacher or joining a class. In fact, while I don't like to brag, within six months after I took my first lesson, my playing was better than that of many of my friends who had studied two or three years under private teachers—not beause I was any more apt than they, but simply because the wonderful Print-and-Picture lessons sent me by the U. S. School of Music were so easy to understand.

They were so interesting that study and practice were more like a pastime than a task or duty. And so convenient; you can study and practice just as it happens handy, instead of tying yourself down to set hours. And no strangers around to embarrass you or make you nervous.

Within a year after I took my first lesson I began teaching my two little girls to play—using exactly the same lessons I myself had studied. And I notice that both of them seem to be getting along better than any of their playmates who have private teachers. In addition, I am saving the money it would cost to have a private teacher—I figure it would cost at least $3 to $5 a lesson to have a teacher whose instruction could compare with that contained in the printed lessons from the U. S. School. Yet, from the first lesson to the last, the total cost of learning the way I did amounts to only a few cents a lesson—and nothing whatever unless you are satisfied.

My only regret is that I didn't know of this really wonderful method years before. The ability to play is such a great comfort. No matter how much I am alone, I never get lonesome—I can always turn to my piano for amusement. I am never at a loss for a way to entertain callers. I no longer feel that I am "out of it" at social gatherings. Do you wonder that I so gladly recommend the method that has brought me so much pleasure and satisfaction?

This woman's experience is by no means unusual. Over 250,000 others—from school children to men and women of 50 to 70—have learned to play their favorite instrument or learned to sing in the same way this woman did. Read the enthusiastic letters which you will find printed here—samples of the kind of letters we are receiving in practically every mail. Largely through the recommendations of satisfied pupils, we have built up the largest school of music in the world.

Whether for beginners or advanced pupils, our method is a revolutionary improvement of the old and hard-to-learn methods used by private teachers, and our method is as thorough as it is simple and easy. We teach you in the only right way—teach you to play or sing entirely by note. No "trick" music, no "numbers," no makeshifts of any kind. Yet it is a short-cut method, simply because every step is made so simple and clear. But we don't ask you to judge our method by what others say or by what we ourselves say. You can take any course on trial—singing or any instrument you prefer—and judge entirely by your own progress. If for any reason you are not satisfied with the course or with what you learn from it, then it won't cost you a single penny. On the other hand, if you are pleased with the course, the total cost amounts to only a few cents a lesson, with your music and everything included.

When learning to play or sing is so easy, why continue to confine your enjoyment of the music to mere listening? Why not at least let us send you our free book, absorbingly interesting simply because it shows you how easy it is to turn your wish to play or sing into an actual fact?
